—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FRIENDS of prohibition tell the House Judiciary Committee that a "Dry America" means a country with happy homes, filled with luxuries, everybody enjoying himself.

Henry Ford telegraphs his certainty that "the sane people of the nation would not allow any dangerous modification of the prohibition law."

Edison wired: "Prohibition is the greatest experiment yet made to benefit man."

Edison and Ford represent the opinions of many Americans.

One thing is sure. Nobody now living will see prohibition taken out of the Constitution, barring a revolution, which we shall not have.

IN Newark, early yesterday morning, a combination of alleged voodoo worship and bootleg whisky resulted in killing one policeman and one "voodooist."

Police, creeping cautiously to the top floor door in a house, apparently deserted, heard chanting, rhythmic thumping of bodies against walls, and a Negro saying:

"There ain't no such thing as law; everybody makes his own law, according to the light God gives him."

LOUD "Amens" greeted this. The police broke in, found the small room crowded with Negroes, men and women, chanting what the police described as voodoo hymns. There was shooting. One Negro, one policeman killed; other Negroes and other policemen wounded. Old beliefs die slowly. Violent interference is dangerous.

WE do not understand management of prisons, or our criminals are different from other criminals.

Weeks ago, Warden Hoffman, of Auburn prison, New York, told a reporter:

"We are sitting on a powder keg."

Yesterday a convict stabbed the head keeper of the prison to death. He knew that the electric chair, nearby, would inevitably avenge that murder. Nevertheless, he committed it.

Swift trial and punishment should protect the other keepers.

Careful investigation should find what treatment and conditions drove a convict to so desperate an act.

LEADERS of new "cults" often convince themselves.

At St. Joe, Ark., Irwin C. Graham, leader of the "Incoming Kingdom" and later leader of the "Visionary" branch, planned with Divine aid to cure himself of illness by fasting. He did, and died yesterday of hunger.

This is not new. In the Middle Ages a man announced that he was the real Messiah, would go down to the Bosporus, and walk upon the surface. His crowd of believers followed him and all were drowned, he included.

FOLLOWING Gov. Sampson's suggestion that chain stores be "forced to bear their burden of taxation" Kentucky's legislature levies a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent on chain store "sales" of $400,000 and less. $1,000,000 gross sales would pay one per cent. The state to collect $1,500,000 a year.

THE state doubtless will collect, but, of course, the citizens of Kentucky patronizing the chain stores will pay the tax. The stores will increase prices in proportion to cover the tax.

The hope, however, is that this will discourage chain stores and help encourage the individual store.

Smaller towns and cities object particularly to the fact that chain store receipts do not pay in the town where they are collected, but are sent back to headquarters, some times every day.

ARMAMENT delegates in London seek to agree on a limit to submarine sizes.

One thousand, eight hundred tons limit was suggested.

This country already has six submarines bigger than 1,800 tons. France is building one of 2,880 tons. Japan, according to a French navy officer, has the biggest submarine in the world.

THIS country should have the biggest and the most submarines. Make them useful, exploring below the water in peace times, more useful in case of war. Build them, if possible, with a 25,000-mile cruising range, so that they could go around the world and remind anybody attacking us that such attacks are foolish.

There are oil wells and mines and other interesting things below the water. An engineer might make a submarine self-supporting.

HOW much in the way of deadly drugs comes into the United States? Two trunks found on a pier of the French line yesterday contained $500,000 worth of morphine.

Distributed by the "dope peddlers" that is enough to sentence hundreds to lives of misery.

MANY of the worst immigrants are smuggled in under our immigration laws, that kept out the ambitious, honorable, desirable immigrants that have created this country.

In Europe, a ring including United States consular officials, has been detected forging passports. Each one admits somebody willing to start life here on a criminal basis.

Better have the old kind of immigration.

DRY REFORM IN '400' LAID TO TAFT

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 6. —Former Chief Justice William Howard Taft, critically ill in his home here, furnished the inspiration for her campaign to "dry up society" in Philadelphia, Mrs. Ruth G. K. Strawbridge, of that city, told the House Judiciary Committee at its hearing on the prohibition law today.

She testified she received an enthusiastic response from the majority of society women who answered her written appeal to abolish the serving of liquor at social functions.

"The letter was drafted after conferences with former Chief Justice Taft and it was largely through his influence that I began my campaign to aid in making dry social affairs popular," she declared.

Mrs. Strawbridge took issue with recent testimony of one of her fellow-townsmen, W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. She said she would criticise his statements "as utterly unsportsmanlike and unworthy of a leader of public opinion."

RESULTS OF POLL

Mr. Atterbury believes in forbidding his employes to drink while driving engines on protected tracks but failed to apply this rule to "his social acquaintances who drive automobiles on unprotected highways," she said.

Giving results of a poll she made of the Social Register, Mrs. Strawbridge declared:

NEW CAB PEACE PLAN DRAFTED

A counter proposal for settlement of the taxicab drivers' strike was being drafted today by six members of the strikers' executive committee, preparatory to submitting it, through Mayor Charles H. Kline, to the cab companies.

Terms of the proposed plan were being guarded, but, according to reports, it contemplates suggesting that the companies recognize a strictly local drivers' union without affiliation with national labor organizations.

As members of the committee went into session in the office of Attorney Leonard A. Mazer, counsel for the strikers, A. T. Siford, chairman, made this statement:

SEEK NEW PLAN

"We are conferring this afternoon in an attempt to arrive at a plan which will be acceptable to the company. We have not arrived at the point where we

WASHINGTON, March 6. —(AP.)—Subjected to a cross-examination in the Senate today, Senator Grundy (Rep.), Pennsylvania, insisted that no one "directly or indirectly" connected with the American Tariff League occupied his offices in the Senate office building.

Senator Grundy declared the persons in his extra office in the Senate office building were employed by him to assist him in tariff revision after Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi, had demanded an explanation of a newspaper story relating that officers of the American Tariff League were using the Grundy offices.

"ONLY VISITORS"

After Grundy's explanation, Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, the chairman of the Senate Lobby Committee, examined him sharply.

Caraway asked him about Warren F. Doane, editor of The Man-

"There has been no change in the condition of the former Chief Justice since yesterday. He is comfortable and continues to take nourishment."

FIGHT BEGINS OVER SLUR AT KLINE

Doors Locked at City Hall, 5 in Hospital, 12 Arrested; Disorders Sweep Nation

Communist sponsored demonstrations against unemployment, held today throughout America and Europe, have produced these results:

1—In Pittsburgh, police charge and club disorderly crowds; five persons taken to hospitals, 12 arrested.

2—In New York, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen drives his police at crowd of 40,000.

3—In Detroit, mounted police gallop full tilt into crowd of 50,000.

4—In Washington, tear gas disperses fighting groups in front of White House. Disorder was reported in various other cities.

Rioting broke out in Grant street shortly before noon today as Communist paraders started marching from the Pennsylvania Station driveway to the City-County Building.

Mounted police charged into a crowd of spectators who were slow to heed "keep moving orders," felling several with their clubs. Sporadic fighting broke out along the line of march.

One of the victims in the melee was taken to the Mercy Hospital and four others to the Allegheny General Hospital.

KLINE TAUNT RESENTED

Fighting which broke out at the Pennsylvania driveway and Grant street was declared due to remarks that Pat Devine, district organizer of the Communists, had made about Mayor Charles H. Kline.

"He is a puppet of Andrew Mellon," Devine had said.

Spectators, incensed over the charge, are reported to have rushed the marchers in an attempt to seize banners reading, "Fools Starve—Men Fight, "Social Insurance for Unemployed Workers," and "Communists Fight for Your Rights," The raid on these banners started the riot,

Scenes of wild disorder followed in Grant street throughout the block between Liberty and Seventh avenues as mounted police charged their

Stimson's Stenographer, Set to Sail Home, Killed

LONDON, March 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Pearl Demaret, stenographer to Secretary of State Stimson, died in St. Georges Hospital early this morning from injuries suffered in a fall from a sixth-floor window of the Mayfair Hotel.

Mrs. Demaret shared a hotel suite with Mrs. Hurley Fisk, of the Division of Current Information. Mrs. Fisk said she was in the bathroom of the suite when Mrs. Demaret fell.

Authorities who examined the room pronounced the fall accidental as marks on the window sill indicated that the woman had clutched it in trying to save herself.

All arrangements had been made for Mrs. Demaret's sailing. Her baggage had been passed and flowers from Mrs. Stimson came as a parting gift.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Pearl Larkin Demaret came here originally from Salem, O., and entered the State Department in 1925. She was 30 years old, and is survived by her husband and 5-year-old son, who live here.

Mrs. Demaret was said to be homesick. For this reason she had received permission to sail for home aboard the President Harding today.

Senate Committee to Hold Unemployment Hearings

WASHINGTON, March 6. —(INS.) — Widespread unemployment throughout the country is to be considered by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee at a series of hearings to be conducted shortly, it was announced today by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, chairman.

The committee will consider three bills sponsored by Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, for relieving unemployment. The measures would provide for advancing the construction of public works during unemployment periods, for the creation of national employment systems and to empower the Labor Department to gather employment statistics.

Johnson named Senators Nye (Rep.), of Nebraska; Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan; Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, and Hawes (Dem.), of Missouri, to serve with him on a sub-committee for the hearings.

To aid in solving unemployment, Representative Cochran (Dem.), of Missouri, today introduced a bill providing for a cash payment of 25 per cent of the adjusted compensation life insurance policies of ex-service men. The payment would total $635,000,00.

RIOT CALL ISSUED BY WHALEN

Radicals Beaten With Clubs; Mob at White House; Outbreaks in Many Cities

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Disobeying Police Commissioner Grover Whalen's orders against a parade, Communists engaging in an unemployed demonstration at Union Square today started forming their ranks for a parade shortly after 2 p. m. Commissioner Whalen sent in a riot call.

Police charged the forming parade, swinging night sticks and blackjacks. The crowd, estimated at 40,000, immediately was in an uproar and started running in all directions from the square.

Several minor riots broke out in adjoining streets and quickly brought police on the run.

RESERVES RUSHED OUT

Reserves from nearby stations, where they had been held since midnight for just scuh an eventuality, began to pour into the square from all directions.

The Communists started forming their parade at the call of Willim Z. Foster, who a moment before had led a delegation to Commissioner Whalen in an unsuccessful effort to obtain permission to parade.

Mounted police quickly cleared the square and started to herd the crowd into adjoining streets.

They were swinging clubs and blackjacks and several people were seen to be knocked down. A call was sent in for ambulances, which had been mobilized at nearby hospitals.

After the first few minutes of rioting it appeared the police had the crowd under control.

WHALEN EXPLAINS

In denying the Communists' demands that they be allowed to parade to City Hall Commissioner Whalen said:

"The police today have shown you every courtesy. This is a city of law and order and I'm telling you that if you attempt to proceed to City Hall in any great numbers we will not only break up the parade, but will arrest every one of the leaders."

Previously he had offered to take the delegation to City Hall in his private automobile and present them to the Mayor as representing a meeting of 50,000 people protesting against unemployment. This offer they refused.

At the first outbreak of rioting a crowd of shouting Communists was seen to charge toward the shack in which Commissioner Whalen had set up his headquarters, but it appeared that none of them won through to the commissioner himself. Mounted and foot police formed a human barricade around Whalen.

National Guardsmen and firemen also answered the riot call, and in a few minutes were in full possession of the square.

Tear Gas Bombs Disperse Paraders at White House

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—A tear gas bomb and a dozen arrests today ended abruptly a miniature riot which climaxed an "Unemployment Day" demonstration in front of the White House.

Several persons received minor injuries in the struggle between police and a few leaders of the demonstration.

At first refraining from interference, at the order of President Hoover, the police acted when a Communist orator climbed to the top of the high iron railing along the Pennsylvania avenue side of the White House grounds.

SIX LEADERS ARRESTED

After blows had been exchanged a policeman dropped a tear bomb from his pocket and the knot of demonstrators and the large crowd of spectators scattered quickly.

Six of the leaders in the fight were rushed to a police station, and a police checkup later showed that many other arrests had been made. Several young girls were among those arrested.

Locked up on various charges pertaining to disturbance of the peace, some of those taken in charge struck up The Internationale and continued singing as one after another of the party joined them behind the bars.

HOOVER IN NEARBY OFFICE

Throughout the demonstration Hoover remained in his temporary office in the State, War and Navy Building, a hundred yards away. He was receiving at the time a delegation of the District of Columbia, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The women had entered by a side door.

Later the President made inquiries as to the extent and nature of today's arrests.

Reprisal Feared, Police Guard Los Angeles Building

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 6.—(INS.)—Hundreds of officers were mobilized at City Hall and Hall of Justice today when threats were made, according to police, to blow up a public building in reprisal for the arrest of 30 alleged leaders of the international unemployment demonstration.

The accused were in jail here on various charges following police raids in an effort to prevent repetition of hte unemployment riots of last week.

Thirteen were arrested at Co-Operative Center, where the raiders used clubs freely. Fighting was general, but no one was seriously injured.

Raids were made also on Trade Union Unity League and the International Labor Defense headquarters.

Many Injured as Detroit Police Battle 50,000

DETROIT, March 6.—(INS.)—Mounted officers charging at full gallop into dense crowds attracted by the Communistic-inspired demonstrations, and patrolmen, swinging clubs, battled with a throng of more than 50,000 people massed in Detroit's downtown section today in the vicinity of the City Hall.

Eight persons, one a policeman, went to Receiving Hospital with head injuries, and many who received only minor bruises were taken to their homes. Nine alleged Communists were arrested.

Boston Communists Clash With Police

BOSTON, March 6.—(AP.)—Eight persons were arrested here today in a Communist unemployment protest demonstration that started with a meeting on the Common and culminated in an unsuccessful attempt to conduct another meeting on the steps of the State House.

Communists and Police Clash in Larger Cities

Associated Press.

Many minor disorders flared in today's observance of "International Employment Day" in the United States and Europe. Demonstrators were arrested in a number of cities after clashes with the police.

Police in Waterbury, Conn., broke up a demonstration and arrested four, including a girl of 19.

In Worcester, Mass., five alleged Communists were arrested, and in Stamford, Conn., five were seized at the City Hall.

2,000 MEET IN CLEVELAND

More than 2,000 unemployed men and women gathered in Public Square, Cleveland, to hear Communistic speeches. Police gathered in an armory with tear gas bombs and nightsticks, ready for any emergency. Lil Andrews, 21, of St. Clairsville, mobilized the demonstrators.

In Columbus, O., Rose Clark, 24, was arrested when she attempted to address 1,000 unemployed gathered in the heart of the city.

Hundreds gathered at City Hall Plaza, Philadelphia, with dozens of mounted policemen waiting for trouble.

There were numerous demonstrations in Europe and some clashes between police and Communists, most of which ended with the arrest of leaders.

MANY CLASHES ABROAD

Five men were injured in a skirmish with police in London after an effort to interview the Lord Mayor. Four Communist leaders were arrested in Dublin.

In Berlin, police and unemployed clashed at municipal employment offices, where 3,000 unemployed were gathered. Riots also were reported at Hamburg, Breslau and Kiel.

There were demonstrations at Antwerp, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Vienna, Budapest, Manchester and in Paris a few hundred workers went on strike, but there were no serious disorders. In several cases leaders were arrested and the demonstrators dispersed.

"Oh, my, no," Gundy answered. He added that Doane called at his office frequently, but denied that he "practically spent his time there." The Pennsylvania senator also said Lerch and Faubel called at his office frequently.

SATISFIED BY QUIZ

Previously, Senator Moses chairman of the Rules Committee, said an investigation had satisfied him that Grundy's offices were being used only by his personal employes.

In calling attention to the story that officers of the Tariff League were using the Pennsylvania Senator's offices, Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, had threatened to introduce a resolution to have them "vacate."

Lobbyist Worthington Is Branded 'Fugitive'

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Col. J. W. Worthington, who for several years has conducted a successful lobby in Washington against government operation of Muscle Shoals, was characterized as "a fugitive" today by Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Lobby Committee.

'SUFFERING BREAKDOWN'

DETROIT, March 6.—(INS.)—Col. J. W. Worthington, who today was branded in Washington by Senator Caraway, of Arkansas, as a "fugitive" for failure to appear before the Senate Lobby Committee concerning testimony that he had Calvin Coolidge veto the Muscle Shoals bills, today was reported here seriously ill at Ford Hospital suffering a general breakdown.

Senator Caraway declared previously he would take proper court action to declare Worthington in contempt should he be able to appear.

Red Cab President Arrested in Disorder

President of the Red Cab Company, Robert Hasley, 45, 1902 Brighton road, was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge during the Communist disturbance. According to Patrolman P. E. Meyer, Hasley was parking his car at the corner of William Penn way and Oliver avenue when he attempted to stop him. He was released on paying a $30 forfeit to await hearing.

UNCOMMITTED, SAYS KLINE

Mayor Charles H. Kline today declared he had "made no commitments" when he was asked if he was for Joseph R. Grundy for senator and Samuel S. Lewis for governor. Grundy and Lewis are said to have the support of W. L. Mellon.

Reports from Philadelphia quote State Senator Samuel W. Salus as saying that William S. Vare is definitely "out" of the race for the Senate nomination and that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis is definitely "in."

Davis and former Gov. Gifford Pinchot held a luncheon conference in Washington yesterday.

Mayor Kline said he had made no commitments regarding the candidacies of city employes, for whom nomination petitions have been obtained at the County Commissioners' office.

The Mayor was asked if he and his friends were determined to place a candidate in opposition to State Senator M. G. Leslie, who is expected to seek re-election. Kline said he had been too busy with other things to get into politics.

Bambrick Refuses State Ticket Place

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 6.—(AP.)—Declination of W. C. Bambrick, of Chambersburg, to be a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor was announced here today by Democratic state headquarters.

Bambrick was slated for the place on the ticket agreed upon by prominent members of the party, including the executive committee, at a conference in Harrisburg last week. According to a statement Bambrick declined to be considered because "his business affairs would not permit him to make an active state campaign."

Mill Pickets Stone Strikebreaker Cars

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., March 6.—(AP.)—Seven automobiles and a bus bearing employes of the American Bemberg and American Glanzstoff mills to work were stoned by strike pickets near here early today. Windows were broken but no one was injured.

Standing Room at Premium In Trial of Blonde

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 6.—Thrill seekers hoping for a look-in at the trials of Irene Schroeder and Walter Glenn Dague, for killing Highway Patrolman Brady Paul, are due for disappointment. Standing room will be at a premium when the first trial opens next Monday morning, it was revealed today as Sheriff Frank N. Johnston began mailing identification cards to the 120 jurors empaneled for the first week.

It is the first time in the history of Lawrence County that such procedure has been necessary. Judges R. L. Hildebrand and James A. Chambers conferred yesterday to consider how best to regulate crowds in the antiquated courthouse, realizing the necessity of restricting spectators in order that accomodations might be available for witnesses and jurors.

The largest courtroom seats only 220 persons. The special panel selected for next week numbers 120 and, adding 50 witnesses there is space left for only 50 spectators.

Decision as to which of the two suspects will be called to trial first will be made Saturday when District Attorney John S. Powers and Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti meet in conference here.

DRY PRISONERS RETURNED TO KITTANNING

Trio Found Strolling Along Street Tell of Liberties, Visits to Picture Shows

Upon the advise of United States Attorney Louis E. Graham the three government prisoners who were found strolling the streets of Kittanning when they were believed behind the bars were returned to the Armstrong County jail today.

The men, Joseph Reich, 2419 Wrights way; Paul Hefferson, 2630 Carson street, and John Franciullo, were arrested on orders of Pennington when they were found on the streets of Kittanning.

They had been sentenced in Federal Court for selling liquor. When questioned by Pennington, the men said they were "trusties" in the jail, and that they were permitted to go to the city when their work was done.

WORKED IN GARAGE

"I told Sheriff George W. Shafer I was an auto mechanic," Hefferson said, "and that if he had anything he wanted done, I would do it. He gave me work in the garage and I also cleaned up the court house," Hefferson said.

"We got permission to go down street for mail and to buy food and tobacco, but we had to be back by 3 o'clock. We were never searched when we came back—the sheriff trusted us. He didn't say we could go to movies, but I went once."

Reich's statement was substantially the same as that of Hefferson, with the exception that he declared he spent leisure moments in the jail, reading. He said he went to the movies and that he received permission numerous times to "go down street."

DINES WITH WIFE

Franciullo said he met his wife once in Kittanning and that he had dinner with her. Guy Volpe, with whom he was arrested, but who was acquitted, visited the sheriff once before he was made a "trusty," Franciullo said.

"I ran errands for the sheriff's wife," he declared, "and was out about three or four times a week. I always had to be back before 4 o'clock, and sometimes came in before that."

Franciullo said he was never permitted outside by the former sheriff, William McCollum, but that Sheriff Shafer let him go on errands and to the postoffice.

can submit our proposition to anybody as yet."

Those present, in addition to Siford and Mazer, were Harry Kelly, Michael Burns, Ralph W. Trafford, John Stackhouse, Michael McCarthy and Miss M. Emmilinne Pitt, Federal labor conciliator.

The proposal will first be submitted to the entire executive committee, two members of which, Charles H. Waddle and Peter Day, are ill. If the committee approves, it will then go to Mayor Kline, who will present it to the Yellow and Green Cab companies.

ALL UP TO COMMITTEE

Members of the executive committee were authorized to conduct future negotiations at the meeting of the striking drivers last week in Moose Temple when they voted 1,153 to 1 against accepting the companies' offer of 37½ per cent of gross receipts, without recognition of the union.

Any settlement must provide for 40 per cent of receipts and recognition of the union, the men instructed the committee.

A fleet of Ford cabs on the streets gave rise to reports that a new cab company was to be formed here. Representatives of the Ford Motor Company explained that the cabs were en route to New York.

The Parmelee Transportation Company, owner of the Yellow and Green cabs, today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 12½ cents a share on its common stock and $1.50 a share on preferred stock.

horses into the crowd. The line of spectators blocking traffic there broke before the impact and hundreds scurried to safety. An automobile backfire caused the crowd to believe that shooting was taking place. This added to the excitement.

The Communist paraders, about 50 strong, straggled along Grant street, a disorganized mob. As they neared the City-County Building, Grant and Diamond streets, the doors of City Hall were ordered locked to prevent them from invading the building.

KLINE DENIES AUDIENCE

Mayor Kline refused an audience to the paraders. At the Ross street entrance of City Hall, which was kept open, a squad of firemen was stationed. They had attached hoses to nearby water plugs and were prepared to scatter the crowds with streams of water at the first sign of disorder.

Armed with tear gas bombs and night clubs, police kept the sidewalks at the Grant street entrance of City Hall clear of spectators. City employes virtually ceased work and flocked to the windows to gaze upon the crowds below.

ORDERED TO DISBAND

Police had ordered the Communists to disband after reaching the City-County Building, and were prepared to enforce the command at the first sign of resistance. But there was no disorder there, the marchers dispersing quietly upon reaching the spot.

In the first outbreak Nazerino Volteri, of 325 Bothwell street, North Side, was severely beaten on the head and face. Volteri accused the police of beating him, but they denied it. He and a score of others were arrested. Lambert Gillian, 34, of 415 Garfield street, Springdale; William Rodman, 36, of 3610 Colinar street; America Gonendo, 40, of Springdale; Dan McAllister, 50, of Springdale; John Ambrose, 35, of 400 Penn avenue; George Bailey, 19, of 7 Back way; John Gump, of 519 Mifflin avenue, Wilkinsburg; Charles Glass, 43, of 2251 Brownsville road, and John Rawlings, 23, of 36 Cumberland street.

A few moments later at Sixth avenue and Grant street, Edward Boone, 35, Negro, and David Thornton, 33, 14 Spram street, were arrested. They were taken away in motorcycle side cars. Police said Boone would be charged with inciting to riot.

Gillian, Bailey and Volteri were taken to Allegheny General Hospital to have their wounds dressed and later back to Central Police Station. McAllister was also taken to the hospital, but refused treatment.

400 HEAR TALK

A crowd of 400 or more listened in orderly fashion to a member of the Trade Union Unity League speak on unemployment at the employment offices of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant in Turtle Creek. Police and deputies kept traffic moving while workmen leaned from the windows of the big plant to listen to the address. The speaker urged a 7-hour day, five-day week to solve unemployment.

James Otis, secretary of the league, and Fred Kerns spoke. When the 12:30 p. m. whistle blew in the Westinghouse plant the throng quickly dissolved and filed back to work. Otis asked the throng to stage an unemployment demonstration Saturday night in front of the Turtle Creek municipal building.

Slated meetings in Braddock and East Pittsburgh did not materialize.

About 200 deputy sheriffs were assigned to guard all the large manufacturing plants throughout the Pittsburgh district.

DEVINE GIVES SPEECH

Pat Devine, district organizer of the Communists; Pat Cush, member of the national committee of the Trade Union Unity League, and John Kasper, local organizer for the league, arrived at the Pennsylvania Station at 11 a. m. and Devine began addressing the crowd.

He was compelled by police to move from the intersection of Grant street and the Pennsylvania Station driveway, owing to a blocking of traffic, and mounted the retaining wall at the right of the driveway.

BEEBE SANCTIONS PARADE

A controversy over the issuance of a permit for the Communist parade was solved by the announcement of Inspector Beebe that the police would not interfere with the paraders if there were no disorders.

Devine had declared that he had applied for a permit and been refused by Supt. Walsh, but Walsh declared that no application had been received by him. Beebe's announcement indicated that the Communists would be allowed to march without a formal permit.

OFFICIAL QUITS IN MANILA ROW

MANILA, March 6.—(AP.)—Dr. Alejandro Albert, acting secretary of public instruction, today submitted his resignation as a result of demands made by the striking high school students of Manila, but Governor General Dwight F. Davis refused to accept it.

Parents of striking students met here today and threatened to extend the walkout to the primary schools unless authorities capitulate to the demands of those now out.

The 10,000 striking students demanded not only the resignation of Dr. Albert, but also those of Luther B. Bewley, director of education, and the principal of North High School. They also demanded reinstatement of four students who were expelled as the result of a previous strike.

The original strike was staged as a demonstration against Miss Mabel Brumitt, of Valparaiso, Ind., a teacher whom the students accused of insulting the Filipino race. She was dismissed from the school service.

NAVY PARLEY FAILURE SEEN

Stimson's Report Shows Only Obsolete Ships, Ready for Junk Pile, on Scrap List

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Almost the last flickering hope that the London Naval Conference can accomplish any real or substantial reduction in the world's actual fighting fleets faded out here today upon receipt of Secretary of State Stimson's announcement in London concerning the prospects.

The burden of Secretary Stimson's statement was that if France can be persuaded—and it is a big if—to go along with the Anglo-American agreement framed by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald on the banks of the Rapidan last October, it will be possible to reduce the gross tonnage of the American fleet by some 200,000 tons.

ALL OBSOLETE SHIPS

But on analysis, it is disclosed that the tonnage to be reduced is really obsolete and decommissioned craft, either destined for the junk heap or now tied up and rusting at docks. Thus while the tonnage would be scrapped, the actual fighting fleet is not affected.

The American Navy now has rusting away at various docks on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts more than 100,000 tons of war-built destroyers. The Navy hasn't the men to man them, nor the money to operate them.

These destroyers are slated for the junk-pile irrespective of whether the London conference succeeds or fails.

MORE ON JUNK PILE

The United States also has some 20,000 tons of obsolete submarines ready for the scrap-pile.

To offset these reductions, however, the United States is faced with the necessity of completing the 15-cruiser program, and authorizing other cruisers if parity with Great Britain is to be reached. The estimated cost of these cruisers is around $300,000,000.

The American delegation admits that the statement was designed for home consumption.

Tardieu Aids Flood Area, Briand and Envoys Leave:

International News Service.

PARIS, March 6.—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Minister of Marine Dumesnil and the other members of the French delegation to the London naval conference left London at noon today.

Whether or not he will attend the meeting of the heads of the five delegations at London tomorrow hinges upon conditions in the flooded districts. If he is unable to go to London, M. Briand will take his place as head of the delegation.

After a cabinet crisis of 17 days Tardieu today again held the reins of the government. His new ministry received a vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies last night after reading of the ministerial declaration by a majority of 53. The count was 316 to 263.

3 REDS TAKEN AT PLANT

The first activities of police to prevent trouble at manufacturing plants took place last night with the arrest of a girl and three men at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing plant at East Pittsburgh. They were distributing radical literature.

The prisoners described themselves as Miss Freda Truhar, 19, of 2503 Arlington avenue; Nat Litsin, 25, of 103 Roberts street; John Care, 24, of 5622 Keystone street, and Max Garsinkel, 26, of 931 Vickroy street, Pittsburgh. They are to be given a hearing before Burgess James Beech Saturday night on charges of violating a borough ordinance.

Miss Truhar has been involved numerous times in Communistic activities and received much publicity when, while a Pitt student, she championed the cause of the Liberal Club, which was ordered disbanded by school authorities.

WOMAN SCORES POLICE IN RIOT

After a narrow escape from injuries herself, Mrs. Mary Cesta, of 905 Shadeland avenue, North Side, asserted her injured brother, Nazerino Volteri, 33, of 325 Bothwell street, was unable to move when mounted police charged the Grant street crowd today during the unemployment demonstration.

Describing the scene that resulted in her brother being taken to Allegheny General Hospital with a cut on the scalp, Mrs. Cesta said:

"We had been standing on the Grant street curb with other spectators when two mounted policemen charged into the crowd, ordering us to move on. One policeman immediately swung his riot stick, striking my brother before we could move. The crowd had us hemmed in."

'Bossy' Denies Bride Quest On Hollywood Invasion

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(INS.)—Andrew "Bossy" Gillis, New England mayor, came here from San Francisco yesterday to invade Hollywood.

Gillis' arrival was in keeping with his reputation for superb nonchalance. He started to make the journey from San Francisco by automobile. Then he came by train.

Gillis will visit the film studios, but not, he declared, in search of a brunette bride with efficiently house-wifely ways, as he pictures his ideal mate.

He was rather disappointed with his visit to San Francisco. He failed to receive the keys to the city in the first place and his presence there did not create a ripple.

"I thought they'd be glad to see me there, but I guess they weren't," he remarked rather sadly. "It sure ain't the town it was when I used to be in the Navy years ago."

Gillis said he did not know how long he would remain in Southern California, but it would be "long enough to get acquainted."

VANDALS WRECK HIGH SCHOOL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 6.—Police are puzzled over the extensive raid made early today on the Lafayette High School and are inclined to believe that the acts may have been those of Communists.

The damage to the interior of the building was so great that it was impossible to hold a session of school this morning. The hundreds of pupils reporting for classes were dismissed until this afternoon. However, the "vacation" may last all day.

The interior of the building, located in the residential section in the East End, was badly wrecked. A dozen doors either were ripped from their hinges or smashed. The school cafeteria was torn topsy turvy with much of the food in the ice boxes thrown about on the floor.

Virtually every class room in the building was damaged and the office was wrecked. Papers were scattered about on the floor.

STAGE BEAUTY DIES IN LEAP

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Christine Norman, whose portrait was painted by Neysa McMein as one of the 12 most beautiful women in the United States, committed suicide early today by jumping from a window on the twentieth floor of a midtown hotel.

Miss Norman was a member of the original "Peg o' My Heart" company and was the estranged wife of Enos S. Booth.

Booth, who is a lawyer, told police that he had talked to his wife on the telephone recently and that time she appeared to be in good spirits.

He said Miss Norman was born 43 years ago in Cincinnati and came here to start her stage career. They were married 10 years ago, he said, but separated five years later.

KLINE, DEVINE VIEWS AT ODDS

The outbreak of the unemployed was interpreted by Mayor Kline as "no real demonstration," on one hand, and, on the other, as "cold-blooded brutality" incited by the police, by Pat Devine, district organizer for the Communists' party.

"I am glad that there was no real demonstration in this community," the Mayor said. "I stand for America first and the preservation of her institutions at whatever costs."

Devine's statement said:

"The Communist party and the Trade Union Unity League bitterly denounce the breaking up of the demonstration and are determined to hold another and bigger one some time this week to continue the fight for work or wages and the full demands of the Trade Union Unity League."

Cannon Home Purchased By Chief Justice Hughes

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP.)—The big stone house on R street which for a time was occupied by Helen Cannon, daughter of the noted speaker of the House, will be the residence of Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes.

The property, in the fashionable Sheridan Circle section, was purchased from J. A. L. Van Den Bosch of Holland, who has been spending his winters in Washinton.

When Mr. Hughes was a member of the Supreme Court before, he built a house on Sixteenth street, from which his campaign for the presidency was conducted. While Secretary of State, he occupied a brick residence on Eighteenth street, near du Pont Circle.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

Seven judges at a memorial service in Criminal Court, presided over by Judge H. H. Rowand, agreed that when court adjourned it would do so in respect to Judge Martin.

Tributes were voiced by Judge Rowand, Attorney H. M. Johns, chairman of the memorial committee of the Bar Association, and Attorney John E. Laughlin.

In Federal Court Attorney Albert C. Hirsh announced the jurist's death, and Judge Nelson McVicar announced that the court's adjournment today would be out of respect to Judge Martin.

Attaches of Courtroom No. 1 draped the chair and bench that less than two weeks ago had been occupied by the deceased jurist.

HONORARY PALLBEARERS

The list of honorary pallbearers includes former Gov. Gifford Pinchot, former Mayor William A. Magee, Judges James H. Gray, John A. Evans, James R. Macfarlane, Thomas P. Trimble, Richard A. Kennedy and John S. Weller, Henry Scattergood, Harold Evans, Lee C. Beatty, Alexander P. Lindsay, James M. Magee, William A. Challener, William Watson Smith, William S. Dalzell, C. F. Banning, Horace F. Baker, Frank W. Main, Grant Curry, W. P. Witherow, Samuel R. Kelly, Morris Knowles, L. W. Monteverde, Dr. C. B. Schildecker, Dr. L. W. Swope, David F. Collingwood, George W. McCandless, John E. Laughlin, Joseph H. Reich, John R. Frankel, Richard W. Ahlers, Don Rose, William S. Moorhead, Alexander Gilfillan, Frank C. McGirr, J. J. O'Connor, A. M. Thompson, Edward Rynearson, George J. Campbell, Homer N. Young and David B. Johns.

Judge Martin's death followed a relapse late Tuesday. He had been suffering from pneumonia two weeks. Early yesterday, when it was evident that death was near, oxygen was administered and the patient rallied for a few hours, then lapsed into a coma. He died shortly after 6:30 p. m. Members of his family were at the bedside when the end came.

Stricken two weeks ago with influenza, which developed into pneumonia, Judge Martin had made a hard fight against the disease.

The hard campaign which Judge Martin made for the Republican nomination for mayor at the September primaries is believed to have sapped his vitality and handicapped him in his fight against death.

Judge Martin was born in Pittsburgh September 14, 1882. He was graduated from the Grant School, the Pittsburgh Central High School and the law school of the University of Pittsburgh.

Martin was admitted to the bar in 1904. For the next four years he was engaged in general practice in Pittsburgh. In 1908 he was appointed an assistant district attorney by District Attorney Harry L. Goehring and reappointed by District Attorney William A. Blakeley in 1910.

With the exception of a year which he devoted to trying cases for the law firm of Burleigh & Challener, Martin served as assistant district attorney until 1914, when he established a law partnership with James M. Magee and Lee C. Beatty. The firm served Allegheny County as solicitors from 1915 to 1920.

NAMED CITY SOLICITOR

Martin was appointed city solicitor by Mayor William A. Magee and served until 1925, resigning to accept an appointment by Gov. Gifford Pinchot to the Public Service Commission. While city solicitor he was a candidate in 1923 for the Republican nomination for district attorney, but was defeated by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

In 1926 Gov. Pinchot appointed him to a vacant place on the Common Pleas bench of Allegheny County.

In 1927 he was a candidate for the full term of 10 years. The Republican organization would not support his candidacy, but Martin won the Republican nomination and election nevertheless.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

At the request of a committee representing the Pittsburgh Ministerial Union and several civic organizations, Judge Martin became a candidate last year for the Republican nomination for mayor in opposition to Mayor Charles H. Kline and James F. Malone, then president of Council. Martin ran second.

Judge Martin married Jean McFall, of Pittsburgh. He is survived by Mrs. Martin and three sons, Richard McFall Martin, a student at Princeton University, and William and Bruce Martin, who attended Pittsburgh schools.

Swing to Silks Bankrupts Early Gingham Mill

BOSTON, March 6.—(INS.)—The forsaking of ginghams for silks by American women has caused the liquidation of the first gingham mill of the country.

The directors of the Lancaster mills, of Clinton, the first plant in America to manufacture gingham by the power-driven loom, were authorized to liquidate the business by the stockholders.

It was a $15,000,000 concern.

WAR DECLARED BY MINERS' HEADS

Union Sends Delegates to Fight Insurrectionists; Two Unions Are Predicted

Strife between factions of union coal miners was complicated today by the dispatching of officers and organizers from Pittsburgh headquarters of the National Miners' Union to the various theaters of war to attack all the contending elements.

Freeman Thompson, acting president, has gone to Illinois, where the Lewis and Fishwick groups are engaged in a death grapple for control of the United Mine Workers.

Fishwick, aided by John Brophy, of Pittsburgh, will hold a convention at Springfield on Monday, the same day the Lewis organization, supported by Philip Murray and P. T. Fagan, of this city, will meet in Indianapolis.

TWO UNIONS PREDICTED

It is expected that the outcome will be that after Monday there will be two distinct bodies each claiming to be the United Mine Workers. In Illinois Thompson will attack both the Lewis and Fishwick groups, and also the Induustrial Workers of the World.

Organizers of the N. M. U. are active in the Pittsburgh district. A meeting will be held at Blythedale next Sunday and one at Meadowlands the following Sunday.

Vincent Kemenovich, secretary of Pittsburgh District (No. 5) of the N. M. U., said it now has 217 functioning local unions, distributed in seven states.

The national convention of the National Miners' Union, scheduled to be held in Pittsburgh April 1, has been postponed until June 1. A thousand delegates are expected.

Earl Who Signed As Seaman Left At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—The Earl of Rosslyn, British nobleman and author, was in the United States today as a sailor left in a foreign land when he fails to return to ship before sailing time.

The Earl enlisted as a seaman aboard the motorship Penrith Castle a few hours before the docking of the vessel from London at San Pedro.

The ship sailed while the Earl was at luncheon with Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford. As soon as the ship sailed, E. Ross, 63, as the Earl was listed in ship records, was in the United States illegally.

The Earl, who broke the bank at Monte Carlo twice, and then lost $5,000,000 gambling, explained to immigration officers that he neglected to have his passport vised, so he enlisted as a seaman because he wanted to come ashore.

GLADSTONE SON DIES IN LONDON

LONDON, March 6.—(AP.)—The Rt. Hon. Viscount Herbert John Gladstone, 76, youngest son of William E. Gladstone, of Victorian era fame, died at 2:30 a. m. today of an illness which began with an attack of bronchitis in January.

He was Home Secretary from 1905 to 1910 and his career there was stormy, as the suffragette agitation, with hunger strikes and picketing, was at its height.

In 1910 Gladstone went to South Africa as first governor-general and high commissioner. There too he met trouble. A great general strike developed in 1913 and the strikers on several occasions demanded his recall. He returned from that office in 1914.

RAID WARNING NEW RACKET

The latest activity among McKeesport racketeers, police said today, is to employ paid outside "watchers" whose duty is to punch a concealed bell warning those inside of speakeasies of the approach of raiders. This was disclosed when Chief John J. Whalen questioned John Palko, 17, of 616 Jerome street.

Palko, arrested yesterday, admitted, police said, of having been the paid watcher for Anna Boroweicz, 38, of 610 Jerome street, in whose place a quantity of moonshine whisky was seized.

The woman forfeited $205 when she failed to appear for a hearing before Magistrate Robert C. Calhoun. Palko was fined $10 and costs and four visitors $5 and costs, each.

Palko said "all joints have paid watchmen now."

Tribute Paid Judge Martin

Expressions of regret on the death of Judge Richard W. Martin were voiced today by many prominent men and women. Among them were the following:

FORMER GOV. GIFFORD PINCHOT, who appointed Judge Martin a member of Public Service Commission and later to Common Pleas bench:

The death of my friend, Judge Martin, is a serious grief and a great shock. He was not only an upright judge, but a great public servant. His fight on the Public Service Commission, to which I had the honor to appoint him, in behalf of fair rates and decent treatment to the public put the whole state under obligation to him. His death is a great loss not only to Pittsburgh, but to the whole commonwealth.

MAYOR KLINE:

It was with deep regret that I learned of the death of Judge Richard W. Martin. His loss will be deeply felt by the people of this community, as he was one of its most outstanding citizens. Being cut down in the prime of life while rendering valuable service to society and needed so badly in the raising of his wonderful family is indeed a calamity.

JUDGE HARRY H. ROWAND, Common Pleas Court:

My acquaintance with and admiration for Judge Martin began when we were assistant district attorneys together under the late District Attorney Harry L. Goehring. Judge Martin at that time showed his marked talents for the law. He was a fearless prosecutor, but fair. Judge Martin had made a mark for himself and had a wonderful future as a member of the judiciary.

JUDGE JAMES H. GRAY, Common Pleas Court:

I am too overcome to express myself at this time. Whatever I might say would be inadequate.

JUDGE ELDER W. MARSHALL, Common Pleas Court:

I think of Judge Martin in connection with the University of Pittsburgh law school where he has taugh for 10 or 12 years. He was a wonderful speaker and teacher. His death will be a great loss to the faculty and students. It will be a greater loss to the bench.

COUNCILMAN ROBERT J. ALDERDICE:

I have known Judge Martin 25 years. I regarded him as one of the most reputable citizens of Allegheny County and as one of our most capable judges. I believe it will be difficult to fill the place he occupied on the bench of the Allegheny County courts.

FEDERAL JUDGE NELSON McVICAR:

I don't know what I can say at this time. When Judge Martin was appointed to Common Pleas Court I was a judge in that court, and he took the chambers next to mine. I held him in high regard as a man and a lawyer and through later acquaintance as a fine judge.

ATTORNEY JOSEPH H. REICH:

As a boy I played with Judge Martin and learned to love him. This relationship continued through high school and our careers at the bar. I never in my life have met a man who has had such high ideals, whose conception of his duties and his regard for public welfare were such as to make him give up his life for the cause. In my judgment he was one of the ablest judges that ever graced the bench, and his loss will be felt by bench, bar and by litigants. He was very considerate, especially of younger members of the bar, and his courtesy and unfailing kindness helped many young lawyers over rough spots in trying their first cases. He was outstanding as a judge and man.

ATTORNEY GEORGE E. ALTER:

I have known Judge Martin for a long time. He was one of the brightest men in the city. His death is a great loss to the bench, bar and community. He had an unusual brilliant career and gave promise of years of valuable service on the bench. Judge Martin probably would have gone far.

MRS. DELLA B. HERSHEY:

I am deeply grieved. I believe that Judge Martin was one of the greatest judges on our bench. My loss is an inestimable one.

JAMES F. MALONE, former councilman:

I joined with every person that knew Judge Martin in the hope that he would be restored to health, and his death was a distinct shock to me. I respected him as a man whose high ideals and conduct made him a valued member of this community. He ably filled many responsible positions, including judge of the Court of Common Pleas, city and county solicitor and State Public Service commissioner. Death has removed a sterling character whose place will not easily be filled.

DAVID B. JOHNS, former Republican County Chairman:

The bench, the bar and the people of Allegheny County and the State of Pennsylvania have suffered a great loss in the death of Judge Martin. Personally, I feel it very deeply as we were dear friends.

WILLIAM A. MAGEE, former mayor of Pittsburgh:

The community has lost one of its best assets in the death of Richard W. Martin. When a citizen of first class ability, of absolute rectitude and sane poise, gives his life to the public service in preference to the rewards of a business or professional occupation, the public suffers a grievous loss. If he is cut off in mid-career and in the prime of his power, as has happened in the case of Judge Martin, the loss is even greater. In his private relations he was amiable, kindly and tolerant and was esteemed by thousands who will mourn his premature end.

ATTORNEY ALEXANDER P. LINDSAY:

In the passing away of Judge Martin, Allegheny County has suffered a severe loss. He was a man of extraordinary attainments, a great leader, a brilliant lawyer, a just judge, a kind and affectionate husband and father and a true friend. He always stood and fought for the things that were right. His courage never faltered. Words fail to express my feelings at a time such as this.

JOHN W. VICKERMAN:

Judge Richard W. Martin rendered distinguished service as a judge of the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County. We need more judges of his type. His untimely death will cause great sorrow to his large circle of friends who have watched his public career.

JOSEPH STADTFELD, former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association:

Judge Martin's death is one of the most serious losses to the bench of this county. He was a man of brilliance and clean character. His death is a great loss.

ATTORNEY JOHN R. FRANKEL:

It is difficult to command language with which to express my regret at the death of Judge Martin. His passing is the greatest loss the community has sustained in the death of any one citizen.

STATE SENATOR FRANK J. HARRIS:

The death of Dick Martin takes from me a lifelong friend. We were boys together in the old Hill district, and it seemed destined that we were to be just as closely associated in public life. He was county solicitor when I was commissioner, and throughout his career we worked together. He was a clean, honest, energetic boy and he grew up to be that kind of a man—sincere, conscientious and guided by the highest ideals. The community has lost an able jurist and a man of sterling worth in the death of Judge Martin and I have lost a loyal friend.

REV. DR. W. J. CLAUDY, executive secretary, Pittsburgh Council of Churches:

The city and the state have lost a jurist of outstanding character and vision. Judge Martin undoubtedly was a prophet of the better order, a leader of unquestionable courage and a jurist of unimpeachable integrity. His passing is an irreparable loss. All good citizens looked to him for leadership which he typified in an unqualified way in the last mayoralty campaign.

STATE LENDERS NET PROFIT

HARRISBURG, March 6—(AP)—Capital employed by persons and firms in carrying on a small loan business brought a net return of 9.17 per cent during 1929, it was shown in data compiled by the State Department of Banking. On December 31, 1929, there were 497 persons and firms licensed to conduct small loan businesses, the department said.

The total number of loans made was 487,000 and the average amount for each loan was $158. The total capital employed was $52,504,155.68. During the year loans aggregating $833,946.45 were charged off as being uncollectible. Gross income of the 497 licenses for the year was $12,677,805.67, and net earnings were $4,784,273.46.

The small loan act regulates the business of loaning money in sums of $3,000 or less, and limits the rate of interest to three and one half per cent a month.

Oh, boy! no more colds

Every night snuff a little "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly up the nostrils. It coats the membranes of the nasal passages. According to doctors, germs are not likely to get in their deadly work if these sensitive membranes are fortified against them by lubrication.

When you are outdoors on a dusty, windy day, use "Vaseline" Jelly in the nostrils to relieve that tickle. The tube is convenient to carry, so you can always have it with you when you need it.

If the throat feels husky, take a teaspoonful of the Jelly and swallow it. Radio stars, whose voices mean their bread and butter, have learned this trick. You can profit from it too.

Lay in a supply of "Vaseline" Jelly—in jars or tubes at the nearest store. Use it regularly every night.

DRY REFORMS IN '400' LAID TO TAFT

vate gatherings and entertainments I found that most of these society women regarded it as an unutterable nuisance and their only anxiety was as to how most effectually to free themselves and their families of it. A favorite theme in their response was that of the expense of the custom and the disgrace of maintaining relations with bootleggers in order to keep up with the reputed style of the day.

"Dry entertainments are becoming more and more fashionable. If parents make a joke of prohibition so will their children. American mothers feel that they cannot loiter today in facing their responsibility. They know that the youth of today have wonderful capabilities and that it is up to their elders to live lives that will guide these children aright."

The first witness called today Representative Burtness (Rep.) of North Dakota presented a statement signed by residents of that state asserting that agricultural depression had been "in no wise aggravated by prohibition."

CHURCH LOBBY DENIED

P. H. Callahan, manufacturer of Louisville, Ky., a Republican Catholic and dry, was next called to offset liberal charges that the Protestant Church lobby "put over" prohibition and to defend it from a business man's viewpoint.

Callahan declared that prohibition has saved more lives than America lost in action in the World War. Callahan, who is chairman of the Central Co-Operative Committee for Prohibition Enforcement and general secretary of the Association of Catholics Favoring Prohibition, presented statistics compiled by the census bureau in support of his claim.

Taking the average losses of life before and after prohibition from alcohol, cirrhosis of the liver and bright's disease and granting that 50 per cent of cases of the last were caused by drinking, he argued that 140,800 lives had been saved by the dry laws.

"NOT PROTESTANT LAW"

Callahan denied that prohibition was identified only with Protestantism. Once, he said, the charge was made and is still heard occasionally, that "prohibition was Protestantism and purposely planned to interfere with Catholic services by ultimately making it impossible to offer up the sacrifice of the mass."

He declared that "nothing could have been further from the truth," and that such a charge was clearly "an instance of using religious prejudice for material purposes."

He read a letter from the Rev. M. F. Foley, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, Baltimore, endorsing prohibition.

Father Foley disagreed sharply with Father John A. Ryan, of the Catholic University, who testified there is no moral obligation to obey prohibition.

SUPPORTS HOOVER

"Is prohibition binding on conscience?" he asked. "I believe it to be so. I believe that the Eighteenth Amendment is what President Hoover declared it, a noble experiment, the most noble a great nation ever tried to save its people from frightful evils."

Father Foley said he opposed light wines and beers and declared the antis were preparing for a return of the saloon.

He compared opposition to the prohibition law to the "whisky rebellion" of 1794, which was suppressed by George Washington.

Representative Graham (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, interrupted Callahan to read a letter from Charles D. McShane, of Pittsburgh, who said he had abandoned his stand for prohibition.

PITTSBURGHER'S LETTER

McShane said he formerly was first vice president of the Catholic Abstinence Society, but added that after 10 years he decided prohibition had failed and could not be enforced.

"The Catholic Church commands temperance, but it would not indorse prohibition because it numbers among its members so many different nationalities, and the Catholic Church has no right to interfere with the racial customs and pleasures of these different nationalities as long as these are indulged in with moderation and temperance," he said.

"This is the reason the Catholic Prohibition League of America, organized in 1916, composed of prominent priests and laymen, was abandoned several months afterward because it could not get the indorsement of a single cardinal, archbishop or bishop of America."

Brothers Who Broke Jail Get 16 Years

WARREN, Pa., March 6.—(AP.)—Sentences of 16 years each were meted out today to Owen and Harold Taylor, brothers, who staged a jail break here February 9 and injured the sheriff in their escape.

The brothers were identified as members of a gang of robbers operating in Erie and other counties. Owen Taylor named 11 other persons who, he said, were gang members.

Maynard Spetz and Everett Benson, also involved in the robberies, were sentenced to serve a year each in the Allegheny County Workhouse and fined $100 and costs.

ARRANGE FETE FOR FIREMEN

Preparations are now under way for the county convention of volunteer firemen, which will be held in Brentwood Borough, from the week starting Sunday, June 8, until Saturday, June 14. Various committees have been appointed to act as hosts to the visiting firemen. E. H. Elbs is chairman, H. A. Moore secretary and S. Suttner treasurer. Thirty-five hundred firemen representing 85 fire companies are expected to participate.

The contemplated program will include a mammoth parade, water battles, athletic events, street fair, water gala and other events. The directors of the Brentwood unit are considering the purchase of 50 additional uniforms for the borough firemen for the occasion. The firemen are holding weekly Saturday night dances in the borough's park shelter house to provide funds for the uniforms and drum corps equipment.

FOX IS VICTOR IN BALLOT ON FILM STOCK

Bancamerica Project Wins; Halsey, Stuart Still Holds Control of Voting Stock

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 6.—After an all-night voting session, William Fox today announced that 564,577 shares of class A stock out of 820,660 shares cast had been voted in favor of the Bancamerica-Blair plan sponsored by Fox and and that 93,745 shares of class B out of 99,900 shares cast had been similarly voted.

This indicated an overwhelming victory for the movie magnate, but because of the many legal and financial ramifications in the case it is not necessarily decisive. In thanking the stockholders, Fox said:

"I feel that I have deserved not by words but by actions, the vote that you have cast in favor of the plan that I have proposed."

TELLS OF BIG OFFER

Fox added he had been offered $33,000,000 for his stock by the "telephone interests," whom he charges with seeking to gain control of the vast Fox movie and theater enterprises.

While on its face the voting resulted in a striking victory for Fox, the many ramifications of the bitter battle being waged for control between opposing factions preclude any clear cut plan of decisive action.

The situation as it stands now briefly is this:

Today's vote may be regarded as a mandate on the part of the present stockholders in indicating their desire not to have a receivership under control of the Federal Court thrust on the companies.

On the other hand, control of all majority class B, or voting stock is, at least just now, in the hands of the Fox opposition, the Halsey-Stuart group of bankers.

This situation obtains under a decision of Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, in which he ordered that Harry L. Stuart and John E. Otterson, as voting trustees under an agreement later repudiated by Fox, were to cast 50,101 shares of 100,000 shares of class B stock.

NEW MEETING ANNOUNCED

On April 15 the stockholders again will meet and at that meeting the Halsey-Stuart group, by virtue of their dominant control of the class B voting stock, may elect a new board of directors and oust any existing officers, including Fox, if they see fit.

Through this control, too, they may initiate their own refinancing plan.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, although not mentioned specifically by Fox in the "offer" he said was made to him, immediately issued a denial. It declared it never has contemplated or considered taking any share interest in any amusement company. Mention of the $33,000,000 offer was made by Fox after the vote had been announced.

FORNEY FACES TRIAL MONDAY

District Attorney Gardner announced today that he believes he can obtain a conviction against Alfred W. Forney, the erstwhile fugitive, without the testimony of the three McCarthy brothers, missing witnesses.

Forney, charged with maintaining gambling devices (slot machines) and being a common gambler, is scheduled to go on trial next Monday after numerous postponements.

Three agencies—county detectives, deputy sheriffs, bondsmen—have failed to locate the missing witnesses, Dale, Lawrence and Mack McCarthy, Gardner reported.

The bondsmen will lose $1,500 for each witness, and Gardner today took steps to collect the money. The bondsmen are Max Engleburg, of 826 Mellon street, and Mrs. P. P. Nardina, of 124 Boyle street.

MAN IN COURT DRUNK JAILED

Vincent Sacyek, 25, of Woodville, was fined $50 and sentenced to jail for 10 days when he appeared in Criminal Court today under the influence of what Visiting Judge Frank L. Harvey believed was liquor.

Sacyek was in court to stand trial on a charge of assault and battery. When he seemed unable to compose himself the judge fined him $25 and 10 days in jail. An hour later, when Sacyek still appeared under the influence of liquor, the fine was raised. The charge was contempt of court.

The trial then proceeded. Sacyek is accused of hitting one John Duplik, of Heidelberg, with an auto crank.

INDICT FAMILY IN WIFE TRUST

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 6.—(AP.)—A 68-year-old father and his two sons were under indictment here today on charges involving nearly a dozen marriages in various parts of the country through which Federal authorities assert, the three men were able to live in ease for eight years.

The indictments, returned by a federal grand jury yesterday, charge Michael Cates and his sons, Richard, 21, and Howard, 17, with violations of the Mann Act. The arrest of the trio came about through the marriage of Richard to Marguerite Berk in St. Joseph, Mich. Richard, federal authorities allege, previously had married women in Michigan, Kentucky, Arkansas and Milwaukee.

The trio took the girl to Tulsa, Okla., and later brought her to Kalamazoo, Mich., where she was given 70 cents for bus fare home. Her complaint resulted in the arrest of the father and sons in Tulsa.

Seven marriages were laid to the father by federal authorities and the indictment listed names of women alleged to have been transported from one state to another at various times during the last eight years.

TIRPITZ, U-BOAT TERROR, DEAD

Lord High Admiral of German Navy in War Succumbs to Bronchitis at Age of 80

EBENHAUSEN, Bavaria, March 6 (AP).—Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, lord high admiral of the German Navy during the World War and father of Germany's submarine warfare, died in a sanatorium here at 2:30 a. m. today after a brief attack of bronchitis. He would have been 81 years old March 19.

The gray-bearded warrior who sometimes was termed a German Odin, or war god of the seas, was in good health until early in February when his heart action became weak. He was brought from his home at Feldafing on the banks of Starnberger Lake to this place, a suburb of Munich.

At Feldafing he had been leading the life of retired soldier, occasionally lifting his voice in defense of the German Republic. In 1925, while a deputy in the Reichstag, he went to Hanover and persuaded Field Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg to accept candidacy for the German presidency.

BUILT GREAT NAVY

Two years ago he retired from parliamentary life and declined renomination for the Reichstag in a rather bitter letter to the German Nationalist Party in which he declared the party was making too many compromises. The party then made him its honorary chairman but he played no political role, merely writing articles occasionally on topics of the day.

From the time he was 20 until he broke with the Kaiser in 1916 Admiral Von Tirpitz's life was one of most intimate association with the German Navy. In 1897 he became secretary of state for the imperial navy and holding the post until his quarrel with Wilhelm, generally is given credit for instigating and organizing the navy to its high peak of efficiency.

BROUGHT U. S. INTO WAR

He and Wilhelm were said to have come to the parting of the ways on the very submarine warfare which afterward led the United States into the war and contributed greatly to Germany's eventual defeat. Wilhelm was for a less vigorous submarine warfare than Von Tirpitz.

NOTED FOR NAVAL DATA

In recent years Admiral Von Tirpitz liked the company of a few genial companions. His guests came from all parts of the world. He was father of two sons and two daughters, born of his happy marriage with Marie Lipke.

FEARED HE MIGHT NOT LIVE LONG

Foreman Sent Him Home From Work Because He Was Sick.

"Last fall I got into such a condition that I feared I might not live long," said John [illegible], a well known resident of [illegible]. My work for years had been in the mills and I had kept well in spite of the sudden changes of heat and cold and the exposure. But I noticed a gradual failing of my strength. This was followed by annoying troubles with my stomach. My kidneys and bladder, too, did not work as they should. I had to lay off frequently simply because I did not feel equal to a day's work. At times I had a dizziness that made me afraid I might fall over in the mill. I would stoop over and do a little work and as I rose black spots would come before my eyes and once in a while I had to grab the first thing I could reach to keep from falling.

"Sometimes after hard work I had to rest a while before I could go on and at these times my heart thumped so that I became alarmed. My stomach got worse and frequently would not retain food. One day the foreman at the mill sent me home. He said I was too sick to work and as we were all working under the compensation law it was against the rules of the company to allow men to work in my condition. I knew this would soon mean the loss of my job and that added to my worries. I lost weight, and my ankles used to swell up after a day's work, frequently with pains shooting up the side of my legs. I worked less than half of the time, and I saw ahead of me soon that I would not be able to work at all. I was so miserable that I did not particularly care, for I thought I could not last much longer.

"I was right about that. I could not have held on if one of my buddies had not urged me to try a new medicine he had used with good results. I started on it, and before I had taken two bottles I saw a big improvement. My stomach was straightened out, my pains stopped, and I began to sleep restfully. I kept right on with the medicine and now I feel as well as I ever did and am working every day. That is what World's Tonic did for me. I could, as I have learned since, give you the names of half a dozen or more of my buddies in the mills who have been wonderfully helped by this remarkable new medicine." World's Tonic is sold by Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other first class drug stores. (A-56)

AWARD $25,000 FOR DOG BITES

BALTIMORE, March 6 (AP).—Grace Thomas, [illegible]-year-old daughter of George Thomas, was awarded a verdict for $25,000 damages in her suit for $75,000 against Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Joyner, neighbors and owners of dogs which were alleged to have attacked the youngster last March 14.

The award was made by a jury which heard testimony to the effect that Grace was playing on the sidewalk near the Joyner home when a dog ran out and attacked her. It was followed by five other dogs, it was testified, which also attacked the child and inflicted fourteen wounds.

PUPILS HONOR LONGMORE

Public schools in Bellevue closed at 2 p. m. today in respect to the memory of Burgess William J. Longmore, whose funeral services were held this afternoon in the Avalon United Presbyterian Church. Flags throughout the borough were at half mast.

A basket of flowers, purchased by the children of the schools, each of whom contributed a penny, was among the floral tributes banked around his casket in his home, 79 North Sprague avenue. It bore the words "From the Children of Bellevue."

The Rev. Dr. O. H. Milligan had charge of the funeral services in the church in which Mr. Longmore had been superintendent of the Sunday school for 30 years and a member of the session for a quarter of a century.

LINDY GLIDES OVER OCEAN

DEL MONTE, Cal. March 6—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh soared his silver Bowlus sail plane, the "Anne Lindbergh" for approximately two miles along the Monterey skyline of the Pacific Ocean yesterday, remaining aloft six minutes.

Lindbergh took off on his experimental flight, the first he has made since his arrival here, from the top of a 200-foot hill near the ocean shore five miles south of Carmel. He sailed out over the water, made several circles and glided south to land safely in a meadow when the wind failed. The sail plane was dismantled and returned to Del Monte.

Lindbergh announced he would attempt another flight today if weather conditions are favorable.

ECKENER LEANS TO BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, March 6—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf Zeppelin, trans-Atlantic dirigible, will survey Baltimore as a possible terminus for a regular oceanic air service, according to a letter received from the noted German airman by city officials. No date for the visit has been set.

Dr. Eckener's letter was in reply to an invitation extended by city authorities following the former's statement that Baltimore's position and climatic conditions made it an ideal spot for the location of an American terminus for a proposed oceanic air service. He made the observation after passing over Baltimore on the first trip made between Fredrichshafen and Lakehurst.

D. A. R. AWAITS PEPPER'S TALK

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(Universal)—Hundreds of letters attesting the enthusiasm with which the radio public is looking forward to the address tonight of George Wharton Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania, in the second of the series of D. A. R. patriotic addresses over the National Broadcasting System.

Senator Pepper will talk on "George Washington's Views and Their Value in Present Day Problems," his talk going to groups of D. A. R. members in special meetings all over the country. Nineteen stations are in the hookup for tonight's program. It will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The D. A. R.'s series of talks is designed, it was explained, "to stimulate in the minds of the American people the meaning of present-day tendencies in national and international thought." The program will be presented every Thursday night, the last program being scheduled early in June, with a prominent speaker at each event.

Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy, will be the speaker March 13, when he talks on "America's Need for Staunch Nationalism."

TONNAGE FALLS IN ANTHRACITE

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 6.—(AP.)—Anthracite coal production in Pennsylvania last year fell off approximately 1,500,000 tons from the 1928 tonnage.

Compilation by the Department of Mines of the reports for the year of the department's inspectors revealed the total 1929 tonnage as 73,076,596, as against the 1928 production of 74,552,312. The decrease was attributed to a lack of demand occasioned by the increased use of substitutes for domestic heating.

U.S. NEWSPAPER RAIDED IN CUBA

HAVANA, March 6—(AP)—Cuban secret police yesterday raided the Havana English language newspaper "The Havana American," destroying makeup forms and seizing 6,000 copies of "La Voz," a Spanish newspaper, which was making its bow to the public and which was being run off in the American plant.

John T. Wilford, publisher of the American, complained to Harry F. Guggenheim, American ambassador, and said he would file a formal protest with the embassy. He claimed the raiders had destroyed type and electro-type belonging to the American worth more than $10,000, but the police denied there had been any destruction.

The police version of the affair showed that their activity was directed against "La Voz," which was projected as an organ of the Nationalista Party. They said they had ample proof that the paper would publish declarations by Col. Carlos Mendieta, who is leader of the opposition to President Machado.

Wilford, who is an American citizen, for 20 years was editor of the Havana Post. He said he never had previous trouble with the authorities.

FATAL BOMBING QUIZ SPURRED

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., March 6—(AP)—Finding of a powder-filled can at Mitchellville near here started another intensive investigation into the New Year's day bombing at Seat Pleasant, in which a bride and her young brother and sister were killed.

Mitchellville was the home of Herman Brady, whose wife of a few weeks was the victim of the explosion of the gaily-wrapped bomb, and whose brother, Leroy Brady, is awaiting trial on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the bombing.

The crude bomb brought Detective Joseph Itzel of the Baltimore Police Department to Mitchellville and Upper Marlboro to continue the aid he already had given the Prince Georges County police in the case. J. Wilson Tyon, special prosecutor, said that the bomb does not resemble that which fatally injured the three members of Mrs. Brady's family.

Authorities at first were working on the theory that the bomb was an experimental one, manufactured while the crime was being planned.

SLASH ALIMONY FOR MORRIS

PARIS, March 6—(INS)—Nelson Morris, Chicago packing millionaire, today won a victory in his divorce battle with his wife, the former Mlle. Jane Aubert, Paris music hall star.

The Seine courts decided the $1,000 monthly alimony he has been paying to Mlle. Aubert is excessive, and ordered it reduced to $200.

Morris, however, lost out in his efforts to have the entire case moved to Chicago, claiming the French courts were incompetent to judge the litigation.

The judge ruled the affair would have to remain in the French courts, as the Chateau Vesinet, residence of Mlle. Aubert, had been given to the actress by Morris as an outright gift.

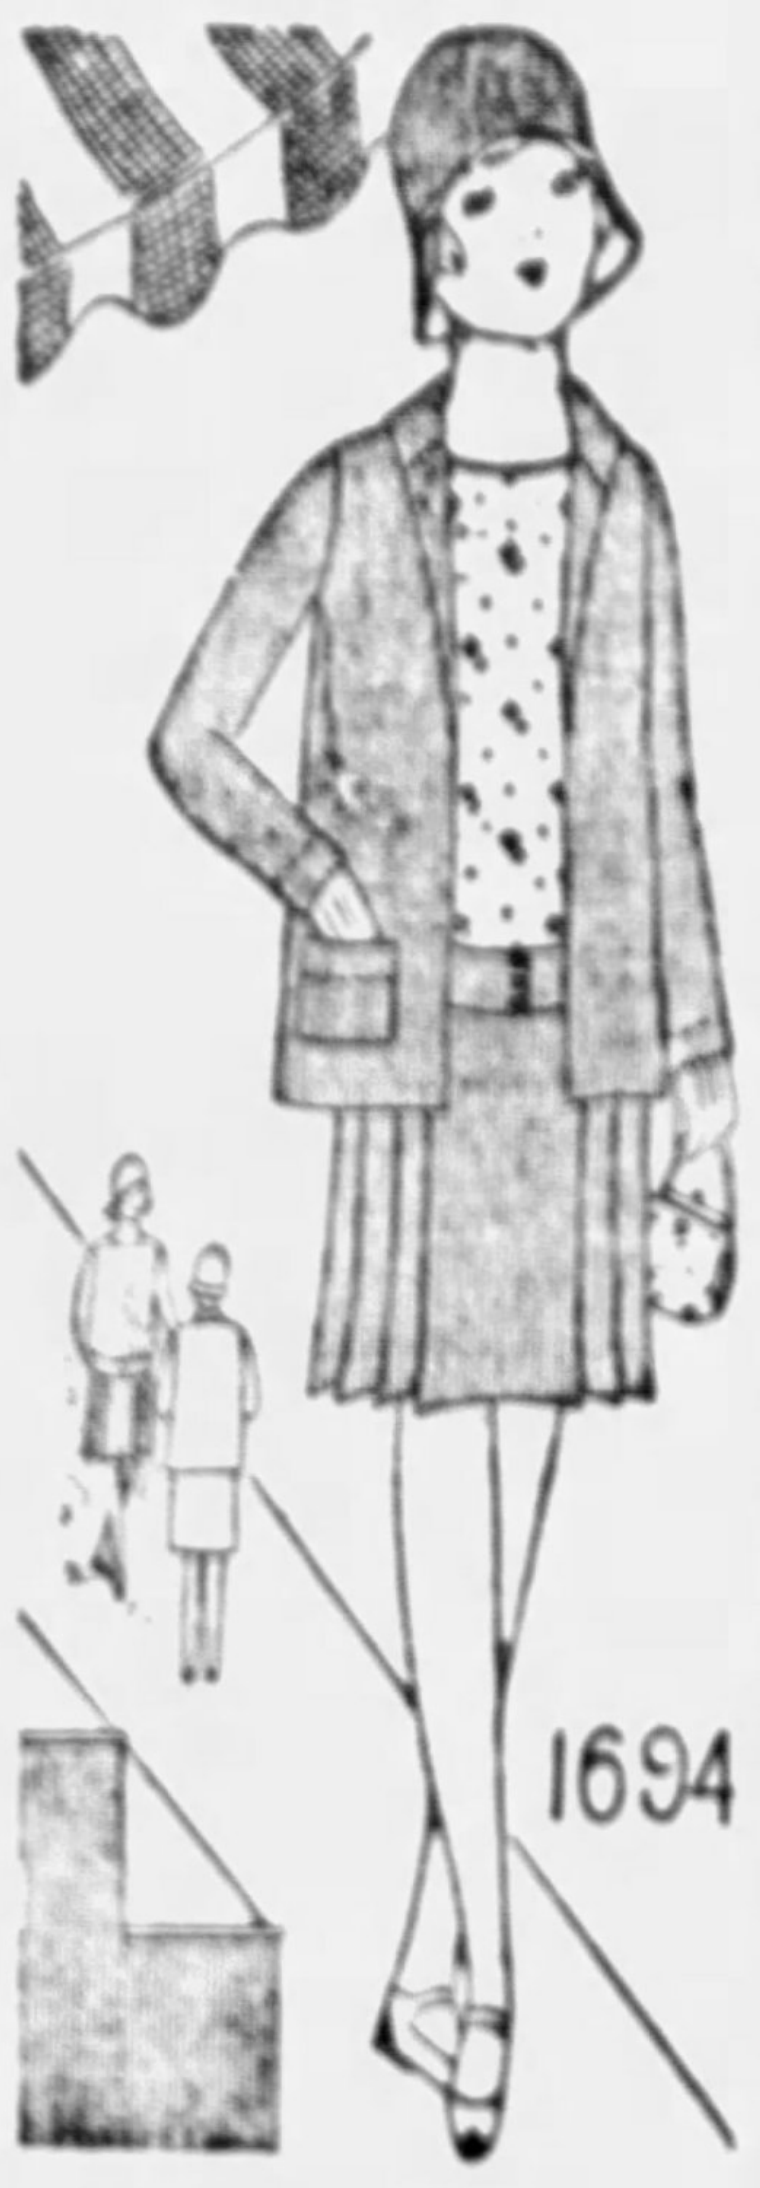
Chic Ensemble Easily Made for Miss

Pattern 1694

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS



The small girl is as smartly dressed this season as her mother and particularly so when she wears an ensemble consisting of skirt, blouse and jacket. The model sketched today is simple and therefore easily made at home. The sleeveless bodice, the pleated skirt and the straight coat are interesting features of the mode.

Pattern 1694 uses plain and printed fabrics such as pique, jersey, silk crepe or shantung. Yellow, orange and green shades are very popular for the spring and summer season.

May be obtained only in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards plain and 1¼ yards printed material each 40 inches in width.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our NEW SPRING BOOK of PATTERN STYLES is now ready. Price FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Wise Mother

Here are Edward and Raymond, husky young sons of Mrs. K. B. Garman, 5438 Irving St., Philadelphia. Their mother's experience shows what can be done to keep children robust. She says: "Since I found out how good California Fig Syrup is, I have kept some in the house. It always helps my boys. I give it for upsets or colds."

When your child's breath is bad; tongue is coated; or he is headachy, bilious, feverish, without appetite or energy, give him a little California Fig Syrup. See how its gentle cleansing helps a child. Appetite, digestion and assimilation improve. Stomach and bowels are toned and strengthened.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. Seven million bottles used a year proves its merit!

Single prescription made a family doctor famous

SELDOM has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than the one which Dr. Caldwell performed back in 1885 when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote this prescription as he found men, women, and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, poor appetite, or lack of energy, etc. And it invariably relieved these symptoms so much more pleasantly, so much quicker than other things, that his patients simply had to tell other people about it.

The demand for this prescription grew so fast that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use and supply drug stores with it. Today you can get the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, at all drug stores.

When you or your children suffer from any of the symptoms of constipation, it will pay you to remember this safe, pleasant-tasting, effective laxative; made only from herbs and other pure ingredients; a real corrective for constipation. A doctor's 47-year experience behind this formula!

500 REPORTED DEAD IN FLOOD

PARIS, March 6.—(INS.)—Between 500 and 700 persons lost their lives in the devastating floods which ravaged thousands of acres of Southern France, according to unconfirmed reports reaching here today.

A full checkup is impossible owing to severance of communications with many villages and towns in the affected area. Ten thousand persons have been made homeless.

Premier Andre Tardieu and President Gaston Doumergue leave Friday for an inspection of the flooded areas. It is expected Tardieu will ask an increase of the emergency fund for relief, the floods having reached the proportions of one of France's worst national disasters.

President Doumergue personally contributed $800 to the relief fund.

"FIRST A SHADOW, then a sorrow"
[Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, 1807-1882]

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"It's Toasted." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

AVIATION SHOW OPENS HERE TONIGHT

Many Outside Manufacturers To Attend; Ford de Luxe Ship Is One of Features

Pittsburgh's second annual aviation show opens tonight in Motor Square Garden. It will be the largest exhibition of aeronautical accessories and equipment ever shown here—twice as big as last year's show, according to the committee.

The show, sponsored by the Aero Club of Pittsburgh, has attracted manufacturers of airplanes and accessories from all parts of the country.

20 SHIPS ON DISPLAY

About 20 ships will be on display, including a tri-motored Ford de luxe club model with berth lounge chairs, kitchenette, writing desk, radio and other conveniences of a palatial yacht.

The huge Ford is the only multi-motored plane on exhibit and promises to attract considerable attention during the two weeks of the exhibition. This plane, displayed for the first time in Chicago, is the last word in luxurious accommodations in heavier-than-air craft.

Among the other models on display are Curtiss planes, Wacos, Fleet training ships, Travelairs and many other planes of open and cabin design.

TO SHOW PICKUP DEVICE

Another exhibit of interest is the Adams Airmail pickup device now being demonstrated before government officials at Washington.

This device, first tested in a practical way by Clifford Ball on the Pittsburgh-Cleveland route, has proved a valuable aid to airmail service, enabling the pilot to pick up a mail pouch on the ground without landing.

Greensburg Votes To Buy Playground

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Purchase of a playground in the Fifth Ward has been authorized by City Council. The plot contains one and one-half acres and will be bought for $8,200.

Scottdale Borough Raises Tax 4 Mills

Steel Coach Saves 100 Lives in Wreck

CHICAGO, March 6.—(INS)—More than 100 commuters were recovering today from a bad shaking up received when the last coach of a Rock Island suburban train leaped the track and turned over last night as the train was leaving a downtown station here.

Only the fact that the coach was all-steel and the train was proceeding slowly prevented a catastrophe, trainmen said.

Arrest Two Youths In Theft of Autos

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Edward Millstone, 20, and Joseph Gardner, 20, both of Pittsburgh, will be given a hearing here following their arrest in Chambersburg, Pa., on charges of stealing two automobiles. The third member of the party is still missing as is one stolen car.

State police assert the trio stole a new sedan in Pittsburgh Sunday night, drove it to Ligonier, wrecked and later abandoned it.

Damaged Propeller Ends Liner's Cruise

TOULON, France, March 6.—(AP.)—The French liner, France, which left Cannes with 180 passengers on a Mediterranean cruise, put in here today with a damaged propeller. Passengers were landed and sent to Algiers by way of Marseilles until the France can be repaired.

DRINK HOT TEA
FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of this Hamburg Tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and relieve grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

"Why Suffer INDIGESTION,"
Asked her physician

"Gas and 'sour' stomach can now be corrected without the use of burning, irritating soda, or vicious, habit-forming cathartics."

Calcium Carbonate, (2½ times as effective as soda) in tablet form, is the ideal anti-acid: sure, swift and positive in its relief, yet safe in its use. It is the only remedy which does not upset the acid equilibrium of the body and is incapable of overdosage.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are Calcium Carbonate in its best and most convenient form, blended with other valuable substances. That's why we urge their use as the only kind for children, and best for men and women.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. For example, Mrs. Ellen White says: "For years I suffered from indigestion. I got no relief from anything until I took Tanlac. After my fourth bottle, I feel like a new person and have a fine appetite."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you. Accept no substitute.

The World Series of 1912, in which the Boston Red Sox defeated the New York Giants after breaking a 10-inning tie in the eighth game, will be recalled by Phillips Carlin.

In the tenth inning of the eighth and final game the score was tied, 1-1. Murray, the Giant's left fielder, came in from his two bagger on a single by Merkle that Speaker somehow could not reach. When Boston came to bat the Giants led by one run.

Speaker drove in Engles, tying the score. Then, with one down and the bases filled, Gardner pulled a long sacrifice fly bringing Yerkes in with the winning run and victory for the Red Sox.

TECK-NEEK

The arrangement of instruments for the Ipana Troubadours' broadcast last night was different from any we've seen in a Pittsburgh studio. Saxes and the tuba were "up," drums and piano were far off side, trumpets and trombone were six feet back of the saxes.

What Shall I Do for Gray Hair?
By ALICE STRAWN

I am often asked for a good way to restore gray, faded or streaked hair. While there are many preparations on the market for the purpose, I know of nothing better than a mixture of good old sage tea and sulphur. You can either prepare the mixture at home yourself, or as most women prefer, buy it already prepared and ready to use.

The correct recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, may be had in Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound. All druggists carry it and since the cost is only 75c a bottle, there is really no need for any woman to go to the bother of preparing it herself. You would be surprised if you knew the number of men and women who employ Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur because its use is undetectable.

You simply moisten a comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears and another application or two sees your hair beautifully and evenly restored to its full original color. There is no suggestion of that hard, dyed look that repels fastidious women. I advise any woman—or man—whose hair is turning gray to try Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur.

Pennsylvania Doctor Tells How Flaxolyn Brings Wonderful All-Day Energy

Dr. John Paladino, 5152 Girard Avenue, Philadelphia

Dr. John Paladino's good nature and friendly spirit have made him one of the most popular family doctors in the City of Philadelphia.

For centuries Dr. Paladino's Italian ancestors have been great users of NATURAL medicaments. It is no wonder, then, that Dr. Paladino was very much impressed when he first inspected the Flaxolyn formula, containing many herbs, one of which (Gentian Roots) comes from the land of his people.

Dr. Paladino tried the pleasant Herbal Flaxolyn himself, and found its health-giving results EXCELLENT. He then recommended it with full assurance, FROM PERSONAL EXPERIENCE, that Flaxolyn can be depended upon to improve the health-tone of the body.

"I have had nothing but praise from those to whom I have advised Flaxolyn," says Dr. Paladino.

"Flaxolyn clears away the systemic poisons caused by sluggish elimination, it speeds the bile-secreting action of a lazy liver, it activates the flow of necessary digestive fluids. The blood, nerves and brain cannot help being aided by this internal cleansing and stimulation. The skin clears, dull eyes sparkle, sleep is more restful, and you get that wonderful all-day energy which can only exist in a well-regulated body.

Every pleasant spoonful of Flaxolyn contains vitamines equal to a tablet of yeast, as well as herb extracts, bile salts and valuable therapeutic ingredients approved by the highest medical authorities.

24 Hours a Day
FLAXOLYN
Helps Your Health

Flaxolyn is the servant of your body's Elimination System. With Flaxolyn's aid the stomach and intestines get a chance to win new strength. When Flaxolyn acts and drives out the putrid toxins, the blood is fed Power, not Poison. The liver and the nerves are also benefited through Flaxolyn. And best of all, Herbal Flaxolyn is as safe as the food you eat.

Perhaps you are not sick exactly. Just sluggish in the morning, no appetite at meal time, and subject to sleeplessness at nights. Not sick, possibly, but most likely on the way to being sick, if you disregard these annoying symptoms.

They are danger signals — worse trouble may be ahead.

If you are not at your best physically just see for yourself what Flaxolyn can do for you. It is one of Nature's most efficient herb remedies. It cleanses and tones, while acting as a healthful sedative to the nervous system.

What is best of all, Flaxolyn leaves no distressing after-effects. It activates, naturally and healthfully, the natural processes of stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

If you can use added strength and energy, a clearer head in the morning, more restful sleep at night, sharper appetite and more vigorous all-around health, start using Flaxolyn today. Thousands of users have found it of real benefit. Flaxolyn contains nothing that can hurt you.

Restores That Fresh Glow of Health to Your Skin

Beauty and health go hand in hand. Clear skin, fresh color, abounding vitality — these are the natural results of normally functioning vital organs and pure blood.

Sluggish intestines are a fatal enemy to good looks. They reduce vitality, dull the eye, cause skin irritations and sallowness. If they are impairing your beauty — and affecting your health—try Flaxolyn without delay.

Dr. Luntz's Two-Fold Guarantee

Tear This Out as a Valuable Reminder

1. The ingredients of Flaxolyn are of the highest quality money can buy. I personally guarantee they are safe and harmless.
2. Herbal Flaxolyn must do you good by the sixth pleasant spoonful, or return the partly-used bottle and get your money back.

The new Flaxolyn is being bought by the TRAINLOAD to supply the demand of health-seekers of this vicinity. Doctors are using it personally. It must be good. Clip this as a reminder to secure a bottle of Flaxolyn from the

Wedding Ends, Troubles Begin for Couple In Hollywood

By DOROTHY HERZOG

([illegible] 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 6.

IT was a day of the wedding, her first, his second. Mysterious telephone calls to the newspapers. Intimating something in the guise of a surprise headline would happen at the wedding.

The bridegroom heard about these messages. His suspicions prompted action. He asked for police protection.

Ethlyn Clair

The ceremony was 6 o'clock in a Bev Hills church. At 5 to 6 the bride-to-be arrived. The groom arrived. Nothing unusual. At 5 to 6 the doors were closed. And locked. Policemen stood with their backs to the door.

The wedding march. Down the aisle walked the bridesmaids down the aisle walked the bride-to-be with her father. Her father sat down. The ceremony. The minister knew of the mysterious 'phone calls. The groom's suspicions, and the police blocking the doors. He waited a few palpitant minutes before asking the familiar questions. If there is any one here who objects to this, etc., etc. Not a sound. They were declared man and wife.

Out of the church a child ragged, rushed to the groom. "Daddy." Buzz buzz buzz from spectators and friends. "Why don't you give my mamma money?" asked the child coached in the lines and obedient. A camera clicked. The groom placed the child on the ground, swung and knocked the camera from the clicker's hands. It broke.

The groom was later hailed into court on the charge of assault and battery. He was freed. He has matrimonial questions to answer in a short time before the judge, but the questions are neither melodramatic or unique.

Thus ends the wild and wooly scenario, a true one. Ask Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Westmore (Ethlyn Clair).

EATS WEDDING CAKE

Cecil B. DeMille

Richard was discovered diving into the box of wedding cake given individually to each guest.

"You shouldn't eat that," he was admonished. "That is to be put under your pillow, sleep on it, and the next morning your nicest dream will come true."

"Well," contended the four year old, "I'll eat it and sleep on it anyway!"

RAQUEL'S SISTER

THE James Cruze outfit has moved from the studio on Sunset to the Metropolitan ditto. A chap named Boles, production manager of a new film concern, has taken over the former Cruze lot. His organization is the Pan-American. Reene Torres—Raquel's sister—is under contract to star in Spanish outlouds. Perhaps an English one or two, also. Other players will soon be signed and tis expected a lively shooting program will get under way soon.

GOLF PROFESSIONAL TEACHING GAME TO ACTORS

Alex Morrison, the well-known golf professional, who has been seen on the stage on several occasions giving specimens of his wizardry with the driver and the mashie, was engaged by Schwab and Mandel to teach the intricacies of the game to every member of the cast and chorus of "Follow Thru," the musical comedy, which will come to the Alvin Monday night. The scenes are laid in and around a country club.

Girls, music and fun will be the predominating feature in the Nixon for a week, commencing next Monday, when "Vanity Fair," the latest of New York revues, will be seen. Heading the large cast is that musical comedy team, Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield.

The role of Mammy Pleasant in "The Cat and the Canary" will be played by Alice Ann Baker, when the production is presented by George Sharp in the Pitt next week.

OUTDOOR TALKIE

Warner Baxter and Catherine Dale Owen are co-featured in "Such Men Are Dangerous," all-talking romance based on Elinor Glyn's story, which comes to the Penn Monday. Albert Conti, Hedda Hopper, Claude Allister and Bela Lugosi are in the supporting cast.

"The Lone Star Ranger," all-talking version of Zane Grey's novel, and with George O'Brien and Sue Carol in the leading roles, comes to the Aldine Monday.

William Collier, Jr., and Alice Day are cast in the leading roles of "The Melody Man," which is current in the Olympic as the all-talking attraction.

FILM OPENS TODAY

"Song of the West," heralded as the "Covered Wagon" of talking pictures, comes to the Warner today. John Boles, Vivienne Segal, Joe E. Brown, Marion Byron and Sam Hardy are in the cast.

Nancy Carroll is supported by Richard Arlen, Warner Oland and Frances McDonald in "Dangerous Paradise," which comes to the Stanley screen tomorrow. On the stage, in addition to his regular Warner-Publix offering "Red Rhythm," Dick Powell will present "Fifteen Minutes of Whoopee," featuring the members of the Stanley band.

Henry Wadsworth, stage actor who is appearing with George Sharp's players in the Pitt currently, is cast in one of the supporting roles to Evelyn Brent and Clive Brook in "Slightly Scarlet," which comes to the Enright screen tomorrow.

Perfect Little Theater, Pride of Pittsburgh, Has Been Opened

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THE third of our local Little Theaters is now in operation. It is housed in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement. And it is remarkable because it has the best-equipped stage to be found in or around Pittsburgh. None of the big theaters has a stage equipment that will compare with this—and every student of the theater will find it worth his while to inspect its arrangements. For the first time there has been an appreciation of modern theatrical requirements on the part of an architect.

George Seibel

Many auditoriums have been built during recent years with provision for a "stage." In some cases the builders thought they had met the requirement by erecting a raised platform in a hole in the wall. Even the Schenley High School stage is little better than that.

STAGE IS MODEL

The stage at the experimental theater of Carnegie Tech Drama School is well equipped, and the stage out at the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. is fairly well equipped, but the stage of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement is a model for builders of professional theaters.

Louis Isaacs, who is director of this new playhouse, is to be congratulated upon having so perfect a plant. They opened it with a performance of "The Outsider," by Dorothy Brandon. They can do almost anything on that stage.

With an assistant director, a stage supervisor, a stage manager, a stage crew manager, a master carpenter, a master electrician, a master property man, a master flyman and a scenic artist to assist Louis Isaacs, he can have no excuse for giving anything but masterly productions.

DRAMA CONTEST COMING

Which brings to mind the fact that the annual play contest of the Pittsburgh Drama League is again approaching, and will be held out at the East Liberty Carnegie Library, as usual. In this contest every year the most ambitious of our local little theater groups have shown what they can do, each producing a one-act play, cash prizes and a fine trophy being the awards.

While the contests of the past have been unsatisfactory from several points of view—perhaps because the members of a jury cannot all be expected to enjoy the same good digestion and keen eyesight—there has been a splendid reward for everybody concerned in the general interest shown as well as the fine efforts put forth.

Those who attended the contests had an opportunity to become acquainted with some of the best one-act plays recently written, which the professional stage does not afford, especially since the passing of vaudeville.

Those who played had an opportunity to try their histrionic powers upon a mixed audience, one not composed of dear cousins and doting aunts.

The forthcoming contest ought to be the best yet held—if the contestants remember that "the play's the thing" and do not worry about awards, past or future.

OTHER LITTLE THEATERS

Little Theaters everywhere are growing in popularity and influence. Gilmor Brown, of the Passadena Community Playhouses, divides them into four groups: professionalized art theaters like those in Cleveland and Chicago; experimental theaters like the Provincetown experiment; little theaters catering to smaller communities or sections; university and school theaters.

These diminutive centers of drama attempt some very ambitious things. Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" and Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" have been among the dramas elaborately produced at Pasadena.

Of course this means work, unremunerated work in many cases, by the people engaged. But work in a beloved art is really play.

Enright Organist To Feature "Chickie"

Cyril Guthoerl, new organist in the Enright, will feature the theme song of the Sun-Telegraph's serial story, "Chickie," in his organlogue in the East Liberty playhouse, beginning tomorrow.

It is "Chickie, You're Still My Sweetheart," which was composed by Jay Mills and Dick Powell, masters of ceremonies in the Enright and Stanley, expressly for the Sun-Telegraph. It received instant recognition locally and is being published nationally in the near future.

The Hahn stores have never made price the main appeal. It is the conviction of the executives of this business that people appreciate quality .... that they desire the finer types of furniture! Furniture that cannot be sold with an assurance of long-time service is furniture which is of questionable value, at any price. So this 16th Anniversary, opening Saturday, has its chief appeal in the beauty, correctness of style and workmanship of its offerings. TESTIMONY

I HAVE been wrong and I will take the blame,
You made a proper move in leaving me;
I was a novice in a skillful game,
I was a tyrant loath to set you free.

I wanted each fleet minute of your day,
And all the love you had or none at all;
Freedom was dear and you would not obey,
Soon then, there stood a high dividing wall.

Are two who for a brief ecstatic spell,
Placed love and beauty far ahead of pride,
Until the fever died—and one grew well.

If it was wrong to chain you—keep you near,
Then being wrong is very sweet, my dear!

—Romeo.

FUNNY ENOUGH

A NEW member at the Friars' Club was being shown around the Monastery. They had never seen anything like him before and were just as amazed as he probably was. He had on the trickiest suit, with a belt in the back, a noisy tie with a million colors, blue socks, tan shoes and a purple kerchief sticking out of his top coat pocket.

"Who the deuce is that bird?" queried Bugs Baer.

"He does a comedy act with a partner," said someone.

"Gosh!" gasped Bugs. "Does he need a PARTNER?"

HE'S A BAER!

The same afternoon Bugs was stopped by Rube Bernstein, who kept burlesque breathing for many years. "I am going to write a play," said Rube.

"That so," replied Bugs. "Whose gonna correct your English?"

CAPSULE CRITICISM

ADDED to our Crisp Cracks From Critical Cusses Dep't., is the unnamed reviewer's report on a New York magician who was touring the hinterland for three-night engagements, giving the whole show himself. The drama-defender in one of the villages briefly chronicled: "New York sent us one of its alleged magicians again last night. He was so good he made this critic disappear within 15 minutes."

ME, TOO!

I've lost some great and stylish friends,
I'm glad as I can be;
The strain of living up to them—
Was nearly killing me.

—Rebecca McCann.

NEWSPAPER STUFF

THE "re-write men" on the newspapers are the lads who really write the news reported over the telephone by reporters who were "on the scene," and by the wire services. One of them paused on a story yesterday and chirped:

"Gee! When I think of my salary I get sick. The vice president of the country gets $15,000 a year for doing nothing!"

"Oh, I dunno," piped a copyreader. "You never heard of a re-write man getting that much!"

"No?" was the vicious rejoinder. "How about the Broadway columnists on this sheet?"

SOUNDS LIKE HIM

WHEN "The Music Box" was young, the stars of one of the early revues were Willie Collier and the late Sam Bernard. Mr. Bernard got sick or tired or something and resigned. He was replaced by Solly Ward, who up to this time had taken no part in anything much but burlesque.

Came the Yuletide and Mr. Ward was filled with a desire to present Mrs. Ward with a gift that befitted his new position in the theater. "Mr. Collier," he said one night, "my wife has worked hard. She looks after our apartment, goes to the market every day and does all the cooking in a tiny little kitchen. I'd like to get her a nice Christmas present and I thought you might suggest something."

"Why not get her a bigger kitchen," suggested Collier.

HEHEHEH

Up at the Casino in Central Park they were playing that delightful tune called "What Is This Thing Called Love, That Phony Thing Called Love?" when one wag observed: "Yeh, yeh. It's love that makes the world go round—with that pained expression."

REPARTEE

WHEN Robert C. Benchley returned from the movie sector he immediately went to a party over on Park avenue and during the evening someone said: "Oh, let me think. What was the name of that ham actor in Hollywood?"

And Benchley replied: "Yeah. And what was the name of that piece of coal at Newcastle?"

OLD, BUT GRAND!

Jolson used it in "The Honeymoon Express" over a dozen years ago, but no matter, it remains funny. You veteran theatergoers probably remember it. The Twentieth Century, which refunds so much coin to passengers for every hour it is late, was speeding to New York from Chicago and was 30 minutes behind schedule.

Suddenly the train stopped because a flagman had waived his red lantern at it. The officials on the train breathlessly rushed up to him and cried: "Good heavens! Why did you stop us? We're 30 minutes late as it is?"

"That's just it," replied the scolder, "where have you been?"

MUSIC HELPS HEROINE AND LAW GET THEIR MEN IN OLYMPIC

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Melody Man," a music and talk picture that is a bit different from the usual entertainment of this type, opened in the Olympic yesterday. It is really a bout between jazz and classical music, with a murder and a manhunt introduced to give it dramatic strength. And its "punch" angle lies in a rhapsody which leads to a murderer's apprehension many years after the crime is committed.

The film opens in color, and in Vienna. A young composer is playing his new rhapsody. The music is impressive—and so is the scene, with Franz Josef, emperor of Austria, in the background. When the music stops, the composer pauses long enough to get a pat on the head from Franz Josef and then hurries home to tell his wife all about it. Then—boom, comes the tragedy. Wife is with another man. Shots are fired. Away flees the composer with his baby daughter. But the police of Vienna never forget.

The next reel pushes the clock ahead 15 years. New York is the scene. Baby daughter is now a young woman. She loves the leader of a jazz orchestra. But the composer, an old man now, hates jazz tunes and frowns on her romance. Later, however, he becomes reconciled to it.

But the "blues skies" aren't for long. Again, it is that old rhapsody! It is the means by which the law of Vienna finally gets its man. But the heroine gets hers, too. So it is a sort of bluebird-blackbird finale.

William Collier, Jr., and Alice Day portray the romantic leads. But it is John St. Polis, as the old music man, who is the "star" of the cast.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Mothers

Be On Your Guard Against the Bone-Softening Disease Common to Young Children

Bow legs and knock knees are the result of rickets (bone-softening disease), and but few young children escape from at least a mild attack.

Most mothers know that vitamin-rich cod liver oil is a wonderful corrective and preventive of rickets, and they also know how difficult it is to coax their children to take the disagreeable, fishy-tasting, greasy liquid form long and regularly enough to insure complete and lasting benefit.

A Remarkable Scientific Discovery

Parents of rickety, delicate, slow-growing boys and girls surely will be glad to learn that McCoy's Laboratories, Inc., of New York City, have discovered a method of separating cod liver oil's vitamins from its unpleasant oily part and putting them full strength and volume into tablets, without odor or taste.

Two of these wonderful tablets—called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets—are equal to one teaspoonful of the pure, vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil from which they are made. That means that they are equally rich in the great body-building vitamin A and the marvelous "sunshine" vitamin D. Genuine cod liver oil extract is their only ingredient—no harmful or habit-forming drugs, no inert medicines, no temporary "pick-me-ups."

Benefits the Whole Family

For any sick, anemic, rundown or underweight condition for which cod liver oil is known to be beneficial, you will find it just as safe, just as beneficial and far more pleasant to take or give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets instead. Not only children, but weak, pale men and women, aged people, invalids and convalescents are likewise benefited by their regular daily use. 60 tablets, 60 cents at any drugstore. © McC. LABOR HEAD ASKS TOWN HALL AT ONCE

UNEMPLOYED NEED WORK, HE SAYS

Employment of Foreign Labor on Project Opposed; Unionism Not Considered

Immediate construction of the Town Hall as a step towards relieving the unemployment situation was advocated today by F. E. Rust, secretary of the Building Trades Council.

"Of 22,000 men employed in the building trades in the Pittsburgh district," said Mr. Rust, "40 per cent are now out of work. This has been determined by a careful check-up just made by the American Federation of Labor.

HELP UNEMPLOYED

"The Town Hall would furnish employment to 200 or 300 men for two years. Such an opportunity to provide jobs is not to be despised."

Mr. Rust said that, inasmuch as the people had voted $6,000,000 to pay for the auditorium, to build it now would serve a double purpose—it would carry out the citizens' wishes as expressed at the polls and at the same time contribute towards the solution of a serious economic problem.

"But it should be clearly understood," he said, "that only citizens of Allegheny County should be employed on the building. It is a shame the way outside workers—Mexicans and Southern Negroes—are brought here for municipal work when competent workers living and paying taxes here, and with families here requiring their support, are out of jobs.

BARS FOREIGN LABOR

"You will find outsiders employed on street and road work, on bridges and other public improvements. We have made an official protest to the County Commissioners and have a meeting pending with the Mayor to lay the same matter before him."

Mr. Rust said that no question of trades unionism was involved in the demand for the building of the Town Hall at once and with Pittsburgh labor.

"We speak," he said, "as citizens and taxpayers."

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

A FEW years ago Roy Jansen gathered what is probably the most unusual symposium ever composed about Pittsburgh. He wrote to notables in the four corners of the world asking for opinions and facts. He learned that those farthest from home had the most to say, were always anxious to reminisce. He found, for instance, that George Nicolas Ifft, American consul in Ghent, Belgium, was once the reporter-telegraph editor-city editor of the old Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, and that in Charleroi, Belgium, a steel town, the fame of Pittsburgh's steel was a byword . . . That an Indiana (Pa.) boy, James Loder Park, then 32, was American vice consul in Aden, Arabia, and wondering from there what the Hall Room Boys (a comic strip) were doing in the Pittsburgh Sun . . . That Clifford B. Marshall, son of Traffic Inspector Ben Marshall, was one of 1,000 Americans living in Madras, India . . .

That in September, 1927, the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, of the Second Presbyterian Church, spoke to the Whitefield Men's Club in London on "What Is America Thinking of Today?" . . . That in Pernambuco, Brazil, they spoke of Pittsburgh as the city which sent them interesting radio programs and that the American consul there, Nathanial P. Davis, remembered us because his father was born here . . . That Pittsburgh was favorably known in Foochow, China, because a Pittsburgh missionary, Miss Jennie Adams, had worked among the Chinese poor there for 25 years . . . That Frederick Schaeffer, head of the Schaeffer Equipment Company, of Pittsburgh, returned frequently to his native Stavanger in Norway and made substantial donations to local institutions . . .

THAT in Singapore, Pittsburgh suggested Heinz products and Mellon Institute . . . That the late Col. Thomas J. Keenan owned a marble fountain and many acres near Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, off Cuba . . . That Welch Hall at Carnegie Tech was named for a graduate, William Fuller Welch, killed in the World War and son of a local notable at San Luis Potosi, Mexico . . . That U. Grant Smith, attached to the United States legation at Montevideo, Uruguay, had a sense of humor because he said that Pittsburgh was known there simply because it was near Washington, Pa., where Mr. Smith happened to be born . . .

I SAID—'CAUSE IT'S NEAR WASHINGTON PA !

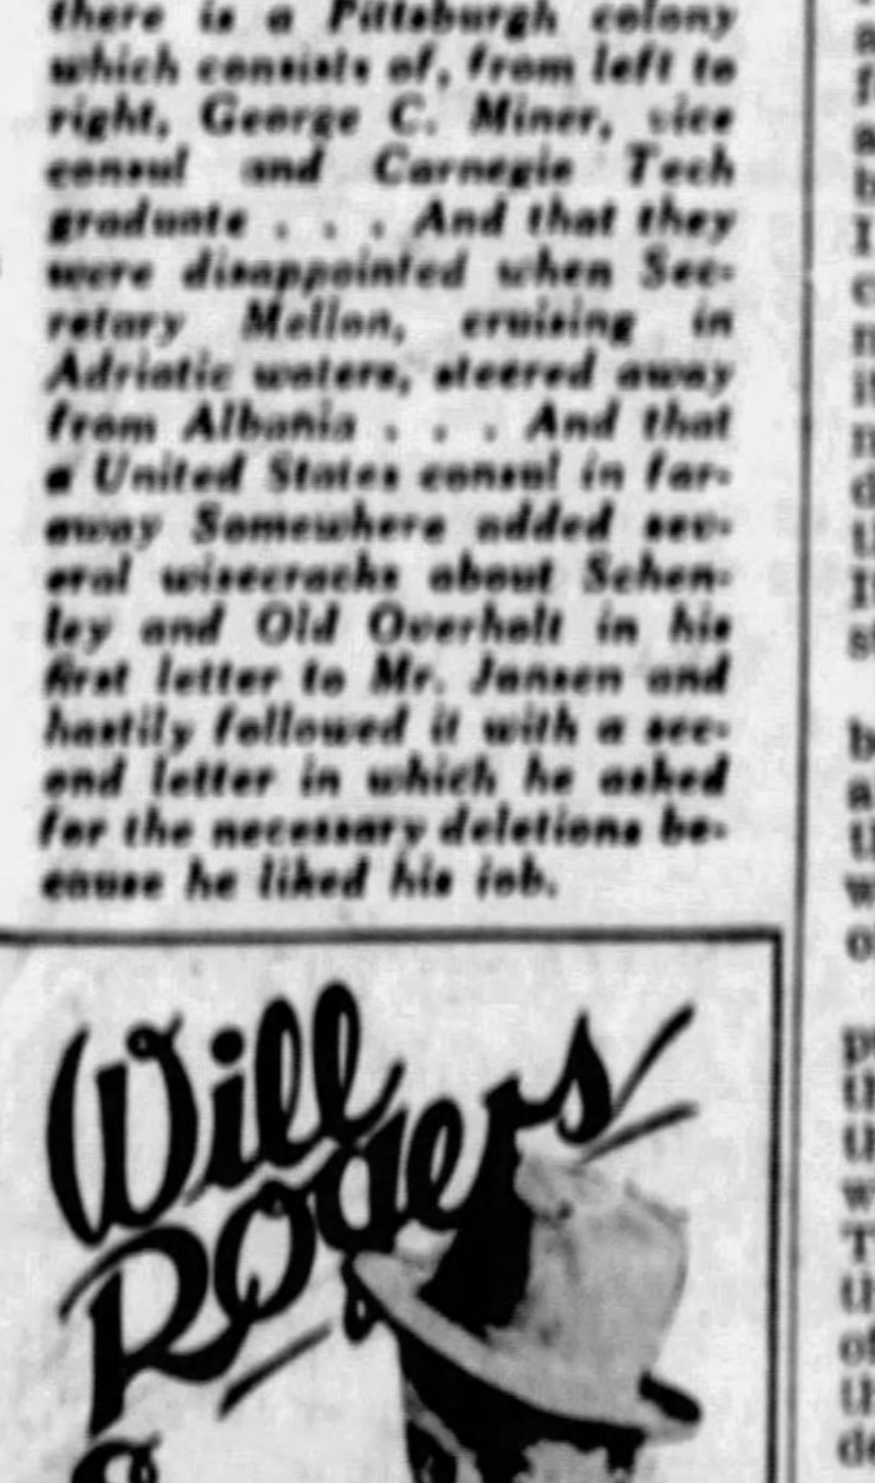
That in Tirana, Albania, there is a Pittsburgh colony which consists of, from left to right, George C. Miner, vice consul and Carnegie Tech graduate . . . And that they were disappointed when Secretary Mellon, cruising in Adriatic waters, steered away from Albania . . . And that a United States consul in far-away Somewhere added several wisecracks about Schenley and Old Overholt in his first letter to Mr. Jansen and hastily followed it with a second letter in which he asked for the necessary deletions because he liked his job.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 6.

THE WETS have just shown that you can get a drink, and it's bad for the country. Now the drys start and will show that you can't get a drink and it's good for the country.

In the meantime, there is at least ninety million living in the country that it's not affecting in any way, and that wish both sides would shut up and go to work.

If papers announced that they would quit printing what either side said, the ninety million would feel so relieved that they would celebrate with a grand spree and then sober up for the rest of their lives.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Roosevelt Almost Injured Because of Prank

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER II.

THE importance of the President was brought home to me shortly afterwards, in a manner which Q described as being "most strikingest!" We had been playing in the attic. This was the heaven of the White House. Despite fire and structural hazards, the original architects and builders of the presidential mansion deserve a vote of thanks from the Gang for this attic. Until modernized by the Coolidges, it was the father of all attics in America.

It had great, wide spaces and distances; no cleaning could remove the musty smells, nor the occasional cobwebs and spiders; it was crammed full of mysterious stuff. When you stopped to think of it all, little tremblings ran up and down your spine, because this had been the prime roosting-place for all occupants of the White House, since the beginning. Parts of it were always dark, and these we sometimes explored with flashlights. Better than all, for practical purposes of play, there were cedar-chests, some empty, some full, and all—to make assurance doubly sure—smelling of moth-balls as well as cedar. It was a thrilling experience, that of opening one of these chests, with only a flashlight to examine its contents.

Several open knife-switches controlled the attic lights. In the late winter afternoons, the place was never wholly light, and it was a favourite trick for someone to "douse the glim," and throw this entire cavern of an attic, into utter darkness. The experience was thrilling, because it was scarey. Every member of the Gang was afraid to be afraid, and there would be a sort of rough-house until someone located the switch again. It was a trick, too, to get to it with your fingers without, also, getting a shock.

President Foiled

Almost Hurt When Lights Are Put Out

At times, TR would make a break in his official afternoon, in order to play with us. On the occasion I am recalling, he suddenly appeared in his shirt-sleeves, his frock-coat dangling from his arm. It was our signal for flight. He threw the coat away and chased us, growling ferociously. I was hiding behind a post, and beheld Sailor Chew being closely pursued by TR. I saw that he was going to be caught, and, at the same moment, saw the switch. I pulled it; there was immediate darkness, followed by wild shrieks of delight from the Gang. Just then we heard a loud smack. It was that irresistible President striking an immovable post.

"By George! By George" TR bellowed from the center of the attic. "Lights! Lights! Turn on the lights! This is worse—worse—than anything I've heard of in darkest Africa!"

Proud of my cleverness, I pushed back the switch—to see the President leaning against the pillar, some 10 feet away, with his hand over his face. There was a nail in the side of the post, just about the height of his eyes; it was a miracle that he had not struck it. Suddenly, I felt faint.

"When a block of wood meets a block of wood, there's bound to be a headache," TR said, cheerfully enough. "I'm quite all right. But never, n-e-v-e-r, never again, turn off a light when anybody is near a post!"

Nearly Smothered

Rescued From Chest by President Roosevelt

With that, he left us, and went downstairs to bathe his face. Then the Gang descended upon me. I should be punished for my thoughtlessness, and lectured with the new knowledge they—together with myself—had just acquired. I felt the justice of their remarks sufficiently to get fighting mad. My fists flew out, and there was much kicking and hairpulling until, smothered by bodies, arms and legs, I was carried, still protesting, to the nearest cedar-chest. The Gang threw me into it, shoved me down, and sat on the lid.

At first, the moth-balls were pungently pleasant; then things began to get hotter and hotter, and it was not so easy to breathe. I kicked on the inside of the lid with my toes, and hammered away with my fists, to which the Gang responded, by drumming their heels on the outside of the chest, which effectually dinned out my noises on the inside. I was gasping for air, and rather frightened. Inside the chest it was as black as the grave, except for some queer, electric flashes before my eyes. I exerted all my strength, trying desperately to lift the lid. The Gang sat tight. I was suffocating.

Suddenly the lid opened, and TR looked down into my face. He was quick with his handkerchief, too, wiping my face, and almost as quick to say: "He's broken out in a sweat! The moth-balls have got into his eyes, and made them water!" This he said, to explain his wiping away my tears, which I thought was fine of him.

'Monocles'

Watch Crystals Used to Imitate Diplomat

"Shutting up boys in cedar-chests for more than 60 seconds," TR said, "is strictly forbidden—henceforth!"

"Henceforth!" the Gang echoed. Quentin added, "For evermore!" and swore, "By buzzard!" Buzzard was the great golden eagle, flashing his wings atop the flagpole, which rose from the roof on which we often played.

Somewhere in these upper regions there was a skylight opening, through which we could look down into the main hall of the living quarters, on the second floor. I remember how, from this point of vantage, we once saw Mrs. Roosevelt sitting at a tea-table, directly under the skylight. Beside her sat an Italian diplomat, wearing his monocle, and balancing his teacup in his hand. Another guest—an army officer—sat facing them, and we could see the bright yellow cavalry stripe on his blue trouser-leg. The Italian's monocle convulsed us. Our own monocles—crystals from old watches—were promptly brought into service, and, thus adorned, we lined up along the edge of the skylight, to watch our diplomat and copy his gestures. Quentin—softly at first—began to talk what he fondly imagined to be Italian. The syllables were too contagious for us to remain silent, and soon we were all gibbering away, louder and louder.

Boys Incensed

Angered When Plumbers Order Them Away

"Quentin!" Mrs. Roosevelt called, and four small boys, each with a glittering monocle in his eye, and suddenly brought back to earth, stared down from the edge of the skylight. The Italian opened his eyes in astonishment, and dropped his eyeglass into his tea! We could not restrain a shout. The Italian threw back his head and laughed with us, and said: "Mrs. Roosevelt, I beg of you to command those monkeys to come to tea, with those things in their eyes? Later, we watched him drive away, grinning to himself, as Q said, "like a cheetah," probably very delighted that he had an authentic White House story to tell, even though it were on himself.

Years later, a member of the Boy Modeler, Architect After Overcoming Odds

SAMUEL LINTON OVER HIS DRAUGHTING BOARD

LINTON MODELING AT HIS IDLEWOOD STREET HOME

BOY, 19, FINDS LIFE FILLED

A plaster modeler, an architect's apprentice, with a prize sketch to his credit, a choir singer, a stage scenic painter, a normal, happy 19-year-old boy.

Samuel Linton, 7147 Idlewild street, Homewood, is all of these. He taught himself, working against odds. When he was a little boy, infantile paralysis held him in bed for many months. When the disease left him, it seemed Sammy would be a cripple for life.

Supervised exercise and plenty of determination finally raised the lad from his wheel-chair. He went to high school—Schenley—with only a slight limp. He graduated last June.

AIDS DRAUGHTSMAN

Since then, Sammy has been working as junior draughtsman in the architectural office of Edward B. Lee, Chamber of Commerce Building. Five nights a week, he goes to Carnegie Tech, and studies architecture. The other two, he sings in the choir of the Schenley Heights Methodist Episcopal Church.

It was only a little while ago that Sammy heard of the competition for the best steel-frame house design by a Pittsburgh architect. He entered, took third prize against older, more experienced men. Fifty dollars, awarded him, helped, he says.

MODELS MEDALLION

To visitors Sammy shows a clay tablet he is cutting. He is helping a fellow-worker do a model of a medallion being designed for the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber wanted to award a medal to the architects doing the best commercial building, the best institutional building, the best home, of each year. Then they wanted a medal. So they started a contest. A colleague entered, Sammy is doing the model.

At high school, he did scenery for the stage shows.

Sammy Linton is getting along pretty well, thank you.

HAVANA, March 6.—(AP.)—Harry F. Guggenheim, United States ambassador to Cuba, showed the Cubans how to do their native dance, the "Danzon," last night and thereby won first prize in a dancing contest.

The contest at which Ambassador Guggenheim displayed his dancing prowess was a charity ball and his several hundred competitors were Cubans. As a result of his winning in a Cuban contest he was today termed by Cuban newspapers as being "Aplatanado"—with having taken root in Cuba and with having become a Cuban.

At the end of the evening the ambassador donated $5,000 toward the drive against tuberculosis.

Police today reported they were holding Martin P. Farrell, 21, of 5900 Harvard street, in connection with the robbery Tuesday night of the Fournier gasoline station, at Baum boulevard and Negley avenue.

200,000 Children to Aid In Clean Up Week

Pittsburgh school children again will take part in the fourth annual "clean up, paint up and plant up," campaign of the Chamber of Commerce which is to be started in the city and county April 27. It is expected that more than 200,000 children will be enlisted in the war on dirt.

Last year the campaign is said to have saved the municipal governments of the county and householders approximately $1,500,000 in spring cleaning bills. Charles Lonley, chairman of the life and property protection committee of the chamber, will direct the campaign.

Already a contest is under way in the city high schools for the drawing of the best poster to be used during the campaign.

CENSUS TO LIST CITY'S GOODS

The census is being made with the co-operation of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Four enumerators are already at work and 26 more will be started within the next few weeks.

The census this year is part of the national program in connection with the population census. McGinley is also in charge of the census of manufacturers, which closes March 15. He stated the distribution census was to ascertain where various manufactured goods are used and in what quantity.

The enumerators will visit every type of shop, except those dealing primarily in service, such as gasoline stations and pressing and cleaning establishments, asking questions on the types of product retailed.

ELEVATOR GATE LAW STUDIED

Councilman Robert J. Alderice and Director of Public Safety James M. Clark will confer today on a proposal to delay enforcement of a city ordinance requiring interlocking electric gates on the cabs and shafts of elevators.

H. L. Ley, head of building inspection, has issued orders that property owners must comply with the ordinance within 90 days, the cause of his order being a casualty in a downtown elevator.

J. W. Bamford, head of the Building Owners and Managers' Association, appearing yesterday in Council, reminded that body of an agreement that the ordinance should not be enforced for five years. It will take that time, Bamford maintained, for the buildings with hydraulic elevators to install the required equipment.

"The installment on hydraulic elevators of the required new equipment might be more serious than to leave it off for the present," he said.

Bamford told of the efforts being made by his association to comply with the order and offered an unofficial cooperation with Ley in his efforts to enforce it.

"Two million people a day are carried on elevators and our percentage of injuries is remarkably low," he said.

Alderdice, presiding, was asked to take up the case with Ley. The latter said his orders came from Director Clark.

Sun-Telegraph's Tabloid Tells Aero Show Doings

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Aircraft Show Extra took its place as a feature of the second annual Pittsburgh Aircraft Show in Motor Square Garden, today. Printed at the show, the Extra, in tabloid form, is given free to every patron of the Aircraft Show. A miniature newspaper plant, complete in every respect, is maintained for the publishing of the tabloid.

A reportorial staff gathers the news of the show. A city editor selects the best features and writes the heads. His desk is in Booth 47. The material is "made up" and is printed on a Miller High Speed Press in Booths 32 and 33.

The regular daily "press run" will approximate 10,000 copies a day. The newspapers are distributed free by newsgirls, costumed as fliers.

The stories, humorous in character, are confined entirely to news of the show and of the exhibitors and famous personages at the show. Boxes have been set up at the city editor's desk for contributions.

Come to the Aircraft Show. See the greatest little newspaper in the city. Watch it being printed. Get your copy of this remarkable offspring of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and understand why, like its parent paper, it "Tells It First!"

DR. J. P. KERR DECLINES KLINE'S BID TO OPPOSE LESLIE

MAYOR SEEKING STATE SENATE CANDIDATE

Surgeon Is Unable to Give Time to Public Office; James L. Lloyd Pushed

Dr. J. P. Kerr, widely known surgeon and member of the staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, has rejected proposals made by friends of Mayor Kline to become a candidate against State Senator M. G. Leslie, who is expected to seek re-election.

Dr. Kerr was reported to have told the Mayor's emissaries that the proposal was impossible, as he lives in Dormont, outside the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District, and besides, would mean a sacrifice of time too badly needed for his medical practice.

KLINE SEEKS CANDIDATE

Kline is said to be determined to place a candidate in the field against Leslie, and some of the Mayor's friends believe the aspirant should come from the South Side to neutralize the strength of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, said to be favorable to Leslie.

A candidate appeared in the field yesterday when nominating petitions were put in circulation for James L. Lloyd, of the Nineteenth Ward, chief clerk in the Civil Service Commission's office. He said he did not authorize the petitions.

LLOYD'S FRIENDS BUSY

Lloyd's supporters declared he has made hosts of friends during his employment with the commission and, if indorsed by the Mayor, would be a serious threat to Leslie's candidacy.

Lloyd is a son of Mrs. John T. Lloyd, former Republican vice chairman of the Seventeenth Ward and political lieutenant of Controller Daniel Winters.

Reports were current today that Samuel J. Reno, Republican chairman of the Nineteenth Ward, may be the candidate to oppose Senator Leslie. Reno was among those to whom the Mayor has made no commitment.

DONNELLEY OUT FOR CONGRESS

M. D. Donnelley, of the Fifth Ward, took out nominating petitions today as a Democratic candidate for Congress from the Thirty-fourth District, according to Democratic County Chairman David Lawrence.

Donnelley was discharged by Mayor Charles H. Kline last January from a city tax assessor's job on account of his close association with former President of Council James F. Malone.

Congressman P. J. Sullivan, who represents the Thirty-fourth District, is threatened with Republican opposition by P. J. O'Malley, of Auditor General Charles Waters' office, and by former Congressman John M. Morin.

Lawrence said he had authorized the circulations for the Democratic state ticket headed by Sedgwick Kistler, of Clinton County, for United States Senator, and Lawrence Rupp, of Lehigh County, for Governor.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Detroit officials, faced with a seasonal labor surplus are discharging alien labor and retaining American born. What is your opinion of this policy?

Paul Coleman

PAUL COLEMAN, South Hills, secretary: "I may be prejudiced as my ancestry for several generations have been citizens of this country, but I believe that American born should have rights and privileges above foreign born, especially those aliens who have made no move to secure citizenship. This question is of current interest and should be carefully considered by the American public."

G. W. G. Snyder

G. W. G. Snyder, East End, manager: "I feel American born should have the preference over alien labor. Of course, in many cases some of the most skilled labor is found among aliens. This condition throws new light on the subject and allows room for argument. If we find that American workers can produce as good a quality of work as the aliens then, in my opinion, the American worker should have the favor."

Miss Blyth

RUTH BLYTH, East End: "Everybody must live and attempt to secure all the enjoyment he possibly can. It is not a pleasant duty to inform anybody that his services are no longer required but when this must be done, I am in favor of retaining the American born and discharging the aliens. After all our country owes the sons and daughters of its founders more than it does aliens who have nothing to do with our development."

Stevenson Todd

STEVENSON TODD, East End, sales manager: "I'm in favor of such a policy. Those aliens who came to this country did so on their own prerogative. If they get a bad 'break' and lose their jobs it can't be helped. When a labor surplus is present American born labor shouldn't be discharged simply to make room for the foreigners. A father wouldn't permit his children to starve while he gives food to a strange visitor."

Gus Mach

GUS MACH, North End, service manager: "Retain the American born workers by all means. They are the real backbone of this country of ours—Not a lot of aliens who, in many cases, only came to the United States to make sufficient money with which to establish themselves in their native land. An American laborer would have no chance to get a job in the majority of European countries. The alien has enough prosperity here now, so why worry about him."

T. A. Nunez

T. A. NUNEZ, store manager: "If aliens have made any attempt to secure citizenship they should have the same rights as other workers and should not be discriminated against. The reverse should be true if they have made no effort to prepare themselves for a life as a citizen of the United States. Our industry needs foreign born labor and demands it even if the municipal authorities of Detroit have discovered a labor surplus."

NEED CLOTHES FOR POOR

A call for donations of shoes and clothing for poor children was issued today by Maj. Richard H. Ives, local commander of the Volunteers of America. According to the major, many calls for clothing and shoes for poor children have come to his association recently.

Donations may be left at the Volunteers' building, 724 East Diamond street, North Side, or the Volunteers will pick them up if telephoned.

ZONE CHANGES EXAMINED

Council plans to visit the East Liberty district to decide on changing the zoning of the Harvard street territory.

The cause of their visit is an ordinance changing the district from a residence to a commercial section. It is bounded by Harvard street, the present commercial district to the south, Whitfield street and the property of the Dollar Savings Company.

The Planning Commission approves the ordinance, but the residents of the district wish it extended. At the same meeting Council approved a change from residence to commercial of the northeast corner of Chatsworth and Tullymet streets, disapproved by the commission, but approved by the residents.

ASK NEW NAME FOR AVENUE

Beltzhoover avenue is to be Tulane avenue, if residents on that street are to have their way.

A delegation, for which Mrs. Katherine Williams was spokesman, appeared to ask the change in council yesterday. Members of the delegations suggested that the name be changed to "Tulane", one of the women suggesting the street be named after a New Orleans thoroughfare.

"I know if I lived on the street I'd liked to have it changed," said Councilman Robert J. Alderdice.

"It is hard for anyone to understand on a telephone," said Mrs. Williams. "We have to spell it when we give orders in the stores and some of the girls can't make a 'z'," said another member of the delegation.

Louise Graff Becomes Bride at Ceremony This Afternoon

EVEN if there weren't a hint of spring in the air, in spite of this belated visit of old man winter, we'd know the romantic season was not far off, now that so many wedding dates are being named, and now that a few marriages of important folks in society are being solemnized.

Throughout April there are going to be fashionable weddings I'm sure and this month there will be a few marriages.

This very afternoon a lovely small wedding is taking place down in Sewickley which like all the earlier spring weddings is being attended only by the members of the two families and a few friends.

Louise Graff daughter of Mrs Henry Graff is the bride and Gifford King Wright also of Sewickley, is the bridegroom.

Valley Wedding

THE ceremony is taking place this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, in St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church, with the Rev Alleyne Howell as officiant. Palms, ferns and calla lilies decorate the altar and the chancel where the members of the two families and a few friends are seated.

The bride who is being given in marriage by her uncle Eugene Murray, of Sewickley is wearing an afternoon gown of beige chiffon with a yoke of Alencon lace and a hat of beige straw trimmed with Alencon lace. Her flowers are Johanna Hill roses, lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Federation Hears Head Speak

"LET us stand 100 per cent for the Constitution of the United States and the laws which we helped to make," Mrs. John A. Frick pleaded in discussing law observance yesterday at the annual southwestern district meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. The Federation head, whose topic was "Community Builders," said further that she knew of no better organization than the Federation to help President Hoover in his search for truth. "Are we going to stand by our colors?" she asked.

Mrs. Frick also discussed the other departments of federation work, and told what had been accomplished during her administration. She announced that she is to have the honor of placing before the General Federation of Women's Clubs (the national organization) at the Denver biennial this summer the name of Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown, as honorary vice president. She urged every club to contribute something towards the purchase of Wilkins Farm adjoining Allegheny National Forest, so "that it may be said to be a gift to the federal government from the entire organization, and she asked her hearers to keep abreast of the times in all things pertaining to international relations. "The peace of the world," she said, "is in the hands of this generation and if we fail we can blame only ourselves."

All but two of the 14 counties in this district were represented by the 186 women at the meeting, which was held at the Hotel Schenley with Mrs. J. E. McKirdy, district president, in the chair. Reports from all departments occupied the morning session and Mrs. Charles S. Musser, of Philadelphia, state chairman of county and extension work, presided over a county presidents' conference at noon.

In the afternoon came Mrs Frick's talk, contralto solos by Mrs. Ruth McMullen Forsythe with Mrs. W J Osborne accompanying, and a club institute conducted by Mrs. J. Andrew Gettig, district chairman of club institutes, in which all departments of activity came up for discussion.

Among other state officials present besides Mrs Frick and Mrs. Musser were Mrs. Ambrose N Diehl, first vice president; Mrs John M Phillips, chairman of the home department; Mrs J. G Chalfant, chairman of education and Miss Gertrude Mackinney chairman of law observance, Mrs. W. D Phillips, of the State Grange, and Miss Dibert, who is a former State Federation head, were also present.

FASHIONIST DESIGNS THE YACHTING PYJAMA ENSEMBLE

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, March 6.—There are going to be lots of pyjama-ed sailors cruising on yachts this spring. For the nice pyjama is now nautical and goes down to the sea in shoals judging by the reports received from along the Riviera coast. And why not? For surely the pyjama ensemble makes a practical as well as a piquant costume aboard as it does ashore.

AS a contrast to the pyjamas, we show how very feminine the female of the species can be. And so, we herewith present a sketch of one of the prettiest evening frocks displayed in the new Drecoll-Beer collection. It is of Delft blue crepe georgette, with a close bodice and hip yoke laid in cross barred pin-tucks. The deep full flounce is shirred on to the close yoke and bordered with a deep band of the same material. The belt buckle and the shoulder straps are of a strass and add a note of brilliance to the simple frock.

Now! A Way To Stop Soap Fade of Fine Things

Regardless of Repeated Washings

This costly Limoges dinner set washed 477 times with Climalene and ordinary soap—yet gold decoration shows no sign of fade or wear.

New Discovery Ends Ruining Fine Things Regardless How Often Washed

—And Cuts Washing Time of Clothes and Dishes ONE-HALF or More

MODERN day science has taken the fade danger out of home washing. Perfected a way that ends soap fade and ruining of fine things.

Not a soap—but a discovery that makes even ordinary soap safe. That makes the worst "hard" water and ordinary household soap into a virtually NO-FADE combination.

You can wash the most exquisite things, often 50 times or more without noticeable fade or soap-eat wear. Can keep priceless table china safe from dishpan fade . . . indefinitely. And—cut your work time one-half or more. Women are flocking to its use.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene. A scientific discovery that acts in two ways:

That takes the harshness out of even "hardest" water; the hardness that makes extra rubbing and the superfluous use of strong soap necessary to get things white and clean.

That turns that harsh "hard" water INSTANTLY into water so soft that it does the work with ONE FOURTH the amount of soap you now use.

Then, that due to bland cleansing qualities in itself, DISSOLVES all dirt and grime. And thus again cuts the amount of soap you use. And cuts washing time—in either dishpan or washing machine—50% or more. Consider what that means in saving wear and spoil.

10¢ packages (12 OZ.)

CLIMALENE

You just add two tablespoons to a tub of water. That is all. Use the same soap you ordinarily do. Then note the remarkable results.

Laboratory Proved

To prove those points, we wash fine things all day long. French lingerie, for instance, we wash 40, 50 times with this preparation and strong soap or washing flakes. Even the most delicate colors do not fade.

We wash fine colored table linens up to 80 times—WITHOUT fade. We take gold encrusted china of almost priceless value; and wash with strong soap hundreds of times. And never a sign of gold worn away.

We pay $5 for fine stockings of light tint color. Then TRY to fade them with repeated washings. And only when we fail in fading them, does this amazing preparation go to you.

AND—it acts actually as a BEAUTIFIER to the hands. Never before have you seen a cleanser so gentle.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages.

The new generation will enter more easily in the new life of internationalism, Mrs. McElfish said, citing as an encouraging sign the establishment of a course in statesmanship at Princeton University which stresses internationalism. Chickie and Barry Admit Love for Each Other

CHAPTER XXVI

THERE was a lilt about Barry as he danced—a free, happy rhythm. They did a kind of pattering foxtrot. His arm drew her close. "Sad? Why for, sweet one? Look up, Chickie—come on, now—give your steady a smile!"

She forced her eyes upward, saw his cheeks redden but he kept looking at her, pursed his lips, taunting.

"Don't do that, Barry."

"Won't I? Here's another."

She felt little sparkling waves, intoxicating and sweet, breaking at her feet. She was afraid of them; she was drawn expectant and eager. She said hesitantly: "You never answered my question, Barry."

"Which one?"

"Do you think I and that lovely Ila Moore look alike?"

"I should say not! Any more than the yolk of an egg looks like the sun."

"Is she the sun?"

"Not if she shines in my heaven! Oh, Ila's a good kid. I met her the summer I finished college. They have a place at Tahoe. She's quite brilliant in a way, wants to write or sing or something. In my callow youth I thought that very magnificent."

"She's different from the other girls then, isn't she?"

"Sure she is! Don't know what she's doing here. Notice the quiet chap she was with? That's her fate. She'll marry some ambitious lad of forty and push him to the top of the heap. Peace to her!"

At that Chickie murmured with sudden delight: "Oh, I think her most enchanting."

A troupe of the younger girls came sauntering and laughing into the room—radiant and pretty, all of them like a bright sea of moving poppies. They drifted past, blowing the smoke behind them, very superior, wrapped in disdain. They made their way to the table in the corner where a huge bowl of punch was now established.

Nance's Boy Friend

"The airs of these kids," Barry grinned. "Wonder where they'll be at twenty? Bored to extinction at sixteen years and two months."

Like an answer came a gay shout. Nance, the younger twin, in a crimson smock, knee breeches and sandals, her bobbed, curled hair standing out like a turban, breezed down the long room. She wagged her shoulders impishly. A narrow-chested young man with a drooping mouth, large, heavy-lidded eyes followed her, shrugging cynically.

When she spied Chickie she caught his hand and ran over, making a gay little bow. "How do you like me? Bizarre, am I not! Oh, I adore the eccentric. Don't you? Otherwise I'd be going in a perpetual trance like Bess and Marge."

"Oh, pardon, my dear! Let me present Mr. Bobby Elders." She whispered excitedly to Chickie, "What do you think of my sheik? Isn't he stunning?"

Then aloud like a gracious embrace: "Well, we were looking all over for you and Red just before dinner. I had a nice little goblet for you. Oh, not that I meant to be inquisitive a-tall!—not in a harem, you know! But where were you so that we can go and get lost? Hear about Marge? She's gone! Taken the car and her sweetie and vanished. Since before dinner."

She shrugged with a sigh meant to be widely insinuating. "What these engaged girls will do! I should worry if Mrs. Abbot doesn't! What's a twin between mother and daughter?"

"So long, honey dear. I may bring you something nice a little later on." She flung back wickedly over her shoulder: "That is, if I don't join the missing legions!"

Barry Confesses Love

Chickie glanced after her wistfully. "I wasn't as smart as that at sixteen, though Mary and I thought we knew an awful lot."

"You are not as smart as that now."

"Why do you say that?"

"You aren't. That's what makes you so charming. Blush now—"

She glanced up at him pleadingly. He bent down quietly and whispered: "Chickie, I love you."

Flame touched her. She felt his eyes as piercing lights going down into her heart, opening it with joy. She stood and let their radiance sweep her, her senses singing as the music closed about them—as they swayed in the dance.

Oh, she wanted to see that light again—drink its glad warmth. She stole a flushed glance upward at his face. It was turned to hers. He said with his lips straightened: "Chickie!" And nearer, at her ears, "I love you."

"Oh, Barry—"

He drew her so close his heart beat loud against her own. They danced. They were alone, oblivious of the couples drifting about them, the low hum of laughter, the procession shouting with merriment that wound incessantly to and from the punch bowl.

When the music ceased she felt as one coming with pain from a dream of overpowering sweetness fighting against awakening.

With a shock she heard Janina at her shoulder: "Come now, Chickie, you and Red have been at this long enough."

Her face turned cruelly scarlet. "Oh, have we? Why—everyone is dancing."

Janina's laugh rippled boisterously. "Guilty conscience, is it? Didn't mean to surprise that. Take a stroll, Chaffee, the dear Hebe carries the jug of Bacchus in his car."

The blond youth with his petulant mouth and dark, storming eyes flushed with pleasure. "Well, I don't know as it's that good, Janina—but fair enough at that."

Chickie Embarrassed

The lights from the house threw a soft, yellow glow over the terrace and into the dark bowl that was the garden. In this pale shimmering reflection couples sauntered, dim, elusive, poetic, in and out among the trees. Other couples, garish and noisy, whisked gayly from the ballroom to the automobiles parked everywhere among the shrubs.

Chaffee Arnold's sedan was hidden among poplar trees on a sharp twist of an old road. He took a silver flask from a pocket near the driver's seat, passed it around with a pleased, eager look at Janina. "I had a lot of trouble getting this. It's the old man's finest stuff. It is all right."

Janina laughed. "All right? It is. Not all gone, I trust?"

He shook the bottle. "Enough for a round or two more."

Janina answered, letting her head rest on his shoulder: "Chaffee dear, you're a bright young thief. I have hopes for you! Make yourself comfortable, you in the rear. We shan't see you!"

Chickie sat with her hands clasped. When she saw Chaffee's fair head bend to Janina's face she grew hot with embarrassment. Suddenly the tears rushed to her eyes. When Barry slipped his arm to her shoulder she sat upright, saying with a little start: "Oh, don't you think we should be going back? They'll think we're frightfully impolite."

From the depths of a delicious languor Janina answered: "Who'll think that, Chickie? Who'll worry about us?"

"Why, Bess, of course — and everyone. I haven't even been introduced to a soul yet!"

Leave Machine

A quiet laugh: "Listen to the baby! What's your trouble, Chickie? Aren't you and Red satisfied with each other? Too bad! Too late to swap now. What do you think, ole dear—they're waiting for us to come in and play 'Ring Around Rosie' or musica, chairs?"

She nodded.

He said aloud: "Ah—but that's winsome music, Janina. Come in and I'll dance with you."

"You'll have to promise more than that, Red, my dear. Be on your way if you like. Chaffee and I'll keep the back seat warm for you."

The night touched about them gently-humming. She turned her hand eagerly in his. He said: "Are you cold? Suppose we take a walk?"

She felt herself blending with the shadows, with the strains of distant music floating on the low October breeze. They went slowly down the terrace and on. They passed an arbor twined all about with roses, black in the moonlight.

He said, "Chickie, please—oh, I have to know—tell me. Well, let's sit here a while."

He had just parted the heavy vines; he had almost stumbled against the figures sitting on the bench when a laugh darted at them—high, shrill: "Ha, ha! Too late! Occupied!"

Chickie sprang back, shaking. His arm stiffened against her. He dropped the vines—hot with anger.

After a long silence he said: "Listen, Chickie!"

She waited. He stood beside her and suddenly reached down and took her hand: "Don't be unhappy! Why for? Beauteous night—thee and me—the stars—look up, please."

They had wandered to the pool. The darkness closed on them like an immense black flower. They were in its heart, listening to its pulse, the high throbbing song of the cricket weaving itself incessantly into silence.

He took her hands, pressing them against him. He reached over and touched her hair. "Chickie—you tell me, please—oh, I have to know. I love you."

Says She Loves Him

Laughter shivered through her.

"Listen. I'm not asking you to marry me. I can't—I can't think of it. But, anyway, just say it, Chickie, you're beautiful. I just want to know—a red head like me? Oh, you don't?"

His fingers caught her shoulders, the full, sweet mouth parted. She felt his eyes mingling with a wild joy in hers. With a little sob, her hands flew to his neck, drew his head down. She said half crying: "Oh—oh!" and closed her eyes, waiting for his lips.

He put her hands against his face, held them there. "Chickie, you mean it. Say it again."

Tears rushed into her eyes. He kissed them. She clung to his hand. She wanted to wind her arms about him—wanted to press his face against her throat. She shut her eyes—shut the world out. She felt her spirit sinking to its knees, dropping its face with a fierce pang of joy in its hands.

She said swiftly: "Yes, I love you. Oh, Barry—yes."

"Then why are you crying? Oh, don't do that—"

"No, I'm not—oh—"

She smiled and let her head rest happily against his shoulder. They went out softly, as though a prayer trembled on the still breast of the water.

At the end of the sequestered path he stopped, facing her. "Chickie, you won't take it back tomorrow? It wasn't just the garden and the music?"

"Oh, no, no—"

"I? You love me?"

There rose within her a terrible exultance. She felt suddenly that she would like to turn and shout: "Oh, you! You!"

Ila in Room

She was shaken—pale with emotion when she stole quietly to her room. The stream of light wavering under the door stilled her. For a long while she didn't enter.

Ila Moore, her bright hair in two long braids, was sitting up in bed—propped with pillows, reading. She closed her book. "Oh, you came in early. I thought I was the only farmer here."

"Why, it's nearly one!"

"But listen!" From the dance hall the music climbed upwards in a lonely, haunting strain. There was no sound of footsteps—except now and then a swift soft padding across the leaves—the couples coming and going from the machines. Ila said, stretching her arms: "Did you have a good time? I looked for you and Barry, but you never can find any one here after the first hour."

"Yes—" Chickie stood at the bureau, her head lowered, cramming her mouth with hairpins. Her hands trembled and she kept dropping the comb. It seemed to her that her heart would batter her flesh in two. "Yes—isn't it independent, though. I never was in such a do-whatever-you-please place before."

"Weren't you? You and Barry have known each other a long time, haven't you?"

Chickie Perplexed

Chickie glanced in the mirror, caught a glimpse of the sweet, tranquil face. The lips parted—vivid with eagerness. Chickie answered absently: "Oh—somewhat!"

Ila said lightly: "Isn't he good company? I think I'll get up early. If you want to read—don't mind about the light." She stretched herself down, clasping her hands under her head.

Chickie looked for a minute into the soft loveliness of Ila's face—its eyes closed in such serene quiet. She switched out the light.

She sat on the bed, her arms wound about her knees. Her heart knocked. Presently she heard Ila breathing in the deep regularity of sleep.

She stole softly to the balcony. The breeze touched with cool uplifting fingers on her flaming face. She leaned against the roses, crushing them. She put out her hands, sending an ardent cry through the stillness: "Oh—I love you—"

She crept back to bed and lay there a long time motionless. She turned her face against the pillow whispering: "What am I to do?"

Interested in One Only When Ideal Comes Along, Says Fay King

SHE IS INTERESTED IN EVERYONE UNTIL SHE MEETS HER IDEAL
SHE ISN'T INTERESTED IN ANYONE BUT HER IDEAL FAY-KING

By FAY KING

SOME super-sentimental girls prefer to sit home to accepting an invitation from young men with whom they are not head over heels in love, but who are head over heels in love with them.

They pout too, and think that every other girl marries her ideal while they do not meet theirs.

But if they will trouble to notice they will see that other girls are pleasant to all their men friends, and are often escorted by one who is nothing more than a thoughtful friend.

And nine times out of ten they met their ideal in such a one, and he is as happy about it as they are.

So be nice to all your friends and you will probably meet your ideal.

Mary Interrupts Conversation With Startling News

AT Lillian's outburst of sobbing as she voiced her wish concerning her young daughter I made no movement toward her nor did I speak. I knew that her own sanity when she came back to herself would condemn the thing she had said, although probably every mother heart in the world has at some time or other openly or secretly echoed her wish that her grown-up son or daughter could be a little child again.

That Lillian was especially obsessed with this wish, I also knew. Because of the unspeakable villainy of Marion's father, she had been compelled to give the child up when she was little more than a baby, and had not recovered her until Tom Morton's death, several years later. Robbed of her child during those years, she had made an idol of the girl since her return, so much so that we who loved them both had feared that she was so shielding Marion from the world, and keeping her so much to herself, that the girl's development would be hampered.

Lillian had had one stormy session with her soul when she had made the decision to send Marion away to school. She had experienced another when she saw young Ronald Brixton's admiration of Marion, and heard his plans to write to her and entertain her at college dances and games. It had been to her the writing on the wall which spelled the loss of Marion as a little girl, and the inevitable relegation of Lillian to second place in her daughter's heart.

Intimately as I knew my friend, I had thought that the battle she had waged with herself at Marion's return to school with Carolyn, Ronald's sister, as her roommate, had been the final one, and that she had realized how natural was Marion's development, and what pride and happiness she herself could find in watching the young girl's flowering into young womanhood. But this outburst dismayed me. I had counted too much I thought upon Lillian's unusual poise and common sense, and not enough upon the warping experience with her child which she had suffered because of the father's perfidy.

It was not long before the paroxysm of sobbing spent itself, and she sprang up abruptly with her face averted and rushed out of the room.

I knew that she had gone to bathe her face, and was not surprised when a few minutes later she came back, with only slightly reddened eyelids to betray the emotional storm which had just shaken her.

"There! that's over," she said briskly. "I'm mighty glad it happened when you and I were here alone. I'd hate to have anybody else, even Harry, know that I could be so utterly absurd—and wicked. For it is wicked, Madge. Curiously enough, I was thinking just now of a girl of Marion's age who never has advanced in mind beyond five or six years. She still has dolls and tea sets for Christmas and her parents are heartbroken, of course. And I, blessed with a daughter like Marion, could wish that she could go back again."

"You're getting just as morbid in the other direction," I told her severely. "Dicky would tell you to 'snap out of it, pronto' and I echo his advice. Do you mind letting me see that letter from Mrs. Brixton? I never saw such exquisite chirography."

"Yes, isn't it?" she asked, and I saw that my little ruse had accomplished its twofold purpose. Her mind was running normally upon its usual track again and I was able to "refresh my memory" as to Helena Brixton's letter without Lillian's suspecting why I wished to look at it.

When I handed it back to her I was certain that I could repeat it word for word to Harry as he had asked me. And Lillian, serene and clear-eyed again, was calmly knitting.

"I'd like to be able to write like that," I said with a sincere little sigh as I took up my embroidery.

"So would we all," she answered, putting the letter away. "Of course I'll wait to answer this until you get back with your information."

"She's too busy to wait that long. Why don't you wire her at once that I am going to look for a house tomorrow and will send her a night letter with all details as soon as I have found one. If The Larches is vacant, and I am sure it is, I probably can send her that letter tomorrow night, for I shall start early tomorrow morning."

"By car or train? But I needn't ask. You'll set up light housekeeping in that car yet," she gibed.

"I can fancy many worse places," I retorted. "But tell me, what sort of party would be nice to give Mary. Of course, those college youngsters will make up the bulk of the guests, for Mary knows so few people, but it is going to be distinctly her party, nevertheless. Did you hear her tonight?"

"Yes, poor child!" she said, her face suddenly sober. "Life, I am afraid, is going to be hard for Mary."

"I am so worried about her," I confessed. "And I must ask you something which has troubled me all evening. Dicky saw Jack Leslie on the street today. What has happened to Hugh?"

I saw a curious little defensive look spring into her eyes. But before she could speak, the door flew open and Mary rushed into the room, her eyes wild and terrified.

"Oh! Auntie Madge, Aunt Lillian," she said. "Come quickly, down stairs—in the office. Noel—"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN the complexion throws a dermatitis fit, becoming blotchy or developing a speckled-trout surface, the cause is more likely to be a digestive disturbance than anything else. Cosmetics seldom kick up a cutaneous fuss, though it will happen sometimes that the skin will suddenly balk against any kind of oily application. If postules or blotches persist, it is wise to consult a medical man who specializes in skin diseases. Some forms of eruption are trivial; others lead to serious chronic disturbances.

The proper coiffure for the older girls is the softly waved effect that follows the contour of the head, with tress ends turned under and concealed, or the rear breadths of the hair bobbed and swirled across. When a woman of sixty affects the juvenilian haircut she does not make herself look younger; she makes herself look older than she is.

Complexion powder should not be rubbed into the skin, but patted on. The old-fashioned swan's down pads are better for the skin than those of lamb's wool, though the wool ones are all right if applied lightly. Girls who like to wear their powder thick should remove the surplus fluff with a soft camel's hair brush. Dry rouge should be laid upon a powdered surface, and then powder should be applied over the rouge.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, March 7

UNDER the benign influence of Jupiter, in conjunction with Luna, this should be a day of notable achievement and satisfactory progress toward the goal of the ambitions. Important changes or removal may be involved in connection with innovations. Avoid loopholes of fraud and subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of great progress, with firm advancement toward high goals, possibly through change of business or environment, but be cautious as to fraud or misrepresentation.

A child born on this day should be clever, ambitious and ingenious, but may be disposed to gain through expediency or shrewdness.

Petting Wives

WHAT'S the matter with the American husband?

For years I have proudly boasted that the American husband would take first prize in any "Best Husbands" contest on earth. In no other country will you find a husband who will push the perambulator, take the dog for a walk, get his own breakfast and keep his money and his religion in his wife's name. He is the world's Husband de Luxe!

But I am beginning to wonder if the young American husband has lost his SPINE. If he parted with his last vertebra at the altar!

Else why does he stand meekly around and permit his young wife to be carelessly mauled, kissed and petted by other men at parties and country clubs, or wherever three or four whopee-makers are gathered together?

* * *

Doesn't he know how foolish it makes him look? Or doesn't he care? Has he no amour propre? Has ALL the nerve been extracted from him?

Sometimes I think that the flapper has been very much maligned. Most of the Petting Patties today are married women. There is more promiscuous kissing going on among the younger married set than among all the flaming flappers.

At most country clubs it is the young matrons, not the debutantes, who permit themselves to be mauled. In their desperate desire to remain flappers forever or their cold fear of being classed as "flat tires," they cheerfully encourage the casual caress of any personable man. It makes them feel "so popular."

That is the greatest danger of the petting-party girl. Not that she may lose the respect of men—but that she loses the ability to treat ANY man with respect! During her flapperhood, being petted and mauled becomes such a commonplace thing that passing her kisses around means no more to her than passing the olives. Petting and parties are as inseparable in her mind as waffles and maple syrup.

Of course, modern marriage is a partnership—not ownership. But love and kisses are the assets of the matrimonial firm, and neither member has the right to unlock the till and pass its contents around to the public.

* * *

What the young American husband needs is a little more self-assertion. A man who has not the stamina to protect HIS OWN WOMAN and make her treat him with respect is not a husband—he's a joke. The Lord made men bigger and stronger than women, so that they could take care of and protect women.

A little caveman stuff on the part of her husband would bring many a petting wife to her senses and give her a wholesome admiration for him. But, alas, so many young husbands are too busy kising some other man's wife to bother to make their own wives behave.

Odors of Food

Good food that has a strong odor is too often absent from the table because cabbage, cauliflower and other members of that delectable family have a way of making their presence known in the far corners of the house. There is a way of getting away from the scent. Put a small amount of vinegar in a saucepan and let it boil on another burner while the vegetable is cooking.

How to Keep Well

Golf—And Health

DURING the past 25 years golf has become a game of great prominence in this country. Its popularity is shown by the increase in the number of municipally owned golf courses everywhere.

DR. COPELAND

Doctors prescribe golf for their patients, and the doctors, too, find some time to play the game, though goodness knows how they find it!

Golf no longer is for the rich. The business man gets his exercise in his pet game.

The age limit does not enter into the discussion. Young, middle-aged and the retired business man all go the limit in this game.

Last Summer the International Y. M. C. A. made an interesting summary of certain findings made under their auspices. They studied the physical reactions of about one hundred golfers.

Among other conclusions the following were noted:

In heart cases, an easy game of golf does not necessarily cause injury.

Valvular lesions of the heart, but well-compensated, react in the same way as sound hearts after mild exertion.

Severe exercise increases the danger in cases of abnormal heart or kidney conditions.

Sleeplessness, followed by fatigue in the morning, with loss of appetite, indicates a poor physical condition. Also, low vitality is indicated by a lowered blood pressure, especially in the standing position, with higher heart rate and a slow return to normal, after very moderate exercise.

It goes without saying that a mere friendly game has less effect on the pulse rate and heart rate than anything like a championship game. The energy spent in playing golf cannot be minimized.

It has been estimated "that a person walking at the rate of four miles an hour over a conventional level course of 6,000 yards spends as much energy as he would in lifting himself five times to the top of the highest skyscraper in New York, or, walking with a speed of about two miles an hour, he would spend enough energy to lift himself a little over four times to the top of the same building."

This is interesting reading. But you can see what energy can be expended on golf.

In the healthy person the heart rate increases with physical exercise, and, in general, returns to normal in a short time. The danger of overdoing in the game is not so great for a person in robust health.

However, it is better for those not in robust health to keep to an easy game over an easy, plain course. Most golf courses are built in hilly places, and this increases the amount of energy spent in playing the game. Half an hour is usually sufficient time to play for persons who have such reactions as extreme fatigue, loss of weight, or any feeling of ill health.

The White House Gang

Gang, thrown in company which knew nothing of his White House affiliations and, being reminded of some story associated therewith, would relate it, to have it received, however, with polite indulgence and ill-concealed incredulity. Thereafter, he remained intrenched in an arid silence . . . The present chronicle is written only after the most earnest effort at accuracy had been made by the Gang in meeting assembled. It is put forward, in order to acknowledge the debt which the Gang owes to Theodore and Mrs. Roosevelt and to Quentin. That debt can never be paid, nor can it ever be fully expressed . . . yet perhaps it can be most gratefully avowed.

In the early spring, the south grounds are regularly groomed for the concerts given by the Marine Band and for garden parties and other functions. One year, while this was in progress, we took the law into our own hands to punish an instance of lese-majeste. Two plumbers were astride the pipes in the center of the great south fountain. Naturally, we wanted to know all about what they were doing, and shouted our inquiries across to them, from the stone-coping. They began by replying, but soon ran dry of answers, and became annoyed.

"Go away!" one of them ordered. "Get out of here! Don't come around bothering us! Can't you young fools see we've got work to do?"

At once, we were highly incensed. Did not those fellows know who we were? "Don't answer them!" Q said fiercely. "By Buzzard! We'll show 'em who's boss around here! We'll put the sinister on 'em. We'll teach 'em something that'll stop them from talking like that, ever again!"

(To Be Continued Tomorrow).

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Overdo It

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been going about with a young man for about four months, and we find that we care for each other very much. His birthday is in June and I would like to give him something. I am writing to ask you whether it would be proper for me to give him a gift, and if so, what would be suitable?

Please don't write me and tell me to give him a book or something like that, because I feel as if I know him more intimately than that.

I JUDGE, by your last sentence, that you are not going to accept any of my suggestions, for I think that good taste would indicate that the only gift that could be listed under "correct" would be a "book or something like that." Four months isn't very long to have known a friend, and such a short time means that your gift should be chosen with extreme care so that it will not be misinterpreted by the young man, if he is well-bred, as being "over-done." Perhaps you would prefer to give him something for his room, something, for instance, for his desk.

The Toasted Sandwich

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. How should a toasted sandwich be eaten?

2. Is it all right to put crackers in soup if they are the small ones?

B. M. W.

1—With a knife and fork. Cut off one small piece at a time, and eat this before you cut off the next piece. If no silver utensil is placed with the sandwich, as at a soda counter, break off a piece of the sandwich as "neatly and tidily" as possible. I know few details that we encounter in daily life that demand such savoir faire!

2. It is far better form to eat the crackers separately.

The Order of Names

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a married woman sends greeting cards to friends and wishes to sign her husband's Christian name, as well as her own, should she sign his name first, as "Bill and Jane," or "Jane and Bill?"

V. S.

ALTHOUGH it is taken for granted in most cases that we sign our names last, in this case where the wife signs the names simply as a convenience, usually the husband prefers that she sign her name first.

2 DIE AS GANGS RENEW WAR

CHICAGO, March 6.—(INS.)—A new gangland war loomed today in the beer running territory "back o' the yards" with the finding of the bodies of John (Dingbat) Oberta, politician, beer baron and gangster, lieutenant of "Big Joe" Saltis, and his bodyguard, Sammy (Texas) Malaga.

Oberta's body was found in his expensive automobile on the far outskirts of the city, his head half blown off by a charge from a sawed-off shotgun. The body of Malaga was found half submerged in a roadside ditch a few feet from the car, bullets through his head and heart.

OLD M'ERLANE FOE

Police immediately saw in the killings the culmination of a boast by Frank McErlane, rival gang leader, that when he left a hospital where three gunmen tried to kill him, "there would be plenty of guys taken for a ride."

Oberta was committeeman from the Thirteenth Ward—for only one day. After the election, Hugh Norris, city oil inspector, contested it, and finally dropped the suit Tuesday of this week and the gangster actually had the office uncontested for but one day.

WIDOW OF "BIG TIM"

Oberta's wife, Mrs. Florence Murphy Oberta, twice widowed by gangland bullets, is in a state of collapse in her home.

Her first husband, "Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader, gangster and racketeer, was shot down by gunmen as he was about to enter his home.

NINE IN FILMS PAY TAX FINES

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—Sam Taylor, film director, and Ben Bard, actor and husband of Ruth Roland, actress, were fined $400 and $250 respectively in Federal Court yesterday after pleading guilty to charges of failing to file their entire income tax levies for 1927.

The men brought to nine the total number of those who have answered criminal informations filed by a grand jury which investigated alleged conspiracies in the Hollywood film colony that resulted in a loss of $1,000,000 to the government through fraudulent tax reports.

Taylor was accused of neglecting to pay $4,394 in taxes due, and in addition to making up the deficit, paid a penalty of $2,197. Bard, who protested he had not worked for a year, short changed the revenue collectors by $860.61, and was assessed a penalty of $430.31. He paid the deficiency and penalty, but was granted two weeks time for payment of his fine. He said he would start work Monday at $600 a week.

Teller Loses $1,000 To Fortune Tellers

EAST ORANGE, N. J., March 6.—(AP.)—Howard Wyre, bank teller, believes he was hypnotized by two gypsy women. Changing 20 dimes into dollar bills for them, he consented to have his future looked into. He was told to put his hand on a large sum of money. A gypsy placed a handkerchief over his hand, muttering. Dazed, Wyre says, he later found that the gypsies and $1,000 had vanished. One arrest has been made.

NEWARK, N. J., March 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, wife of Ambassador Morrow, will take an active part in her husband's campaign for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey, it was learned at the campaign headquarters here.

Mrs. Morrow is now in London with her husband, but will arrive in the United States, March 19. Plans call for Mrs. Morrow to address women's clubs throughout the state.

NEW YORK, March 6.—(INS.)—Serum rushed from the Public Health Service Laboratories in Washington was to arrive here today to aid in the fight to save the lives of three women workers in the research bureau of the New York Department of Health. They were stricken with parrot fever while investigating the cause of the tropical malady.

Investigation of the germ causing the disease will be continued by Rockefeller Institute, it was announced after city health officials abandoned their research.

RICH NORMAND ESTATE LISTED

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP.)—Mabel Normand, screen comedienne, who died February 23, left an estate valued at between $100,000 and $300,000 William R. James, attorney in charge of probating her will, said.

The exact amount of the fortune left by the actress will not be determined until all the possessions in her Beverly Hills, Cal., home have been listed. The estate includes real estate, art objects, jewelry, stocks and bonds.

Lew Cody, actor and widower of Miss Normand, revealed the actress had left all her porperty to her mother, Mrs. Mary Normand of Staten Island, N. Y. Several years ago Miss Normand established a $50,000 trust fund for her mother.

Miss Normand's death resulted from tuberculosis from which she had suffered for several years.

BURLEIGH AIMS TO BE FIT FOR START

Burleigh Grimes

BURLEIGH GRIMES, Pirate holdout pitcher, who came to Pittsburgh yesterday preparatory to starting for some Southern point to put in a few training licks pending the hearing in his divorce suit at Canton, O., on April 1, says his conditioning plan is not to be taken as an indication that he is weakening in his demands for better terms than the Pittsburgh club has offered. "I have not weakened and am not going to weaken," said Grimes. "I have tried to be reasonable, am asking only what I believe to be fair, and mean to stick to that.

"I am simply trying to take a common-sense view of the situation. The hearing in my case at Canton is set for April 1, and it will be necessary for me to be there a few days earlier, or about March 26. It would be foolish for a ball player to lie around idle for a period of that length at this time of year. So I thought of going to Clearwater, or some other Southern resort and putting the time to good use by doing some conditioning work. That's only fair to whatever club I may pitch for this year. If I'm back with the Pirates, all well and good. If I am traded to some other club, all well and good, too. I'll be in shape to jump in there and pitch for my team when the season begins.

"I AM being guided only by common sense and fairness as well as a desire to be able to give my best efforts to the club I happen to be with when the pennant race starts. I went to Forbes Field Wednesday to get my baseball shoes and other equipment but found that the stuff had been shipped to Paso Robles with the remainder of the club's baggage. But that's a small item. Probably the trainer just made a mistake in packing up.

"That's all there is behind my plan to do a little training. I haven't changed my contract views in any respect. I feel that they are fair and therefore see no reason why I should alter them. Last year I asked for only $1,000 more than in 1928, but informed Mr. Dreyfuss when I signed that I would expect another increase this year. However, the contract tendered to me called for only the same sum I received in 1929. I do not think that I am asking too much. It is not true that I have asked for $25,000."

FRED HUNTER, coach of the Phillies, who played first base for the Pirates during part of the season of 1911, in discussing the diamond stars of the past, says that baseball has seen Honus Wagner and then some ball players. He says he wouldn't think of mentioning any of the others in the same breath with the Flying Dutchman.

"Wagner made some almost impossible plays," Hunter told Gordon MacKay. "Once there was a ball hit back of Dots Miller and at his left. Dots, mind you, was playing second and Wagner was at short. There was a man on first, and when the ball was hit he started down.

Honus Wagner

"HOW in the world Honus ever got over there I don't know, but he leaped in front of the ball, grabbed it with his bare hand and flipped it to Miller, all with one motion. Then Miller shot it to me and we got a double play on a single. Naturally, the crowd went wild. We came to the bench after the play and the racket was still going on. Honus looked up at the fans and asked 'What's the matter with them?' 'Why,' I said, 'they're giving you a hand for that fine play you made.' 'Ah, that's nothing,' Wagner said. 'Dots and I practiced that play for two years.'"

JIMMY REESE, the Jewish boy trying for the second base job in the Yankee lineup, says he got the name from a former Pitt football player when he was breaking into professional baseball on the Coast. "Eddie Reese, a former football star at the University of Pittsburgh under Pop Warner, was circulation manager of one of the Los Angeles papers which I had sold as a newsboy," the recruit is quoted, "and he took a fatherly interest in me and helped me to establish my paper business at the base.

"He was like a real father to me, and because of his kindness and interest I made enough money to send my mother and sick sister to Tucson, Arizona, where they still are. When I made up my mind to become a ballplayer I asked permission to use the name of Reese. 'It's O. K. with me,' he said. Since then I have had the name legally adopted. I know that he'll be rooting for my success with the Yankees."

EVIDENTLY there's a mix-up somewhere in Reese's story. No gridder named Reese ever played under Warner while the latter was coach of the Panthers, and no player named Eddie Reese ever won a letter at Pitt at any time.

The only Panther letter man of that family name was Charles S. (Chuck) Reese, who won football letters in 1912-13-14 under Coaches Joe Thompson and Joe Duff and in basketball in 1913 under Coach Flint. He graduated in dentistry and is believed to be practicing at present in Warren, Pa.

John A. Clinton, Jr.

THE difference in average form between professional and amateur balkline billiard players, which renders the proposed open tournament inadvisable on account of the huge advantage that the pros would have, is due mainly to the all-important item of practice. The amateur who works for a livelihood and plays only for pastime when he gets the opportunity cannot be expected to cope with a professional who practices at his game for hours every day. There is much to be said for the amateur from that viewpoint. Take John A. Clinton, Jr., of Pittsburgh, former National amateur 18.2 balkline champion, for example. Any billiard expert who has seen Clinton play will admit that the clever Pittsburgh amateur has as much native skill and ability as any of the professionals, and with the same almost constant practice would in time rank second to none of them.

CLINTON has done much to support this belief and to show how favorably an amateur can compare with the pros without being able to devote all his time to playing the game and improving himself in all its finer details. In one match of 300 points at Baltimore, for instance, the Pittsburgher made the remarkable average of 60.

Pitted against Kinrey Matsuyama, the Japanese professional star, Clinton did so well in the long run that only the loss of one

PROMISING BUC ROOKIE MADE FREE AGENT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 6.—Pirate officials today let loose a promising young outfielder in their announcement that Melvin Ingram, University of Gonzaga star, had been given his unconditional release. The act was a long-distance affair on the part of the Pittsburghers as Ingram had failed to show up at the Paso Robles camp.

Apparently Manager Ens and Vice President Sam Dreyfuss were loath to come to their decision of the fleet-footed collegian who spent at least half of last season with the Pirates. Ingram came to the Buccos highly recommended after earning a law degree at the northwest school. He returned to his old haunts just before the last race ended to take over duties as athletic instructor at Wallace, Idaho, High School.

IS FREE AGENT

Some time ago Ingram informed the Pirate owners that he would not be able to take part in the spring training activities on account of his other athletic work. The boy seems to have been in a quandary as to his diamond future, so the Pittsburgh officials decided to make him a free agent.

Ingram, after winning something like a dozen letters at Gonzaga, was quite impressive as he hooked up with the big league team. The lad had never seen a major league ball game until he joined the Pirates. His whirlwind speed and general athletic build made him stand out and Manager Ens was quite anxious to go along in the matter of developing him, but Jewel wanted to have him at camp.

GAME POSTPONED

Ens announced this morning that as a result of the wet weather and the attendant handicap, the first camp battle, scheduled for tomorrow, would be postponed until Saturday.

Ens and his 40-odd athletes braved the elements yesterday in order to get some exercise. The unsettled weather of the morning did not show any change by 1:30, so Jewel determined to put his players through some sprouts, ordered all hands in battle regalia. Arriving at the park about 15 minutes later, the Pirates found the grass soaked and the rain still falling, but despite the conditions, the large crew worked out for almost an hour.

Gussie Suhr, new first sacker of the club, thus indulged in his first session of the year. Suhr could have played some winter ball on the coast, but he wisely refrained on the presumption that 200 ball games are quite enough for any performer in a season, no matter how he likes the sport.

Suhr naturally had to take things easily, so he confined his acts to tossing the ball around in a game of catch. Others were not so quiet. Something like 25 of the exuberant fellows went into the outfield where they staged a realistic, yet humorous football game. The tackling on the wet grass was fine exercise and nobody ran any bad risks of being injured.

Ens said he would try to get in one long workout today. He plans to be up-and-at-'em from 11 to 2. The grass will be too wet to permit of an earlier start.

FIRST ROUND SCHEDULE

Friday—N. Braddock vs. Fifth Avenue, Stadium.

SECOND ROUND SCHEDULE

Saturday—New Castle vs. Waynesburg, Stadium.

Whoole! What a ball game Swissvale and Duquesne treated the faithful to in their first round W. P. I. A. L. clash in the Pitt Stadium last night! Whoole is the word and whoole again!

Duquesne won the wild melee by a 28-26 score, but not until after as sensational a second half as has been played in any scholastic encounter in Pittsburgh this year. The Section VII champions looked liked easy winners during the first half, but Ed Paulie's Swissvalians opened up with all guns blazing in the third period, outscored Duquesne 12-to-10 and then, with a threatening rally during the closing moments of the game, closed a seven point gap and came within the proverbial ace of evening matters just before the game ended.

MONESSEN FAVORED

Tonight, Monessen, Section V leaders and perennial entrants in the tourney, meets Dunbar, one of the few repeaters from last year's list of entrants. This game will wind up the lower bracket competition for the first round, and finds Monessen a favorite, not only for tonight's game but for the tourney.

It may not have been the best basketball in the world, the way Swissvale and Duquesne played last night, but it was the best from the view point of the spectators. Not until the very last minute and a half of the game would Duquesne consent to freeze the ball, and as a result, the fans saw a lot of shootin' and a lot of goal getting.

DUKES TAKE LEAD

The Dukes hopped off to a 6-1 lead, Servick sinking a pair of hoops in the time it takes to write it and Beck matching him with

LULL IN ICE LOOP RACE

Les Canadiens and the Maroons, Montreal's none-too-friendly enemies, will meet in the only game of consequence on the National Hockey League program for tonight. The New York Americans appear against the Cougars in Detroit in the only other game on the slate and in this fray the boys will be battling for the exercise in that neither has much chance of getting into the Stanley Cup play-offs.

In the event that the Canadiens are able to take the measure of the Maroons, the Flying Frenchmen will vault into a tie with their Montreal rivals for first place in the International group standings.

Manager Frank Fredrickson and his Pirate icemen continue their "vacation." The only action on their program is that of getting ready for their game with the Chicago Hawks in Fort Erie, Ont., Saturday evening.

RADIO, DEVINE BUC FAVORITES

By Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 6.—Each springtime when Pie Traynor reaches Paso Robles he finds a pretty radio installed in his room and the present season is no exception. The proprietor of the local music store is fond of Pie and he insists on showering Traynor with the radio present, which is much appreciated by many other Pirates.

Traynor's room is on the main floor and it opens off a big hall only a few feet from the lobby. When things become too quiet, Traynor walks out of his room after turning on all the static the machine will pick up. The terrible sound coming out of the open door has the effect of upsetting all the help and most of the guests.

BUCS "LISTEN IN"

Amos and Andy are the main act on Pie's set and in between the courses you will hear many interesting discussions by the various athletes seated on the beds and chairs. When Joe Devine comes in the players generally remain quiet, as they like to hear this droll fellow deliver his nightly monologues.

In all the years that Devine has scouted Coast League stars he has "booted" only one big shot. In other words he declined to OK a certain player who is now a star in the big show. One of the Pirates last night asked Joe why he refused to give the player his approval.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Joe, in his slow way. "The first time I saw him off the field was in a restaurant. He was eating with his hat on and I just thought right there that anybody who was as dumb as that was too dumb to play ball in the big show so I passed him up."

DEVINE SPILLS YARNS

Devine actually thinks that a player's movements off the field give a real insight to his value on the ball field.

"I know a certain player who had a big year for the Pirates," said Devine. "I was in his room

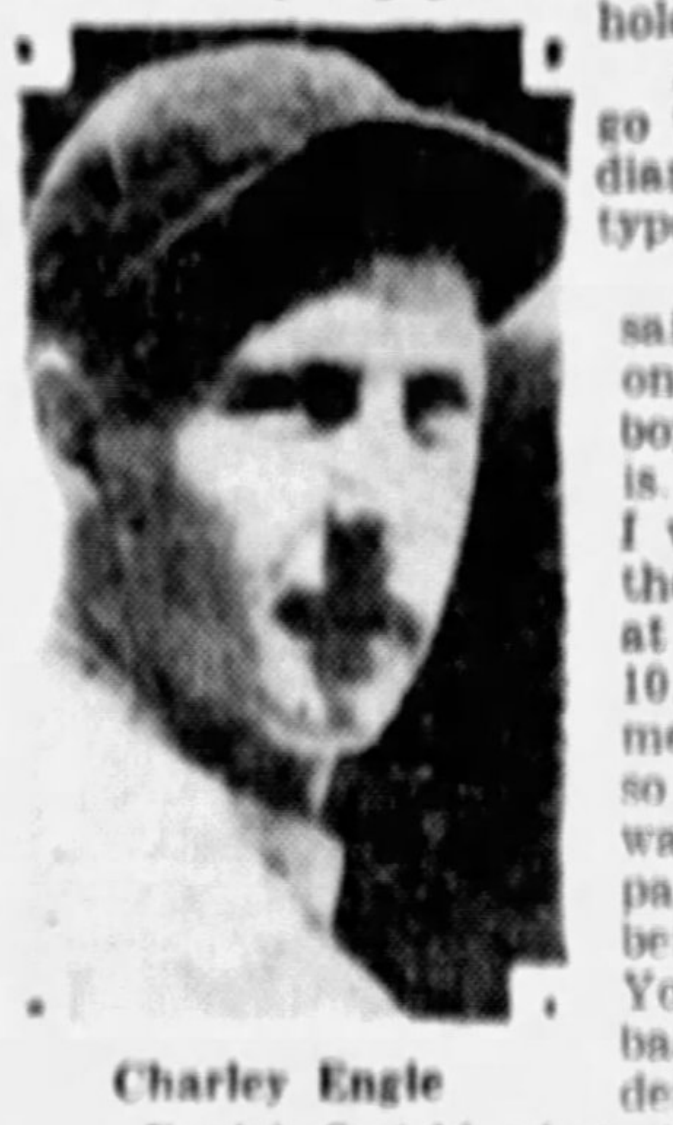
Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

NO. 5—CHARLEY ENGLE, SHORTSTOP

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 6.—The newspaper business appears to have lost a very reliable printer when baseball and the major leagues picked up Little Charley Engle, star shortstop of the Memphis Chicks, who is busily engaged in trying to cop the job owned by Dick Bartell, holdout shortfielder of the Pittsburgh club.



Charley Engle

As a boy, Charley had only six months to go to finish the trade when the lure of the diamond called him away from the type and typesetting machines.

"I was working on a New York paper," said the quiet athlete, whose real home is on Long Island. "I started out as a proof boy," he continued. "You know what that is. I had to pull all the proofs, and later I was put on a linotype machine. I did the lobster trick. I would come to work at 2 o'clock in the morning and work until 10. This arrangement made it possible for me to play a couple of ball games a week, so I was making some nice side money this way. I really liked the experience, but the paper I was on suspended publication, it being merged with one of the other New York dailies. Later, I got into 'outlaw baseball' and finally got into a league under protection."

Engle's first big shot at the game came when he was about 20. He was in the Anthracite League with Jake Pitler and a host of other well-known players.

For the past three years, Charley has been starring more or less for the Memphis club. The fans of that city liked the little infielder and Charley reciprocated by becoming an adopted son. He makes his home in the Tennessee metropolis.

"Baseball is the big thing with me," said Engle. "I love the game and it is my desire to be a big-leaguer. I had two brief tryouts in the majors before, but I did not have as good an opportunity as the one before me now. I intend to do everything I can to be retained."

Strange as it may seem, Charley and Ben Sankey, fighting for the shortfield job, are close buddies in camp. They work out on the same position at the same time and whenever one makes a nifty play he gets a sendoff by his rival. Two mighty fine boys, according to the veterans on the Pittsburgh squad.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

GENEVA-DUKES TO TANGLE HERE TONIGHT

TITLE CHANCES OF BLUFFITES MENACED

By JESS CARVER

Another brilliant court performer dons his togs for a final showing in Pittsburgh tonight as Len Friedman, for four years a star at Geneva, captains the Covenanters as they battle the Dukes in a very important Tri-State Conference tussle on the Bluff court.

Len Friedman

The Genevians, with no place in particular to go in the Conference race themselves, can, by beating the Dukes tonight, erase Chick Davies' hopes of the title and automatically pass over the honor for Westminster. A win for the Dukes will put 'em in a tie with the Titans, and then, if Thiel can be taken Saturday, bring back to this city the crown.

LAST TITLE CHANCE

If the Dukes don't grab off the title this winter it may never come to Pittsburgh again, for the local Irish are withdrawing from the Conference competition at the close of the present school year. Pitt and Tech are not likely to join the circuit, and they won't let any of the local Barber Colleges in as they (the barbers) are strictly amateurs.

The Dukes are having to meet the tough Covenanters after only one day of rest following the sparkling, but tiring triumph over Westminster of Tuesday. The stage may be set for a Geneva holiday. Who knows?

The Tip-Off

President Baker, of Carnegie Tech, is giving a tea Saturday afternoon for the Tartan football squad. Oh, boy, how I'd like to get a load of Len Schnupp balancing a tea cup on one of those so-called knees of his. He'll probably swallow the cup.

The Pitt Panthers are back from a highly successful tour of the East, during which they made life miserable for the Army and Temple. Charley Hyatt, as usual stole the show.

For all there are some sweet-looking freshmen comin' up for the Tech varsity next fall, any of the aspiring halfbacks will have to aspire high if they are going to beat out Dutch Eyth, provided Dutch goes as he did against New York University and Southern California.

MOUNTAINEERS

Don't think West Virginia hasn't one all loaded up for Doc Carlson's Panthers Saturday. Whoosie, what a nice ball game that one won't be!

If you had your choice of wrestling with Dan Very or going to jail, which of our bastiles would you select?

two more. This fellow Beck, Donie is his first name, looks like the goods. He is a senior, but if the right freshmen college coach gets him, he will be heard from in later years.

Duquesne led 8 to 6 at the end of the period, Emerick and Trembath having tallied from the court and Mark Groat twice from the foul line to put Swissvale in the game.

The Duquesne defense worked best in the second quarter, keeping Swissvale from tallying a basket, while Beck and Schulte caged goals for Duquesne. At the half, the count was 14-9, Duquesne.

THIRD PERIOD WILD

That third period was a hummer. It is doubtful if there will be another as interesting and thrilling during the tourney. Swissvale stepped on the offensive gas, and Herring, Trembath, Tener and Mark Groat whammed 'em in, the latter sinking two. Herring was good for a pair of points from the free throw line, and until the closing minutes of the period, the Section XI rulers enjoyed a three point lead.

Durik and Harapas cut this down to a point, however, and Duquesne passed Swissvale to lead by five points as the final session opened.

A quick field goal by Harapas, lanky Duquesne forward, increased his advantage to seven right after the start, but Tener's goal offset Harapas.' Harapas was fouled as he went under the hoop and he made one out of two. He was knocked off again and repeated the dose, to account for Duquesne's 28 points.

SWISSVALE RALLIES

Swissvale, meanwhile, was in the ruck with 23, but Carl Groat, in for Emerick, scored from the foul line and then from the floor to put his team within two points of the Dukes. Mark Groat missed three tough ones from under the hoop before Duquesne could get the ball and freeze on to it, which they did until the game ended.

It was a tough one for Paulie and Swissvale to drop, but would have been just as tough for Duquesne. At that, Swissvale came out of the game with as much glory as Duquesne, but with two less points. And it is points that count. The lineup:

Duquesne—28.		Swissvale—26.
Harapas	F	Emerick
Beck	F	Herring
Durik	C	M. Groat
Shulte	G	Trembath
Servick	G	Tener

Score by periods:

Duquesne	8	6	10	4—28
Swissvale	6	3	12	5—26

Substitutes: Swissvale—C. Groat for Emerick, Emerick for Trembath. Field goals: Duquesne—Harapas 2, Beck 4, Durik 2, Shulte, Servick 2. Swissvale—Emerick, Herring, M. Groat 2, Trembath 2, Tener 2, C. Groat. Fouls: Duquesne—Harapas 4 out of 7; Beck 1 out of 2; Durik 0 out of 1; Servick, 1 out of 1. Swissvale—Emerick 1 out of 1; Herring, 3 out of 5; M. Groat 2 out of 5; Trembath 0 out of 1; Tener, 1 out of 1; C. Groat 1 out of 2. Team fouls: Duquesne—6 out of 11; Swissvale, 9 out of 13. Time of periods—8 minutes. Referee—Herkiotz. Umpire—McGlinchy.

Whitey Siljander, former all-scholastic star at Schenley High School and now a member of the Westminster College squad, will be in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement lineup tonight when the Central Pittsburgh League champions face the Forresters in one of the two games carded in that circuit. In the other fray, Joseph Horne's is the attraction of the Manchester Community House passers on the North Side. The Irene Kaufmann Settlement House quintet, led by the brilliant Freddie Freedel, has clinched both halves of the Central League championship and as a result no playoff series will be necessary to determine the titleholder at the close of the season. The Center Avenue passers copped the first half title by a close margin, but in the second half they did not encounter much opposition from the rest of the league members.

The winning of the Central League title is another feather in the hat of Joseph (Ziggy) Kahn, popular athletic director at the I. K. S., who seems to have a knack of turning out championship teams.

The Goldensons and the Duquesne Lafayettes were beaten last night in their County League battles, the Allentown club taking over the South Side outfit, 37 to 31, and Verona beating the Minnick crew, 39 to 32. Kingsley House copped from North Side Community, 30 to 20, in the West Penn loop.

Heinz House nosed out Homewood Y, 37 to 36, in the Institutional circuit, while St. Casimir's beat St. Wendelin's, 41 to 35, in the Lyceum League.

Mt. Washington Triangles walloped the Flying Dutchmen, 37 to 7, in the A. A. U. tourney. The W. U. Hoyles set down the Geneva College Reserves, 22 to 15. The lineups:

Armour's First Wife Sues for $170,000 Loan

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Papers filed in supreme court yesterday revealed that Mrs. Consuelo Armour, first wife of Tommy Armour, professional golfer, is suing him for separation and for $170,000 she alleges she loaned him.

She also demands $500,000 damages from the golfer's present wife, Mrs. Estelle Andrews Armour, on charges that the latter alienated Armour's affections. She filed another petition, challenging the validity of Armour's Mexican divorce and asking that the former Mrs. Andrews be restrained from using the Armour name.

Armour's first wife was formerly Consuelo Carreras, of Cuba. His second is a former resident of Washington.

match prevented him from coming out with an even break to his credit. He won two matches out of six and there were many present who voted him superior to the Jap in general form.

CLINTON has also defeated Edouard Horemans and would have added triumphs over Willie Hoppe and Erich Hagenlacher but for remarkable runs by his star professional opponents. He once led Hoppe 225 to 39, but lost out in the end because Hoppe made a run of 180. He led Hagenlacher 280 to 225, only to be beaten out because Hagenlacher made an unfinished run of 175.

It was only the constant practice that the pros were getting, and that Clinton was not getting, that kept the Pitsburgher from being more successful against his famous foemen. He showed that if he were giving all his time to the game he would rank abreast of the best of them.

Emil Yde

BASEBALL clubs in the Pacific Coast League are finding it a tough job to sign veteran players whom they obtained for this year in deals with major league teams. A number of the players who were transferred from the big show to the Coast refused the contracts offered, three of them being former Pirates. One of the latter has just left the holdout ranks, Emil Yde, whom the Hollywood club obtained from Detroit and plans to convert from a pitcher into an outfielder on account of his hitting ability, has finally penned his name to a Hollywood pact, but several other ex-major leaguers are still sparring for better terms. Among them are First Baseman Earl Sheely, released to San Francisco by Pittsburgh; Pitcher John Miljus, ex-Buc, whom Cleveland sold to San Francisco, and Outfielder George Harper, turned over to Los Angeles by the Boston Braves. In addition, Infielder Clark Pittenger, released by the Reds to the Yankees in the Leo Durocher deal, and then transferred to Oakland by the Yanks, served notice that he would not report, as he wished to study in the East or middle West for a profession. Accordingly, he has been turned back to the Yanks and will be released anew to some club in another minor league.

LEAGUES SEND OUT PLAYERS' CONTRACTS

By TOM BIRKS

Now that the sandlot league reorganization season is well under way, the activities of the various communities supporting baseball teams are beginning to be speeded up.

With the anticipation of having the greatest team that ever represented North Bessemer, President Coons and his efficient committee, including Druggist Vance, put over a dance and smoker on Tuesday evening at Community Hall, North Bessemer, and the cry during the evening while revelry was at its height was "beat Verona Community." It sounded like a pep meeting before a big football game.

M'NALLY MAY BE PILOT

The railroad town has the fever, and the West Penn League and its roster will benefit by it. Negotiations with Pat McNally have net yet been completed but there is a likelihood the former Verona star will be handling the reins for Coons. This was the first affair of the season but President Coons says another will be put over in the near future.

The Big Two of the district, Homewood and Dormont, both used the community idea this season to put over big affairs to raise money for the coming campaign. Sam Price of Dormont and his helpers are more than gratified at the returns from their midnight show, and, as usual, Honus Wagner, the grand old man of baseball, stopped the show. Hank Daly, Harry Neimann, Scott Morean and the East End boys had the biggest baseball club affair ever held in the East End at Bryn Mawr auditorium. A wonderful crowd packed the place and the East Enders will have something to start on this season in the matter of finances.

MEETING TOMORROW

The officials of the Wagner Leagues, including the West Penn and Pittsburgh Central, mailed out the players' contracts for the forthcoming season yesterday afternoon. So in the next few days it will be possible to get a line on the makeup of the leading clubs in the district.

Tomorrow evening the Steel City loop will meet at Honus Wagner's. The officials of the loop are keenly interested in making two sections of the league and it seems possible. This is being done to cut down traveling which is the bugbear of the smaller sandlot teams.

when he reported the next season. He opened up his trunk and displayed about $200 worth of neckties. The poor fellow was so full of conceit that I figured he was due for a bad year and I guessed right. I like to see a well-dressed boy, but when they start changing clothes four times a day in a town like Paso Robles it's time to call out the constable."

Traynor is the host and interlocutor as Devine unwinds his humorous philosophy. Pie gets a tremendous kick out of Joe's discourses, and they really are better than many you would hear in vaudeville. Joe also dwelt last night on selfish ballplayers. One of his heroes was always ready to trade you a "humming bird for an ostrich," according to the scout's quaint way of putting it.

FALL IS FATAL TO MADDEN

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(INS.)—Bartley Madden, 41, retired heavyweight ring veteran, was dead today as the result of injuries suffered when he fell 28 feet from a balcony in the Treasury Building.

Bartley Madden

Madden was never a champion, but fought the biggest and best with more than fair success, with a record of never having been knocked out.

His wife died three weeks ago in New York, and he was anxious to return there to be with his infant son. His funds were nearly exhausted, he told hospital authorities.

SMALLWOOD TO SUB FOR GIZZY

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

A change has been made in the windup scheduled at the Junction Park arena, New Brighton, tonight, whereby Chet Smallwood, of Akron, O., will take the place of Battling Gizzy, of Washington, Pa., against Young Corsey, of Canton, O.

Chet Smallwood

Gizzy, who defeated Joey Powell, of Philadelphia, at Johnstown last Friday night and stopped Eddie O'Dowd, of Columbus, in four rounds at Wheeling last Monday night, has a badly infected jaw and had to cancel at the eleventh hour. Smallwood, his opponent at Junction Park in a recent show, readily agreed to take his place against Corsey and assured the club he is in fine shape to test the mettle of Corsey.

Matchmaker Ray Eberle, of the Junction Park club, has lined up a good preliminary card. He has Ross Fields against Young Ketchel in the semi-final and Frankie Portland meeting Jackie Griffiths and Tommy Ward boxing Billy Holt in the other six-rounders, and Elmo, the Mighty, and Mike Kelly meeting in the four-round opener.

Between Rounds

Other bouts scheduled for tonight include Angus Snyder vs. Les Kennedy, Jimmy Goodrich vs. Madison Dix and Ward Sparks vs. Frankie Glick, 10 rounds each, San Francisco; Eddie O'Dowd vs. Henry Lenard, St. Louis; Joe Marino vs. Joe Kelly, New York, and Johnny DeMarco vs. Willie Patterson, Philadelphia.

Promoter Francis Flynn, of the Moose Temple, has completed his card for his show tomorrow night with the signing of Sammy Paru, of the Hill, to box Johnny Fantalamo, of Braddock, in the six round opening bout. Howard Mayberry and Jackie Rodgers top the bill, with Jack DeNeri boxing Rosy Grier in the semi-final and Peaches Gallagher meeting Billy Schoies in the second event.

Tusky Haslette, of Franklin, has been training in Pittsburgh for his bout with Eddie Flick on the Indian Tiger West-George Nichols card at Franklin tomorrow night.

Mose Butch will box Simon Brown in one of the feature bouts on the amateur boxing card at the Carrick Eagles Hall next Monday night. In other battles, Dick Graham will meet Mike Chomyak, Vincent Shabas will oppose Frank Tatomer, Ray Jarrens will engage William Smith, Frisbie Zivic will battle Jack McGann and Chuck Mellon will hook up with Al Berger. The show is not a smoker and women are invited to attend. Vaudeville will be an added feature.

Tony Herrera's bout with Steve Culver, of Boston, scheduled for the Jolly Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night, is off due to illness contracted by Culver. There will be no show at the Bowl on Monday, but the following Monday night, Emmett Rocco, of Ellwood City, and Al Friedman, of Boston, heavies, are paired in the main bout.

Tommy Crawley, South Side lightweight, now fighting out of New York under the management of Lou Brown, has for stablemates Harry Carlton, Eddie Elkins, Al Palladino, Tony Poicar and Frankie Carlton.

Young Sapienza, of Zelienople, a flyweight, who has pleased the fans of New Castle, Butler, Junction Park and Youngstown, would like to break into Pittsburgh. He can scale 112 pounds and claims he has lost only one bout, to Ross Fields, the Weirton (W. Va.) star, and then by a technical knockout when he was badly butted in the opening round. He was a protege of the late Joe Cumo, manager of Emmett Rocco, the heavyweight, of Ellwood City.

Bert Shill, of Indianapolis, would like to show his featherweight, Jimmy Dale, in the Pittsburgh district. Dale has boxed Eddie Shea, Billy Levine, Tony Lauremzo, Pee Wee Kaiser, Paul Allen, Frankie Tucker, Phil O'Dowd, Sailor Larsen and others. He stopped Kaiser in one round. He meets Chuck Lapica at Toledo, March 24.

Fight Results

GALLATIN FOE DETERMINED

The Gallatin club, of the American Soccer League, Western Pennsylvania's sole survivor, will meet the St. Stephen's Hungarians at Cleveland, Sunday, March 23, in the fifth round of the National Amateur Cup. The remaining western round finds the German United A. C., of Detroit, clashing with the Banat German Sports, of Cleveland, this game to be played at Detroit.

Only one soccer game will be played locally on Saturday. This will find the Union Switch and Signal aggregation trying to repeat its victory over the Pierpoint Motors soccer club. This game will be played at the Homewood playgrounds, and the kickoff is scheduled for 3 p. m.

It hasn't been used for a long while and may be new to some of the folks. ......Nothing like dragging out the old chestnuts once in a while. ......It all depends, after all, on where the muscles are located. ......They are a fine thing in the body, but out of place in the head...... Many a rookie's heart will be broken in the next few weeks...... In the spring the young men's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of big league jobs...... But many are called and few are chosen...... As soon as the pitchers start curving 'em the boys begin their trek back to the bushes...... Hope springs eternal in the human breast, though, and the army of youngsters chock full of ambition never decreases...... Just how few make the grade may be judged from the number of veterans who manage to hold on in the big show...... There experience has the call over youthful fire. ......Many of the regulars had to be shunted back to the minors several times for seasoning before they were judged ready to stick. ......Very few kids make the riffle the first time up...... The Lloyd Waners are few and far between...... Charley White, who recently tried a comeback, but was technically knocked out in the second round by young Henry Perlick, announces he is through and will not make another try...... He claims he was on his way to victory when he bumped heads with his opponent at the end of the first round and was unable to get his bearings thereafter...... In a statement outlining his plans for the future, he says his comeback was only in the nature of an experiment, anyway, to test out his theory that the proper sort of exercising and balancing of diet will keep anyone young...... "When I came up dazed from the collision for the second round," he says, "I looked across the ring at my opponent and saw a thousand of them coming out of his corner...... He got me while I was trying to pick him out of the crowd."...... That's something like the story Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion, once told me about one of his several fights with a Kid Murphy, who was a rival claimant of his title...... Murphy, an Italian, by the way, was a tremendous socker...... He hit Coulon on top of the latter's bald head and knocked him down...... "The floor of the ring came up and hit me in the face and the roof of the building caved in at the same time, or so it seemed," Johnny said. ......"As I walked to my corner at the end of the round, instead of seeing my father, who was my manager and chief second, I saw a hundred papas there...... Then, during the rest period, I looked across the ring and saw a hundred Murphys grinning at me...... I told my dad about it...... He knew the way out, as all fathers do. ......Whenever in doubt ask dad—he knows...... That's a great slogan and bit of advice...... 'Hit the one in the middle,' he told me...... I did, and won the fight."...... Johnny now makes a living promoting fights in Chicago and touring in vaudeville as the little man no one can lift...... It's a gift and a trick, and a good one.—HARRY KECK.

"CALL OFF YOUR DOGS!" CRIED YVONNE WADDINGHAM-WADDINGHAM

"Them ain't dogs, woman!" laughed the sheriff. "Them's your boy friends. They bark like bloodhounds because they don't smoke OLD GOLD, the honey-smooth cigarette made from queen-leaf tobacco ..... better have 'em change to it and save yourself a lot of unnecessary alarm, my gal."

EASING CREDIT AIDS STOCK ADVANCE

More Than 40 Issues Go To New 1930 Highs as Call Money Rate Drops

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP.)—Easing credit conditions provided the background for a broad advance in prices in today's stock market. Renewed weakness of the commodity markets, with cotton futures breaking to new low levels for the season, caused occasional flurries of selling, but offerings were well absorbed and gains of 1 to 7 points were quite common. More than two score issues, including General Electric and Westinghouse Electric, attained new peak prices for the year.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent, but the supply of funds was so large that the official rate was dropped to 3½ per cent for the first time since January 25, 1928. Time money rates also were at the lowest levels in two years. Bankers' acceptances were cut ⅛ of 1 per cent for the third successive day.

RESERVE CUT SEEN

Lowering of the Bank of England discount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent was believed to foreshadow a cut from 4 to 3½ per cent by the New York Federal Reserve Bank, directors of which meet after the close of the market.

Cotton broke about $2 a bale to new low levels for the season, and had made only a slight recovery by early afternoon. Declines of more than a cent a bushel in wheat futures were reduced to fractions by early afternoon.

Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, Bullard Co., New York and Harlem, Vanadium Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Warren Bros., Worthington Pump and Indian Motorcycle preferred were all marked up 5 points or more above yesterday's final quotations. At least a score others, including International Business Machines, General Electric, Stone & Webster, U. S. Steel, American Can, Loew's, Engineers Public Service, South Porto Rican Sugar and Goodyear sold 3 to 4½ points above last night's final prices.

RAIL BUYING SELECTIVE

Buying of the rails was rather selective in character. Missouri Pacific issues mounted to new high for the year on gains of about 4 points each, and New York Central was marked up 3 points. An increase in the New York Central dividend is looked for in some speculative quarters at the next meeting of the directors.

While recent business news has been rather spotty in character, many Wall street observers believe that the current rally in stock prices is discounting the general improvement widely expected this spring, as well as the prospect of a general relaxation in credit conditions. Persistent but unconfirmed reports that several large public utility mergers are in the making has helped to maintain speculative interest in the power and light stocks, many of which have been turned over in large volume.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 6.—The cotton market opened irregular today at a decline of 5 to 12 points under overnight selling orders which were attributed to further liquidation and which sent prices into new low ground for the movement and season. May contracts sold off to [illegible] and the old October to [illegible] on the call, but at these figures there was a considerable demand. This included trade buying as well as covering and some buying for a reaction. Prices rallied 5 or 6 points from the lowest with May selling up to [illegible], but the advance met further selling and the market was nervous and unsettled with the active months about [illegible] to 12 points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables advices reported general liquidation and short selling in that market and said cotton cloth sales were small [illegible] with fears of lower prices restricting business.

Liquidation became more active and general during the middle of the morning when the market was extremely weak and unsettled with the active months selling about [illegible] to [illegible] points below yesterday's closing quotations. The price of May contracts broke to [illegible], while October sold off to [illegible] and there were reports of heavy southern selling as well as further long liquidation and scattering pressure. Offerings tapered off somewhat at the decline, which attracted trade buying and covering, but rallies were limited and were not fully maintained. At midday May was selling at [illegible], with the general list showing net declines of about [illegible] to [illegible] points.

Pipe Line Company Files Application

HARRISBURG, March 6.—The Susquehanna Pipe Line Company, at a Public Service Commission hearing on its application for permission to transport refined petroleum products, including gasoline, across Pennsylvania, stipulated that it did not contemplate at this time the transportation of natural or artificial gas.

This stipulation was made in answer to protests of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company and the Lancaster Gas Light and Fuel Company. They stated that they had no further protest when the company stipulated that natural and artificial gas would not be carried through the pipe line.

Texas Corp. Head Pleas for Oil Curb

NEW YORK, March 6.—A renewed plea to the state authorities of California and Texas to take a "more active and decisive" stand on the question of restricting petroleum production was made today by R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Corporation, in an article in that company's house publication.

Although the efforts of the industry to curtail production have not been entirely satisfactory, they have been in a large measure successful, Mr. Holmes said, and have resulted in the recognition by all producers that their best interests lie in the ultimate success of this movement.

Jersey Standard Cuts Operations

NEW YORK, March 6.—Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announces that, effective March 9, it will reduce its refinery operations one-seventh in volume in accordance with Federal Oil Conservation Board's suggestion for a six-day week in the petroleum industry.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—Standard Oil Company of California and Shell Union Oil Corporation have reduced refinery runs one-seventh, to the equivalent of a 6-day week, effective immediately.

Gulf Refining Company officials here state the company has only been making sufficient gasoline for current needs and reserve supply is the lowest in the company's history.

ARKANSAS DIPS UNDER MILD SELLING

Stock Forfeits Fraction in the Early Trading Here; Industrials Unchanged

Trading volume decreased moderately on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with the recently active fuel stocks reflecting a little profit taking.

Arkansas Gas, which has been in good demand both here and in New York for the past few days, slipped back a fraction as early offerings found the traders unwilling to follow through on the recent buying movement.

Shamrock Oil, which has also enjoyed a fairly strong market, held steady at the start, but sagged sharply later in the day. Lone Star Gas met a little selling at the start, but absorbed the stock easily.

The heavy industrial issues displayed a slight sagging tendency, but recessions were confined to fractions. Mesta Machine was off ⅜ on the opening, while Pittsburgh Forgings sagged early and steadied in subsequent trading. Pruett-Schaffer Chemical continued firm and was handled unchanged at 21⅛ in the initial dealings. Rustless Iron was also unchanged.

Scarcity of Jobs Affects Chain Store Sales

CINCINNATI March 6 Unemployment has grown to the extent that its effect is being felt in the dollar sales volume of chain stores according to A H Albers president of Krogers Grocery and Baking Company. The consumer due to unemployment is making purchases of groceries that gives the greatest food value for little money and as a result profits to be derived will be smaller than in 1929.

Mr. Albers also attributed the decline in commodity prices as having its bad effect on sales and although approximately the same turnover in tonnage of food stuff is being maintained prices obtainable for the retail product put the chain stores on a slim profitable basis.

Stock Exchange Topics

NEW YORK CENTRAL directors are scheduled to meet next week and Wall Street will not abandon its views regarding possibilities of an increase in the $8 a share dividend rate. It is argued that with equity earnings around $15 a share officials could be more liberal with stockholders. In some quarters it is maintained the official statement pointing out that as a result of leases of subsidiary companies on February 1 "the entire earnings of the combined system are now flowing into the treasury of the New York Central" might be construed as a hint that something may be done for stockholders.

Before the beginning of last month there was talk around the street that precedent would indicate a reactionary market. Many interests, as a result, adopted a more cautious attitude, disposing of part of their long positions on all upturns. In addition, others inclined to pick up stocks delayed purchases in the hope of obtaining the leaders at materially lower levels. Instead of suffering a sharp break during February, the market acted well. Many stocks moved forward. At its worst the movement was referred to generally as sidewise, which was quite different from the big reaction looked for. The action of the market encouraged those who had been working for higher prices previously, and many group operations were resumed in some of the so-called minor stocks.

THE reduction of ⅛ of 1 per cent in bankers' acceptances for all maturities, bringing the yield rate on 30 to 120-day bills to a 3¾-3⅝ per cent basis, the lowest since the middle of May, 1928, aroused wide interest in tomorrow's meeting of directors of the local Reserve Bank. Current rates are a full 2 per cent under the highs reached this time a year ago, but the bank rate on the other hands is also down 2 per cent from the peak last fall. Wall Street is hopeful of another cut in the bank rate, possibly at today's meeting, and there is less disposition to believe that such action depends greatly upon what happens at the Bank of England. Still the fact remains that the Reserve may decide to adhere to its open market operations to provide easier credit for business rather than take recourse to a further reduction in its official rate.

Termination of voting trust agreement under which common stock of Armour and Company had been held draws attention to great improvement in company's working capital position during the year agreement was in effect. On November 2, last, Armour's working capital was larger than that of Swift and Company. Armour's principal handicap remains its burden of funded debt and guaranteed preferred stock, with consequent large fixed charges. As opportunity offers company has been scaling down these fixed obligations which, however, still remain well over double those of Swift.

BID price of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad remains at $220 a share, same that it has been for some months. Only 48,033 shares of the stock are not locked up in the treasuries of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways, and a substantial block of these is understood to be owned by Arthur Curtiss James. If Burlington should be divorced from the joint control of the two Northerns, its shares would lose their scarcity value. Last year the road earned $17.31 a share on its 1,708,391 outstanding shares, the best showing since the line was returned from federal control 10 years ago.

Directors of Mack Trucks declared the regular quarterly dividend. In quarters close to the company it is said that management is currently producing two new models smaller than former models and that expenses in connection with their development have been charged to operating expenses. A diversification of output by Mack Trucks should go a long way toward restoring company to its former splendid earnings basis.

Midland Asks State To Aid in Rail Fight

MIDLAND, Pa., March 6—Town Council, which is endeavoring to reach an agreement with the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Street Railway for the improvement of Midland avenue, has asked the State Highway Department for assistance in the project.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—Further favorable developments in the credit situation including a reduction in the Bank of England discount rate and another cut in bankers acceptances buoyed the bond market today. All of the American government securities touched new highs for the year on even stronger buying support than appeared yesterday.

Bank Acceptance Rates Cut Again

NEW YORK, March 6—(AP)—As a further step in the cheapening of credit which began with crash of the stock market last November, leading bankers acceptance dealers today reduced their rates ⅛ of 1 per cent, the third such reduction in three days.

The new rates for 30 to 120-day bills are 3⅜ per cent asked, and 3½ per cent for 150 to 180 days. The decline in acceptance rates, together with the cutting of the Bank of England rate from 4½ to 4 per cent today, leads Wall street to look for a reduction of the New York Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate from 4 to 3¾ or 3½ per cent, either this week or next.

ENGLISH BANK RATE CUT

LONDON, March 6.—(INS)—The Bank of England today announced the lowering of its rediscount rate from 4½ per cent to 4 per cent. The action occasioned no surprise in financial circles.

The recent inflow of gold, with more to come from Australia, placed the bank's gold position with sufficient strength to enable it largely to ignore the continental demand.

The international money market position also has improved since the Bank of England made its last reduction. In view of further decline of the open market discount rates in New York, which were taken in some quarters to foreshadow a reduced New York bank rate, authorities here took the opportunity of giving the trade of the country benefit of another half per cent reduction.

COPENHAGEN, March 6.—The Bank of Denmark has reduced its rate of discount ½ of 1 per cent, to 4½ per cent, effective tomorrow.

STOCKHOLM, March 6.—The National Bank of Sweden today reduced its discount rate from 4½ per cent to 4 per cent.

Wall Street Is Resisting Depression

By B. C. FORBES

CONTRAST the confidence expressed by the upward movement in shares on the New York Stock Exchange with the disheartening developments and the prevailing gloom elsewhere.

Stock average quotations have advanced very substantially since November. This week they have climbed to practically their highest point of the year. The volume of business done has also decidedly broadened.

LOOK at that picture and then on this:

Commodity prices have sunk to the lowest levels since the drastic 1921 deflation. Wheat is having a hard time staying above a dollar a bushel. Cotton hasn't always kept above 15 cents a pound. Most other crops are bringing low rather than high prices, while eggs and butter command little more than half the price ruling a year ago.

Unemployment is the worst in years. No human being can tell whether the idle total 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 or 5,000,000. Unfortunately, there is only too much evidence that the number is painfully large.

Railway car loadings are running seriously under those of 12 months ago. Bank clearings week by week show decreases exceeding 20 per cent. Commercial failures are lamentably heavy. Many rural and small town banks have been going under. Building activity is nothing to brag about. February foreign trade returns are likely to show shrinkage. From every direction come complaints that corporations are economizing and that consumers are buying from hand-to-mouth, while installment collections inevitably have fallen off.

Tariff wrangling continues its tiresome way at Washington; uncertainty over various schedules unquestionably is exercising a retarding influence. The opposition voiced to the nomination of Mr. Hughes was interpreted in high circles as ominous, and since then the feeling has grown that President Hoover has failed to achieve effective leadership in Congress. Other developments at Washington, including the attitude of more than one commission, have not intended to inspire financial exuberance.

YET, in spite of all that, Wall Street has carried on manfully.

Had it allowed itself to be again stampeded, there is no telling how much worse things might have been.

Not only in financial New York, but throughout a large part of the land, the feeling is that spring will bring revival of business activity.

Moreover, events have demonstrated how thoroughly sound and uninflated conditions were outside of the stock market. When the test came American industry and American business were not found wanting.

Then, too, the tariff clouds must pass before long. Money is plentiful and cheap, at least in the principal centers, with every indication that it will remain so throughout most of the year.

MEANWHILE, local communities should leave no stone unturned to cope with unemployment in their midst. Neither the public authorities nor industry itself have taken sufficent interest to establish machinery to ascertain the essential facts regarding unemployment week by week or month by month throughout the country. Such steps should be instituted without delay; but every possible emergency measure should be taken instanter to take care of individuals and families in distress, through enforced idleness. This is the most serious task immediately at hand.

America has little to fear from alien Soviets, but America should feel the most solicitous concern over unemployment among its own citizens.

Follansbee Bros. Earns $7.41 a Share

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

EARNINGS of the Follansbee Brothers Company gained over 1928 during the first nine months of the year but the report for the entire 12 months showed a slight decline due to the depression in November and December.

Net profit after all charges for 1929 was $1,514,639. This was equivalent to $7.41 a share on the 180,000 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividends. It compared with $1,535,732 or $7.53 a share in 1928.

In the fourth quarter of 1929 net profit was $122,841 or 43 cents a share as compared with $455,509 or $2.28 a share in the corresponding period of 1928.

Automobile Demand Slow

THE SLOW progress being made by automobile companies in resuming normal production schedules has affected Follansbee's business since the beginning of the new year. Operations are considerably better than in the final weeks of 1929 but they are lower than at this time last year.

The company makes steel sheets and tin plate. These are made from forged steel instead of semi-finished material reduced by rolling. Follansbee is the only company using this method of production. Exceptional strength is claimed for the products and the company sells its sheets and tin plate for a higher price than the common types of competing products.

Funded Debt Reduced

THE COMMON STOCK is on a $3 annual dividend basis. Earnings for the year were nearly two and a half times this so that the company was able to devote surplus profits to plant improvements and the reduction of funded debt.

During the year $500,000 of the organization's first mortgage 5s were retired. At the close of the year $2,750,000 of the original issue of $3,250,000 were outstanding and $222,000 of these were held in the company's treasury, leaving only $2,528,000 of funded debt in public hands.

During the year improvements made to plants amounted to $376,888. This was in addition to expenditures for maintenance and repairs of $729,060. Physical properties were valued at $9,285,667 after depreciation charges.

Current Position Improved

THE CURRENT financial position was also improved. Current assets of $5,873,130 were over 11 times current liabilities at the close of 1929 while at the end of 1928 they were six times current liabilities.

Cash of $740,721 exceeded all current liabilities of $515,418. Holdings of United States Government securities amounted to $735,843 and investments in other marketable securities including the holdings of Follansbee bonds were $519,196.

The improvements made to plants resulted in broadening the scope of the company's products and increasing capacity. A new mill installed at the Toronto, O., plant increased the maximum width of sheets produced from 48 inches to 66 inches and resulted in a gain of 10 per cent in capacity. The Follansbee, W. Va., plant was electrified.

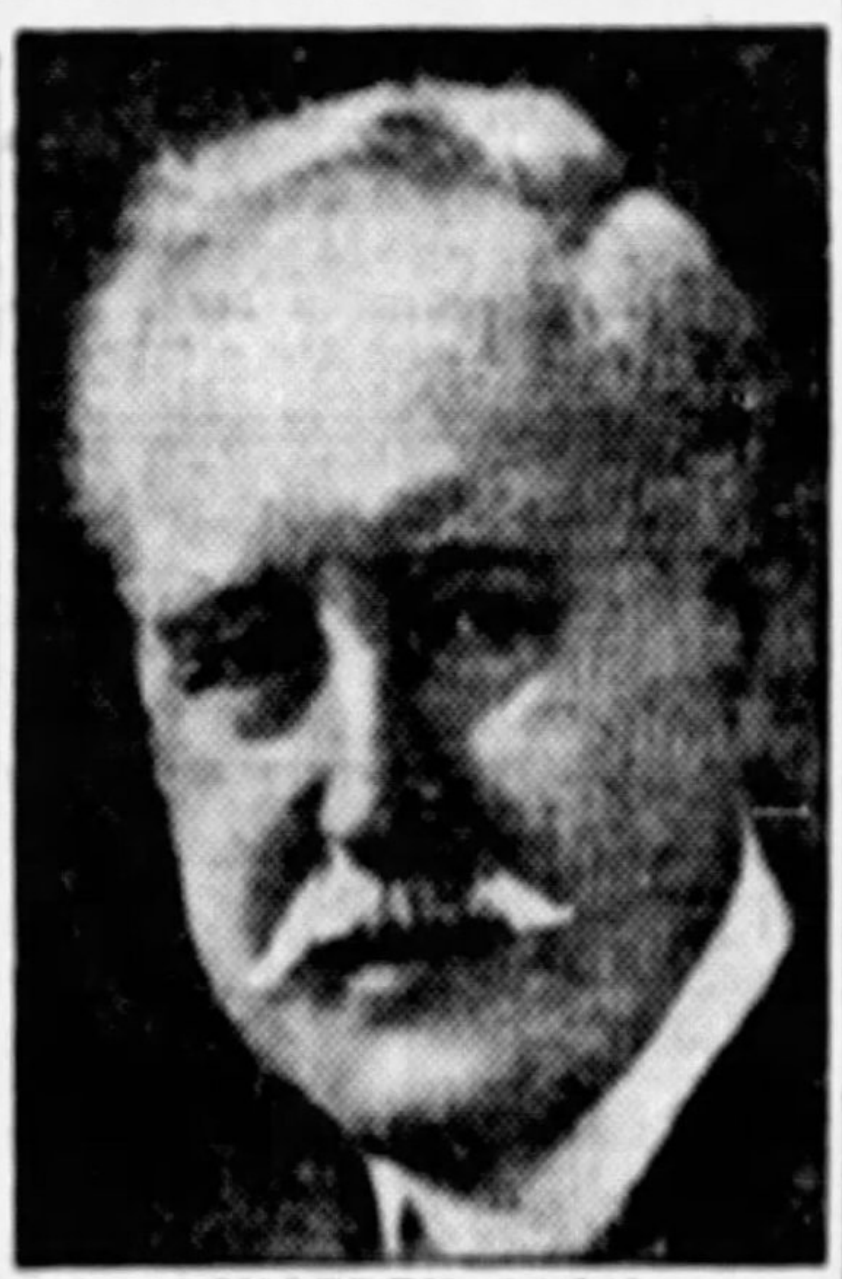
ACIDINE IS "WONDERFUL" SAY THIS MAN AND WOMAN

Read How This Medicine Ended Their Troubles

ACIDINE has helped thousands upon thousands of suffering men and women back to better health, and as the people of this city bear daily of the amazing victories over stubborn ailments, sales increase by leaps and bounds. Possibly never before in the history of the drug trade has any medicine met with such whole-hearted enthusiasm and public approval. More than 2,000,000 users the first year, and no wonder, when it has helped people as it has Mrs. Anna Nebeker, 1449 East 77th St., Chicago, Ill., and Mr. Warren Cook, 595 W. 207th St., New York. Read these straightforward statements they make about ACIDINE:



WARREN COOK

MRS. ANNA NEBEKER

Mrs. Nebeker writes: "Why shouldn't I smile, when I finally found that I can be free from the trouble I suffered from a sour stomach, by simply taking that marvelously pleasant new medicine called ACIDINE? It has cleared up the rash on my skin, and I have more pep than I need now."

"I've suffered my last spell of sour stomach," says Mr. Cook. "I found out that by taking ACIDINE three of four nights a week, I never have that uncertain feeling whether my meals are going to sit right, or make me miserable from the indigestion and gas I used to have so regularly."

Sour stomach, gas, irritated stomach walls, too much acid, poor digestion and colds—these and other results of stomach ills and excess acid—can all be relieved by timely use of ACIDINE.

Your doctor trained himself to help human nature overcome its mistakes. ACIDINE was invented to combat acidosis usually resulting from our mistakes in eating, drinking, living. Best of all, you can test ACIDINE at our risk. Get a package from your druggist today and if its marvelous health-giving qualities do not please you in every way, back goes your money without question. There is no substitute for ACIDINE—the only remedy in the world that contains the marvelous digestant Japtase, which turns souring, fermenting masses into sweet, easily assimilated foods. Throw away the old medicines. Use only the new, perfect, marvelous ACIDINE. Keep it on hand always. Your druggist has ACIDINE or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

DAILY TRUE STORY

The White Horse

NOW don't get nervous. I'm not going to spring that old one about this here Lady Godiva and the white horse and so many wishing they had seen the parade because it was so long since they had seen a white horse—no, sir, I wouldn't tell that one.

This was about a white horse and a red headed girl. Most people, anyway, the older ones before deferred payment automobiles became so numerous, know about the old saying that if you see a read headed girl look around—a white horse will soon be along.

Well, sir this is as true as sunrise and sunset what I'm going to tell you.

It happened up in Putnam County.

I had a training camp up there—but you know that. Everybody who ever read the sport news at that time knew Jim Duffy's training camp. A lotta champs used to come up there to get fit.

This was 20 years ago.

We move so fast a lotta people will say "Ancient history, not interested."

Yeah?

Well, let me tell you, when your 50, 20 years isn't but just a little while to look back. And no matter how fast we live or anything else we're all pretty much the same after all.

Twenty years ago I was crazy to get married.

I wouldn't have been crazy to get married if it hadn't been for Nora Finley.

I would have been crazy to want to marry anyone else, then.

Nora a Brunette

But this Nora Finley—she was a proposition. She didn't approve of wicked prize fighting. She didn't approve of people who trained fighters and refereed fights and who had started out in the ring themselves—which pretty near meant me because I would have been a great heavyweight but for an accident that busted my arm and left it a little crooked and weak.

Well, I refereed fights. I bought my training camp with what I had made in three years' fighting, and I trained fighters—as well as took in rich guys to tone 'em up.

So when Nora Finley said she didn't approve of any of them things that seemed to let me out.

Now Nora had eyes as blue as a flower—a forget-me-not flower—and hair as black as a ton of coal shinin' in the sun. You'll get from this that Nora was an Irish brunette—you will if you aren't dumb entirely.

I seemed to be making pretty good progress with Nora when big trouble came along.

A certain rich man with big offices downtown used to come to my place for a few days to keep in trim. Sometimes he would put in a couple weeks. He paid me like money gave him the itch and he wanted to be rid of it, and he got to be downright chummy with me.

I'll call him Mr Worth because while that isn't like his name at all, he was worth plenty of dough which the wise kids today call "jack" for no good reason at all.

Mr. Worth started toting liquor out to my place and hitting it up.

Liquor Barred

"Look here," I said, "that's N. G.," meaning that it was out. "You come here to get fit and you lush that bum stuff where do I get off? They'll say I turn 'em out worse than when they come in."

I had gone up to his room, suspecting what was what, and seen the bottles there.

"Sit down, Jim—I'll tell you. I can't drink at home, that is why."

"I would be boss in me own home. I don't touch the stuff but if I had a wife who told me I couldn't, I would start in just to show who was who," I said, and lied about it—if only I could make Nora Finley become Mrs. Jimmy Duffy she could be the boss.

"It isn't that, Jim," said Mr. Worth. "It's because my wife drinks too much. I can't have it at home—she's killing herself with it."

"The Keeley?" I suggested.

"Three times, on the Q. T., Jim, she's shot full of that bi-chloride of gold stuff and drinks worse than ever."

"It won't cure them that don't want to be cured, Mr Worth."

"At times she does want to quit——"

"I knew a man who solved the same problem," I says to him; "he put a barrel of fine whisky in his cellar and before the whisky was gone his wife was gone."

Mr. Worth shook his head.

"I don't happen to want her to die. I love her."

I hadn't much to say about that.

"Look here: suppose I brought my wife out here with me for six weeks, we could keep her away from the stuff——"

"Stag—no dames," I said.

"We could sleep in that little bungalow—"

Well, he talked and talked and named so much money that I agreed.

"Bring her out," I said.

"She wouldn't come with me, she would be suspicious. You go in and bring her out, tell her I am hurt or got a touch of fever. I'll pretend for a day, then keep her out here for six weeks with nothing but water and milk and tea to drink," he ordered.

Mrs. Worth Arrives

Well, I went into the city, called on Nora, proposed and heard her say she would consider it. Then I got Mrs. Worth, put her in an ordinary taxi, took her to the train and brought her out.

She made a fuss and got away in a week. I went and got her back again, stopping long enough to propose to Nora again.

Well, devil take wimmen—there's no telling.

This time Mrs Worth remained but she wouldn't go out with her husband or exercise, she just went nervous and ugly. I used to have to get her on a horse to get her out for exercise.

Finally we got to be real friendly Mrs Worth and me. I talked to her like a Dutch uncle, and me probably five years younger but she was sure a stunning big blonde except when she was full of booze.

Mr Worth was delighted. It had been five weeks now since his wife touched a drop and she was looking fine.

She was feeling better and let him come along on horse-back rides. On hikes he was too lazy to come with us often.

One day he did come along.

I had noticed in a little farm house that there was a stunning looking red-headed girl. I had seen her three times or so.

If it hadn't been for Nora I'd have said this was the girl for me, red hair and all.

Mr. Worth spotted her on this hike.

"Ah, we'll see a white horse soon," he said.

"We will not—I've seen her, this being the fourth time," I said, "and no sign of a white horse."

Mr Worth thought for a little while.

"I'll bet you that tomorrow, if we see the red-headed girl we'll see a white horse the same day," he said.

"Don't be simple," his wife said.

"I'll bet you five thousand, against all the treatments we may need here for a year, that we'll see a white horse within 10 hours after we see the red-headed girl," Mr. Worth insisted.

We shook hands on it.

Red-Head Appears

The next day he didn't hike with Mrs. Worth and me. We saw the red-head girl again.

"I'll not count it until your husband sees her when he is with me," I said.

Mrs. Worth laughed so that she grabbed hold of me to keep from falling.

I could see the red-headed girl staring at us.

The next day Mr Worth came along with us.

Sure enough, there was the red-headed girl. Pretty, too, and brick red hair.

"Ten hours from now, or within that time, Mr Worth," I says, "if we don't see a white horse, you lose five grand cash."

"And if we do see a white horse I get all the treatments at your camp that I want for a year, without cost?"

I nodded.

"The bet is on," he said.

And it was on.

We loafed about the place. It was 10 in the morning when the bet was made.

Not even a dappled gray or a spotted pinto did we see up to around 3 o'clock.

Then Mrs. Worth screams, "Look—look—of all things—here comes a white horse with a red-headed girl riding him!"

"Ho—ho! Ha—ha," bellowed Mr. Worth.

I stared up the road.

It had clouded up and the white horse looked whiter than ever. I went down the front yard—a torrent of rain hit me suddenly but I didn't mind that—I wasn't thinking of rain, I was thinking of my lost bet.

I shouted to the red-headed girl.

Rain Spoils Trick

"Hey, where did you get that horse?" I called.

She tossed her head at me and rode on through the awful torrent of rain, a regular summer cloudburst.

I stared at her and at the white horse—

"White?" Not so you would notice it. Dark flanks were showing through, more and more.

I leaped the fence and ran down the road.

A trick—a sharp trick on Mr. Worth's part—that was why he was away the day before—he had gone some place and hired some one to paint a roan horse pure white. The rain spoiled it all.

It came off!

It was Nora!

Yes sir—she was just going to accept me when she seen me with Mrs. Worth and got suspicious, so she came out to a girl friend's farm to watch me. Mr. Worth didn't know about that, but he hired Nora's girl friend's father to paint a horse white, and give Nora, thinking her a real red-head, twenty-five to ride the horse past my place. Nora had painted up and used the red wig for a disguise.

All bets were off and me and Nora got married.

Death of Judge Martin Added Blow to Courts

In the death of Judge Richard W. Martin Allegheny County courts are deprived of the services of a man the bench can ill afford to lose at this time, especially as age and illness have tended to slow the process of justice and law. Perhaps it was due to this situation that Judge Martin stuck to duty at a time when he, too, should not have been in court.

The bench has lost an able jurist and the community has lost a man of the character of which it has far too few in political life—a man of independent thought and action. His campaign for the Republican nomination for mayor indicated that he was not blind as to the sources of evil influences in the city, nor lacking in the impulse and civic courage to apply a remedy.

His departure leaves a vacancy which requires to be filled promptly, since the courts, already overburdened with work, as now constituted, are little able to care for the many cases pending. It is to be hoped the appointment will fall to a man of high character—such a man, for instance, as might be selected by a vote of the Bar Association.

Town Hall, Not Politics, Is Most Important Thing

There appears to be a great to-do over the effect the return (expected today) of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong from a vacation trip may have on political affairs. To judge from the hullabaloo one would think that the matter of Mr. Armstrong's thumbs-up or thumbs-down as a political leader is of the highest importance to the community. Whereas, while it may be interesting, it is of relatively minor importance.

But there are matters of paramount importance for Mr. Armstrong to attend to, with the assistance of other members of the Board of County Commissioners. Among them is coming to some decision with regard to building a Town Hall. This has been hanging fire since June, 1928, when citizens of the county gave their consent to the construction of such a building.

There ought to be no more delay for a very pertinent reason in addition to the basic one of the civic need for the Town Hall. That is that Allegheny County labor NEEDS THE WORK such an undertaking will provide. Allegheny County merchants NEED THE BUSINESS that a more prosperous community would provide. This is not to say that we have been experiencing "hard times," but is a recognition of the fact there does exist a certain condition of unemployment, which a large building operation, such as the Town Hall, would help to relieve.

We long ago decided that we wanted a Town Hall. We long ago decided that we would have it and provided the money to build.

She Does Not SMILE

But She WINS.

MRS. HELEN WILLS MOODY, WHO PLAYS WITH A "COLD LOOK" ON HER FACE

Collier's Weekly prints this picture of the world's female tennis champion, to illustrate an article by Mr. Grantland Rice, who says that he has watched the champion play in many games, but has never seen her smile.

The saying "The Voice With the Smile Wins" is true, as regards telephoning. A smiling, cheerful voice gains the attention of the operator and of the person called at the other end.

A smiling voice is useful in SALESMANSHIP. It pleases the buyer and inclines him to buy.

But in the hard STRUGGLES of life, in the fight for victory, the voice WITHOUT the smile is the one that wins, and the face without the smile is the face that is ATTENDING TO BUSINESS.

You couldn't even IMAGINE a smile on his face.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody goes into the game to win, there is no relaxing, no pretense of anything except a firm intent to annihilate her opponent.

And she ANNIHILATES her.

But in ACTION, in BUSINESS, in your real WORK, be as grim and as far from smile as a leopard on a branch waiting to spring.

DON'T FLASH YOUR TRUMPS

The bud that tries to RUSH its hour in the sun usually gets a FROST-NIP for its pains.

Experience constantly advises shrewdness to CAMOUFLAGE in the MANNERISMS of folly. That's how so MANY of the boys, who APPARENTLY would never amount to a hill of beans, continue to maneuver themselves into cabinets, corporation control and bank presidencies.

The first law of strategy is to LULL suspicion of actual fighting strength. The unobserved force makes FASTEST progress.

A FLANK attack has the best chance to succeed. CONCEALED artillery scores the most hits—the unanticipated assault is the HARDEST to resist.

Nothing is so misleading as that which SEEMS most obvious. Military and financial coups, alike, are INVARIABLY preceded by feinting in a DIFFERENT direction from the REAL objective.

Telegraphed blows seldom land. The FEWER people that sense your plans, the brighter your hope of EXECUTING 'em.

Don't talk about your immature projects, and you're apter to put them through.

All sorts of folk, who in the ORDINARY course of events might not be aware of your existence, will hasten to thwart you if they detect a PERSONAL menace in your aspirations.

There's no discretion so useful as that which prompts men to shutter show windows until they're ready to display a COMPLETE line of goods.

When you can make a competitor feel that he's the smarter of the two—when you can impress him with his OWN superiority and infect him with the idea that you're the DUNDERHEAD—you're already HALFWAY past his defenses.

IT'S far easier to win when nobody suspects an ace in the hole. Most people TELL too much; they EXAGGERATE their attainments and consequently prattle away their opportunities.

Impatience to be recognized as IMPORTANT, keeps them from BECOMING important. As Lew Fields used to say, "they stand TOO far in front of themselves."

The spotlight hog can only see the glaring calcium: its blinding blaze both reveals him and conceals those who are taking his measure.

When you over-feature yourself, you've begun to lose sense of surroundings. The background's the SAFEST place from which to take an accurate survey. Keep DOWN until you're ready to RISE. If you're bent on advancement, affect a retiring attitude. The very crowd that the brass band attracts, BLOCKS its march.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD! ∴

By Elsie Robinson

I HAVE an odd letter from a father. His 18-year-old daughter, just out of Hi, wants to take a job as a stenographer in a large city firm. He doesn't approve.

"I have enough to take good care of her, without her working," he writes. "But it really isn't a question of money. I think working life spoils a young girl, hardens her. I have seen it happen so often. They become so sophisticated that they lose the sensitiveness and innocence future mothers should have. I don't want my little girl to know all the rottenness there is in the world. I want her to keep her illusions, believe in fairy tales. So I have put my foot down and said she must stay at home with mother for the next few years. She will find enough to do if she learns housekeeping and sewing."

But daughter, it seems, violently disagrees with this plan and is raising Cain. So they've asked for a disinterested referee.

Well—what about it? Is Friend Father right? Yes, I admit his plea is touching, but isn't it based on a wrong promise?

Does any girl of 18 still believe in fairy tales?

And would she be worth a hoot as wife or mother if she did believe in them?

A knowledge of this hard-boiled world forces me to admit that she doesn't . . . and wouldn't. The average young female of 18 has a fair knowledge of what it's all about . . . . and is burning to know more. This does not mean that she has indulged in illicit adventuring or is possessed of a vulgar mind. It simply means that modern life places her right in the middle of the racket and, unless she's a ninny, she can't escape a certain amount of worldly knowledge.

And why should she want to escape? Why shouldn't she learn the truth about the world exactly as her brother learns it? She will need that information just as much as he will need it.

Motherhood is a complicated profession in 1930. It requires much more than a knowledge of domestic science. It requires a knowledge of the business of living. The young wife who doesn't know what people are all about, and who hasn't gotten some of that knowledge at first hand, is tragically handicaped. She can neither understand her husband nor train her children properly. She may be cute to have around but she's useless for all practical purposes.

Moreover, a short term of business life is necessary as a matter of discipline. No woman can appreciate the strain of weariness and anxiety or know the value of system unless she has experienced these things in her own training. Six months of office training are worth more to a girl than six years of home sweet home. And if I were a young man, looking for a wife, I wouldn't marry a girl who hadn't had such training. Would YOU?

Text For Today

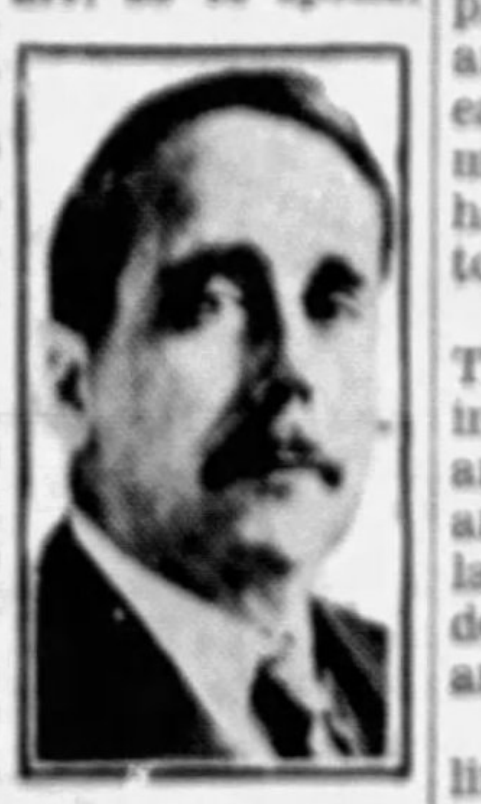
THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

BUT normally, as soon as anything dies it is discovered by the floating spores of putrefactive bacteria, Nature's house-breakers, which proceed to demolish it.



H. G. Wells

There is a great variety of these bacteria. There are, so to speak, a number of rival gangs of housebreakers working without any sign of discipline or co-operation.

Some attack the proteins and fats and break them up into fluid substances; others, rivals of the first, fall upon the same materials and turn it into stinking gases.

Some fall upon the nitrogen-containing molecules and turn them into ammonium carbonate—a substance which is wrestled for by two other kinds, the first turning it into atmospheric nitrogen and the second into nitrites.

Then the nitrites are seized upon by yet other bacteria and converted into nitrates. The confusion is increased by other creatures which butt in—moulds and grubs of various kinds.

But the net result of this swarming, struggling activity is good; the useless body is converted into molecules of simple constitution, gases and simple compounds in the soil, which can be used to nourish green plants.

The chemical capital, which would otherwise be locked up and unproductive, has been brought back again to play its part in the commerce of living things.

For the material of living things seldom rests; it is kept in continual circulation from body to body. Consider, for example, the muscles of a man. Their material may be used up—burnt or worn away—during his life, in which case it will be excreted in his breath or in his urine.

Or it may be present at his death, in which case it will be fallen upon by bacteria and demolished, and the chemical bricks of which it is built make their way as before either into the air or into the soil in the form of comparatively simple molecules.

In either case, sooner or later, it will be built again into a living thing. Carbon dioxide in the air is absorbed by plants to be built up into their substance; nitrogen is absorbed by special bacteria in the soil and turned into nitrogen compounds.

And the substances in the soil are sucked up by the roots of plants. The plants are eaten by animals, the animals die or are eaten by other animals—even by men—and thus the material is handed on from one form of life to the other.

Life is a continual commerce. There is a rhythm, a cycle, from inorganic substances in the air and soil to plant-tissue, thence to animal-tissue, from either of the last two stages via excretion or death and decay back to the air and the soil.

And this everlasting rotation of life is kept in motion by the radiant energy of the sun.

For the green plants build up complicated substances out of simple ones by means of solar energy, the vegetarian animals use and burn these compounds and the carnivorous animals, consuming the bodies of the vegetarians, use them too; true indeed it is that "all flesh is grass."

And finally, the last drop of energy is wrung out of these substances by the putrefactive bacteria. So we can compare the life on our planet to a wheel; matter going round and round, solar energy steaming through it and keeping it in motion.

8. The Smallest Living Things.

THE invention and gradual improvement of the compound microscope has led us stage by stage into a world of tiny wonders, a world that becomes more and more mysterious as one proceeds to smaller creatures. In the first excitement of this discovery it was thought that our power of magnification was, in theory at least, unlimited.

It was thought that one could go on combining lenses forever; that if only one could make lenses without aberrations of line and color there would be no secret of Nature, however minute, that one could not magnify and make visible. But, unhappily, that is very far from true.

There is a limit to the smallness of the things which can be seen, a limit imposed not by any fault of the lens grinders, but by a property of light itself.

We know that we shall never be able to see distinctly anything less than one four-thousandth of a millimeter across (one hundred-thousandth of an inch), however powerful our lenses may be, because of the inexorable wave-length of visible light.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 6.—The Bowery is still the Bowery. Chain store opulence has failed to blot out its accustomed dinginess. There are strips of the glowering wide thoroughfare as colorfully rowdy as they were in the days of Suicide Hall and Steve Brodie's swing door saloon.

Sidewalk hucksters are still hawking everything from 10-cent neckties to 50-cent workshirts. Plaster of Paris statues continue to be sold from capacious head baskets of dark, sinister men with rings in their ears. Alcoholic harridans lurch from doorways to hiccough imprecations.

The scarred Chinese theater—now called The Cathedral of the Underworld—attracts its nightly crew of sodden souls who lift husky voices in "Washed in the Blood of the Lamb" while a creaky organ wheezes its dolorous accompaniment.

Even the Mutoscope parlor flourishes with all the penny-a-peep favorites on view—"After the Bath," "They Forgot to Lower the Curtain" and "The Rich Man's Plaything." Pictures, incidentally, not half so naughty as the daily tabloid fare.

Over pawnshop doors faint bells tinkle at night to guide unsteady feet to havens where they may procure change for shots of Bowery "smoke." In one block were three "reliever" shops. Here patrons may exchange some article of wearing apparel for something shoddier—with a few pennies to boot.

On church steps after dusk are sprawled unfortunates, wrapped in newspapers, and fighting for a few hours of dreamless sleep. Hash houses, carpeted with sawdust, and flop houses with their dim blobs of light, add to the depressing etching of The Port of Missing Men.

In the Bowery dance hall admission is $1. For this one may dance 10 dances. The hired dancing girls stand on one side of the room and at the first blare of the orchestra walk toward patrons, who select their partners from among them. Sometimes three or four men will rush for the same girl and there is crowding and shoving. But the bouncers are there with strips of rubber hose to see there are no fisticuffs.

After midnight I dropped into a beefsteak place in Chatham square. The menu offered the following: Pea soup, 4 cents; coffee and sinkers, 7 cents; beef stew with crackers, 14 cents; potatoes, 2 cents, and apple pie, 6 cents. There were seven customers, two asleep over table tops. A legless man dragged himself in to play "Suawanee River" on a mouth organ. After a few bars he was driven out with a guttery curse.

The waiter, a pock-marked fellow, with the most incredibly filthy apron I ever saw, cocked a wily eye and inquired my wants. I ordered a cup of coffee and an orange, intending to touch neither. He seemed to sense something out of the ordinary, hesitated—while my heart skipped a beat—and slouched off sulkily to the kitchen. I overheard him say to someone in the rear: "An uptown boy looking us over." I dawdled over the coffee, slipped the orange in my pocket and was I glad to see the policeman a few doors away!

Chinatown, after midnight, had the quietness of the country churchyard. In one little fruit store a couple of Chinese were playing cards by candle light. Printers were at their cases in the office of the Chinese daily newspaper. Nowhere else was there a show of life.

"I saw you," writes Bystander, "extend your hand to a man in the Ritz lobby who did not see it and rushed on. The way you turned it off by leaning over to pat a dog was neat."

I often pick 'em off the ground that way for a bit of shoe string fielding.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

LIKE many another you had a hard time to procure an education. In your youth you had the bare necessities and that was about all.

As the father of a family now you have resolved not to subject your children to the hardships you experienced.

But haven't you gone to the other extreme and afforded them ease and not enough of the sort of hardship which might actually benefit them?

You have never demanded that they work half as hard as you did.

You have allowed them a care-free, irresponsible life which after all has not been a kindness to them.

Some time soon they are to meet discouragements and will have to assume responsibilities for which they are in no way fitted.

You have done most of their thinking and planning and when they are called upon to do this for themselves they are unaccustomed to exercise judgement and so they are going to make some mistakes.

It is too easy to be indulgent as a parent to the extent that the child is wholly unfitted for a practical life.

He has not built up resistance necessary to meet and overcome difficulties, which is a pity.
